Courses of Study—Admission.

The Regular Course of Study requires three years for its completion. It is arranged with reference to the attainments and studies of college graduates. It is earnestly desired that all students whose circumstances will allow them to obtain a college education, will do so before coming to the Seminary.

Students whose age or want of preparatory education will not allow them to pursue the Regular Course, may pursue a Partial Course of study, requiring two years for its completion.

Candidates for admission to the Regular Course must produce the diploma of A.B. from a college or university; or must pass an examination, satisfactory to the Faculty, in classical and general literature and science.

Candidates for admission to the Partial Course must pass an examination, satisfactory to the Faculty, in the ordinary branches of English education.

Applicants for admission, who are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, must bring a certificate of local preacher's license, or a recommendation either from a quarterly conference or leaders' meeting, certifying that the applicant is a proper person, as to moral and Christian character, to enjoy the advantages of the Seminary.

Members of other Churches must bring satisfactory written recommendations from ministers of the Churches to which they belong.

Regular Course of Study.

In Historical Theology.—Kurtz's Sacred History; Kurtz's Church History; Schaff's History of the Christian Church; Gieseler's Ecclesiastical History; Hagenbach's History of Doctrines (edited by Smith); Coleman's Ancient Christianity.

In Systematic Theology.—Watson's Institutes; Wesleyana (New York, Carlton & Porter); McCosh's Intuitions of the Mind; Whedon on the Will; Butler's Analogy (edited by Emory & Crooks); Hopkins's Moral Science; Hardwick's Christ and other Masters; Alexander's Evidences of Christianity.

In Practical Theology.—Watson's Institutes, Part IV.; Baxter's Reformed Pastor; Kidder's Homiletics; Methodist Discipline; Baker on Discipline; Vinet's Pastoral Theology; Porter's Compendium of Methodism.

Students who complete the Regular Course of three years, and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive the degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

Students who complete the Partial Course, and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive the certificate of the Seminary.

Expenses.

The expenses of the students will be brought as low as possible. No charge is made for tuition, room rent, or use of the Library. The Club House is allotted for the use of those students who desire to form a club to board themselves. The expense will then be as low as they choose to make it. During 1867–8 board was from $2.50 to $3.00 per week. During the year 1868–9 it will probably not exceed $2.50.

The students' rooms are very neatly carpeted, furnished, and provided with beds, bedding, and linen. Fuel, light, and washing must be paid for by the students. The home provided for students is all that could be desired, both for comfort and convenience. Married students can be accommodated with rooms for themselves, but not for their families.

Books and stationery are furnished at the Seminary at low prices.

Term—Vacation.

The time fixed for the regular term of study is eight months, beginning on the third Thursday in September, and ending on the third Thursday in May.

Library.

Purchases of books for the Library have been going on during the past year, both in this country and in Europe. Nearly eight thousand volumes have already been selected, including many of the fundamental works, both ancient and modern, in theological science. Additions will be made during the coming year. The libraries of the Professors are also accessible to the students, under suitable restrictions.

Reading Room.

The Reading Room is furnished with most of the religious newspapers of the various denominations.

Literary Society.

A Society has been organized, called "The Society for Theological and Philosophical Inquiry," founded Nov. 4, 1867. It embraces a majority of the students. The general purpose is to consider questions in theology and philosophy, although discussions are not confined to these special fields of inquiry. A standing Missionary Committee of the Society has made good progress in the accumulation of missionary matter. A correspondence has been opened with all the prominent missionary societies of our own and foreign countries, and the Society is regularly receiving their publications. The regular meetings are held on Monday evenings.

Extract from the Constitution of the Seminary.

Of Professorships, Scholarships, and Library Alcoves.

SECTION 1. Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of thirty thousand dollars, or more, for the purpose of founding a Professorship, shall have the privilege of naming such Professorship; which name shall not be altered thereafter.

SECTION 2. Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of five thousand dollars, or more, for the purpose of founding a Scholarship, shall have the privilege, not only of naming such a Scholarship, but also of nominating, during his or their lifetime, the beneficiaries who are to be placed upon said foundation, who shall receive board as well as instruction gratuitously.

SECTION 3. Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of two thousand dollars, shall have the right of naming an alcove in the Library, to be occupied by books purchased with the money so given or bequeathed.

Grounds and Buildings.

The site of the Drew Theological Seminary is "The Forest," near Madison, New Jersey, twenty-eight miles from New York, on the Morris and Essex Railroad. The situation is one of the most picturesque and healthful in the Northern States. The grounds adjacent to the buildings are beautifully laid out, and the forest approaches to within a short distance of them. The Seminary buildings are:

1. Mead Hall, the main edifice, containing the Chapel, the Lecture Rooms, the Society Rooms, and (until the Library building is erected), the Library.

2. Asbury Hall, containing 72 rooms for students.

3. Embury Hall, containing the Refectory and numerous other apartments.

Modes of Access.

Students coming by way of New York reach Madison by the Morris and Essex Railroad, from the foot of Barclay street, New York.

From the South, by the New Jersey Railroad to Newark, and there change from the New Jersey to the Morris and Essex Road. It is about ten minutes' walk from the one station to the other. Conveyances will be found waiting at the Market Street Station for those who desire them.

From the West, students come by Easton, Pa., where connections are made with the Morris and Essex Railroad to Madison.

The Seminary grounds are distant about five minutes' walk from the station at Madison.

Letters of inquiry should be addressed to the Rev. Dr. McClintock, Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, N. J.

Students who take a Partial Course and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive a certificate to that effect.

Expenses.

The expenses of the students will be brought as low as possible. Six dollars a year, in advance, must be paid toward incidental expenses. No charge is made for tuition, room rent, furniture, or use of the Library. The Club House is allotted for the use of those students who desire to form a club to board themselves. The expense will then be as low as they choose to make it. During 1868–9 board was from $2.50 to $3.00 per week.

The students' rooms are neatly carpeted, furnished, and provided with beds, bedding, and linen. Fuel, lights, and washing must be paid for by the students. The home provided is all that could be desired, both for comfort and convenience. Married students can be accommodated with rooms for themselves, but not for their families.

Books and stationery are furnished at low prices.

Term—Vacation.

The time fixed for the regular term of study is eight months, beginning on the third Thursday in September, and ending on the third Thursday in May.

Library.

The Library now contains about ten thousand volumes, including many of the fundamental works, both ancient and modern, in theological science. Additions will be regularly made. The libraries of the Professors are also accessible to the students, under suitable restrictions.

Reading Room.

The Reading Room is furnished with most of the religious newspapers of the various denominations.

Literary Society.

A Society called "THE SOCIETY FOR THEOLOGICAL AND PHILOSOPHICAL INQUIRY," was founded November 4, 1867. Its general purpose is to consider questions in theology and philosophy, although discussions are not confined to these fields of inquiry. A standing Missionary Committee of the Society has made good progress in the accumulation of missionary matter. A correspondence has been opened with all the prominent missionary societies of our own and foreign countries, and the Society is regularly receiving their publications.

Extract from the Constitution of the Seminary.

Of Professorships, Scholarships, and Library Alcoves.

SECTION 1. Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of thirty thousand dollars, or more, for the purpose of founding a Professorship, shall have the privilege of naming such Professorship; which name shall not be altered thereafter.

Section 2. Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of five thousand dollars, or more, for the purpose of founding a Scholarship, shall have the privilege, not only of naming such a Scholarship, but also of nominating, during his or their lifetime, the beneficiaries who are to be placed upon said foundation, who shall receive board as well as instruction gratuitously.

Section 3. Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of two thousand dollars, shall have the right of naming an alcove in the Library, to be occupied by books purchased with the money so given or bequeathed.

Grounds and Buildings.

The site of the Drew Theological Seminary is "The Forest," near Madison, New Jersey, twenty-eight miles from New York, on the Morris and Essex Railroad. The situation is one of the most picturesque and healthful in the Northern States. The grounds adjacent to the buildings are beautifully laid out, and the forest approaches to within a short distance of them. The Seminary buildings are:

1. Mead Hall, the main edifice, containing the Chapel, the Lecture Rooms, the Society Rooms, and (until the Library building is erected) the Library.

2. Asbury Hall, containing 72 rooms for students.

3. Embury Hall, containing the Refectory and numerous other apartments.

Modes of Access.

Students coming by way of New York reach Madison by the Morris and Essex Railroad, from the foot of Barclay street, New York.

From the South, by the New Jersey Railroad to Newark, and there change from the New Jersey to the Morris and Essex Road. It is about ten minutes walk from the one station to the other. Conveyances will be found waiting at the Market Street Station for those who desire them.

From the West, students come by Easton, Pa., where connections are made with the Morris and Essex Railroad to Madison.

The Seminary grounds are distant about five minutes' walk from the station at Madison.

Letters of inquiry should be addressed to the Rev. Dr. McClintock, Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, N.J.

Course of Study—Admission.

The Regular Course of Study requires three years for its completion. It is arranged with reference to the attainments and studies of college graduates. It is earnestly desired that all students whose circumstances will allow them to obtain a college education, will do so before coming to the Seminary.

However, to meet the wants of those whose age, or other circumstances, may make such a previous preparation impossible, an Introductory Course of two years in the Classics and in Science has been provided for the present. The studies of this Introductory Course will be substantially those named below, as required of candidates for admission to the Regular Course.

Students whose age, or want of preparatory education, will not allow them to pursue the Regular Course, may take a Partial Course of study.

Candidates for admission to the Regular Course must produce the diploma of A. B. from a college or university; or must pass an examination satisfactory to the Faculty in classical and general literature and in science. This examination will include the following studies (or their equivalents,) namely:

LATIN: Cæsar, three books; Cicero, two orations; Virgil (Æneid,) three books.

GREEK: Xenophen (Anabasis, Cyropaedia, or Memorabilia,) two books; Heredotus (Dr. Johnson's;) Homer (Iliad,) two books.

ENGLISH BRANCHES: Arithmetic; Algebra; Geometry; Geography (Descriptive and Physical;) Logic; Rhetoric; Outlines of History; Elements of Natural Philosophy; Geology and Astronomy.

Candidates for admission to the Partial Course must pass an examination satisfactory to the Faculty in the ordinary branches of English education.

Applicants for admission, who are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, must bring a certificate of local preacher's license, or a recommendation either from a quarterly conference or a leaders' meeting, with the written concurrence of the Pastor and Presiding Elder. The form of recommendation authorized by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is as follows:

"We, the members of the Quarterly Conference of _____ hereby express our judgment that _____ is called of God to the work of the Ministry, and we recommend him as a suitable person to become a student in the Drew Theological Seminary.

_____, President.

_____, Secretary.

Members of other Churches must bring satisfactory written recommendations from ministers of the Churches to which they belong.

Five Years' Course.

To those who cannot possibly go through college, we would mention the advantages of our Five Years' Course. These are:

First—Two years' careful instruction in the classics and in science.

Second—Three years' regular scientific study of Theology, including the full course, in which Hebrew, Greek, and, to some extent, Latin are in constant use.

Third—Such a course, faithfully gone through, must result in a degree of culture but little inferior to that of the regular college curriculum, which, for the Minister of the Gospel, it has the double advantage of being secured in contact with the great problems of Theology, and of embracing the knowledge essential to his sacred calling.

Regular Course of Study.

Junior Year.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Hebrew Grammar; Hebrew Bible, begun; Greek: Acts of the Apostles; Biblical Geography and Archæology.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—Pre-Christian History: Other Nations in relation to Israel; Old Testament History; Interregnum of Inspiration. New Testament History: Lives of Christ and the Apostles; Christian Archæology.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Relations of Philosophy to Theology; Outline and Method of Theological Science; Doctrinal Theology begun.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Exercises in Writing and Speaking.

Middle Year.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Hebrew Bible continued; Greek Testament (Corinthians, Ephesians, 1st John); Canon, Criticism, Versions.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—Church History to the Reformation; History of Doctrines; History of Missions; Comparative History of Religions.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Doctrinal Theology continued; Moral Science and Christian Ethics.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Catechetics; Homiletics begun; Exercises in Writing and Speaking.

Senior Year.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Homiletics; Pastoral Care; Church Polity and Discipline; Sunday Schools; Missions; Worship.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Doctrinal Theology continued; Apologetics; Polemics; Comparison of Heathen and Christian Religions.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—Church History completed; History of Doctrines; Comparative Symbolics; Statistics; Discussions of the Life of Christ from the Modern Point of View.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Hebrew Bible and Exegesis (Prophetical Books,) Biblical Chaldee; New Testament Exegesis (Romans, Hebrews, Revelations); Inspiration and Interpretation with reference to recent controversies.

Pastoral Work.

It is contrary to the order of the Institution that any student under the grade of Middle should take Pastoral Work without the special action of the Faculty.

Modern Languages.

Graduation.

Students who have the degree of A. B., or its equivalent in classical and scientific culture, and who complete the Regular Course of three years, and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive the degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

Students who have gone through the Introductory Course, or its equivalent, and who likewise complete the Regular Course and pass a satisfactory examination, shall receive the diploma of the Institution.

Students who take a Partial Course and pass a satisfactory examination will receive a certificate to that effect.

Expenses.

The expenses of the students will be brought as low as possible. Six dollars a year, in advance, must be paid towards incidental expenses. No charge is made for tuition, room rent, furniture, or use of the Library. The Club House is allotted for the use of those students who desire to form a club to board themselves. The expense will then be as low as they choose to make it. During 1869–70 board was from $2.50 to $3.00 per week.

The students' rooms are neatly carpeted, furnished and provided with beds, bedding and linen. Fuel, lights and washing must be paid for by the students. The home provided is all that could be desired, both for comfort and convenience. Married students can be accommodated with rooms for themselves, but not for their families.

Books and stationery are furnished at low prices.

Term—Vacation.

The time fixed for the regular term of study is eight months, beginning on the third Thursday in September, and ending on the third Thursday in May.

Library.

The Library now contains about ten thousand volumes, including many of the fundamental works, both ancient and modern, in theological science. Additions will be regularly made. The libraries of the Professors are also accessible to the students, under suitable restrictions.

Reading Room.

The Reading Room is furnished with most of the religious newspapers of the various denominations.

Literary Society.

A society called "The McClintock Literary Society," is in active operation in the Institutions. Its discussions cover the usual range of such associations. A standing Missionary Committee of the Society has made good progress in the accumulation of missionary matter. A correspondence has been opened with all the prominent missionary societies of our own and foreign countries, and the Society is regularly receiving their publications.

The Regular Course of Study requires three years for its completion. It is arranged with reference to the attainments and studies of college graduates. It is earnestly desired that all students whose circumstances will allow them to obtain a college education, will do so before coming to the Seminary.

However, to meet the wants of those whose age, or other circumstances, may make such a previous preparation impossible, an Introductory Course of two years in the Classics and in Science has been provided for the present. The studies of this Introductory Course will be substantially those named below, as required of candidates for admission to the Regular Course.

Students whose age, or want of preparatory education, will not allow them to pursue the Regular Course, may take a Partial Course of study.

Candidates for admission to the Regular Course must produce the diploma of A. B. from a college or university; or must pass an examination satisfactory to the Faculty in classical and general literature and in science. This examination will include the following studies (or their equivalents,) namely:

Latin: Cæsar, three books; Cicero, two orations; Virgil (Æneid,) three books.

Greek: Xenophon (Anabasis, Cyropædia, or Memorabilia,) two books; Herodotus (Dr. Johnson's;) Homer, (Iliad,) two books.

English Branches: Arithmetic; Algebra; Geometry; Geography (Descriptive and Physical;) Logic; Rhetoric; Outlines of History; Elements of Natural Philosophy; Geology and Astronomy.

Candidates for admission to the Partial Course must pass an examination satisfactory to the Faculty in the ordinary branches of English education.

Applicants for admission, who are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, must bring a certificate of local preacher's license, or a recommendation either from a quarterly conference or a leader's meeting, with the written concurrence of the Pastor and Presiding Elder. The form of recommendation authorized by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is as follows :

" We, the members of the Quarterly Conference of_____hereby express our judgment that _____ is called of God to the work of the ministry, and we recommend him as a suitable person to become a student in the Drew Theological Seminary.

_____, President.

_____, Secretary.

Members of other Churches must bring satisfactory written recommendations from ministers of the Churches to which they belong.

Five Years' Course.

To those who cannot possibly go through college, we would mention the advantages of our Five Years' Course. These are :

First—Two years' careful instruction in the classics and in science.

Second—Three years' regular scientific study of Theology, including the full course, in which Hebrew, Greek, and, to some extent, Latin are in constant use.

Third—Such a course, faithfully gone through, must result in a degree of culture but little inferior to that of the regular college curriculum, while, for the Minister of the Gospel, it has the double advantage of being secured in contact with the great problems of Theology, and of embracing the knowledge essential to his sacred calling.

Regular Course of Study.

Junior Year.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Hebrew Grammar; Hebrew Bible, begun. Greek; Acts of the Apostles. Biblical Geography, Chronology, Archæology, and Introduction.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—Pre-Christian History, Other Nations in relation to Israel; Old Testament History; Interregnum of Inspiration. New Testament History; Lives of Christ and the Apostles; Christian Archæology.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Relations of Philosophy to Theology; Outline and Method of Theological Science; Doctrinal Theology begun.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Exercises in Writing and speaking.

Middle Year.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Hebrew Bible continued; Greek Testament, (Corinthians, Ephesians, 1st John; Canon, Criticism, Versions.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—Church History to the Reformation; History of Doctrines; History of Missions; Comparative History of Religions.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Doctrinal Theology continued; Moral Science and Christian Ethics.

Senior Year.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Doctrinal Theology continued; Apologetics; Polemics; Comparison of Heathen and Christian Religions.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—Church History completed; History of Doctrines; Comparative Symbolics; Statistics; Discussions of the Life of Christ from the Modern Point of View.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Hebrew Bible and Exegesis (Prophetical Books.) Biblical Chaldee; New Testament Exegesis (Romans, Hebrews, Revelation; Inspiration and Interpretation with reference to recent controversies.

Pastoral Work.

It is contrary to the order of the Institution that any student under the grade of Middle should take Pastoral Work without the special action of the Faculty.

Modern Languages.

Graduation.

Students who have the degree of A. B., or its equivalent in classical and scientific culture, and who complete the Regular course of three years, and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive the degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

Students who have gone through the Introductory Course, or its equivalent, and who likewise complete the Regular Course and pass a satisfactory examination, shall receive the Diploma of the Institution.

Students who take a Partial Course and pass a satisfactory examination will receive a certificate to that effect.

Expenses.

The expenses of the students will be brought as low as possible. Six dollars a year, in advance, must be paid towards incidental expenses. No charge is made for tuition, room rent, furniture or use of the Library. The Club House is allotted for the use of those students who desire to form a club to board themselves. The expense will then be as low as they choose to make it. During the past year board has been from $2.50 to $3.00 per week.

The students' rooms are neatly carpeted, furnished and provided with beds, bedding and linen. Fuel, lights and washing must be paid for by the students. The home provided is all that could be desired, both for comfort and convenience. Married students can be accommodated with rooms for themselves, but not for their families.

Books and stationery are furnished at low prices.

Term—Vacation.

The time fixed for the regular term of study is eight months, beginning on the third Thursday in September, and ending on the third Thursday in May.

Library.

The Library now contains about ten thousand volumes, including many of the fundamental works, both ancient and modern, in theological science. Additions will be regularly made. The libraries of the Professors are also accessible to the students, under suitable restrictions.

Reading Room.

The Reading Room is furnished with most of the religious newspapers of the various denominations.

Literary Society.

A society called "The McClintock Literary Society," is in active operation in the Institutions. Its discussions cover the usual range of such associations. A standing Missionary Committee of the Society has made good progress in the accumulation of missionary matter. A correspondence has been opened with all the prominent missionary societies of our own and foreign countries, and the Society is regularly receiving their publications.

Extract from the Constitution of the Seminary.

Of Professorships, Scholarships, and Library Alcoves.

Section 1. Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of thirty thousand dollars, or more, for the purpose of founding a Professorship, shall have the privilege of naming such Professorship, which name shall not be altered thereafter.

Section 2. Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of five thousand dollars, or more, for the purpose of founding a Scholarship, shall have the privilege, not only of naming such a Scholarship, but also of nominating, during his or their lifetime, the beneficiaries who are to be placed upon said foundation, who shall receive board as well as instruction gratuitously.

Section 3. Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of two thousand dollars, shall have the right of naming an alcove in the Library, to be occupied by books purchased with the money so given or bequeathed.

Grounds and Buildings.

The site of the Drew Theological Seminary is "The Forest," near Madison, New Jersey, twenty-eight miles from New York, on the Morris and Essex Railroad. The situation is one of the most picturesque and healthful in the Northern States. The Seminary buildings are:

1. Mead Hall, the main edifice, containing the Chapel, the Lecture Rooms, and (until the Library building is erected) the Library.
2. Asbury Hall, containing seventy-two rooms for students.
3. Embury Hall, containing the Refectory, and numerous other apartments.

Modes of Access.

Students coming by way of New York reach Madison by the Morris and Essex Railroad, from the foot of Barclay Street, New York.

From the South, by the New Jersey Railroad to Newark, and there change from the New Jersey to the Morris and Essex Road. It is about ten minutes' walk from one station to the other. Conveyances will be found waiting at the Market Street Station for those who desire them.

From the West, students come by Easton, Pa., where connections are made with the Morris and Essex Railroad to Madison.

The Seminary grounds are distant about five minutes' walk from the station at Madison.

Letters of inquiry should be addressed to the President of Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, N. J.

We would call the especial attention of the able and benevolent members of our Church, to the importance of providing help for many young men who are looking to the Ministry, but who are unable to meet the expenses incident to attendance upon the Seminary, even for a short time. We are happy to announce that this urgent want has been remembered in one instance, which we name with the hope that it will be suggestive:

The late A. Minard, Esq., of Morristown, N. J., has bequeathed a sum sufficient to assist four students to the extent of one hundred dollars each, annually.

Mr. Drew has munificently provided for every want and expense, except the item of living; for this, in at least every fourth case, we must look to others, and it is a most urgent want. The "McClintock Association," composed of a number of ladies of New York and vicinity, have generously undertaken to attend to this interest in part. Several Conferences have Education Societies for the same object. We trust that these agencies will meet with merited support.

Course of Study—Admission.

The Regular Course of Study requires three years for its completion. It is arranged with reference to the attainments and studies of college graduates. It is earnestly desired that all students whose circumstances will allow them to obtain a college education, will do so before coming to the Seminary.

However, to meet the wants of those whose age, or other circumstances, may make such a previous collegiate course impossible, an Introductory Course of four years in the Classics and in Science is required, two years of which must be secured before coming to the Institution, and will be substantially the same as required for admission to college. The remaining two years will be conducted under instructors provided by the Institution, and will comprise the studies of the Freshman and Sophomore years, as follows:

Students wishing to pursue a Partial Course, may do so, on providing accommodations for themselves in the vicinity.

Candidates for admission to the Seminary Course must produce the diploma of A. B. from a college or university, or must pass an examination satisfactory to the Faculty in classical and general literature and science, as above specified.

Applicants for admission, who are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, must bring a certificate of local preacher's license, or a recommendation either from a quarterly conference or a leader's meeting, with the written concurrence of the Pastor and Presiding Elder. The form of recommendation authorized by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is as follows:

"We, the members of the Quarterly Conference of ..... hereby express our judgment that ..... is called of God to the work of the ministry, and we recommend him as a suitable person to become a student in the Drew Theological Seminary.

, President.

Secretary.

Members of other Churches must bring satisfactory written recommendations from ministers of the Churches to which they belong.

Five Years' Course.

To those who cannot possibly go through college, we would mention the advantages of our course. These are:

First—Two years' instruction in the classics and in science, preparatory to admission.

Second—Two years' preliminary instruction in the Institution, equivalent to the Freshman and Sophomore years in college.

Third—Three years' regular scientific study of Theology, including the full course, in which Hebrew, Greek, and, to some extent, Latin, are in constant use.

Such a course, faithfully gone through, must result in a degree of culture not inferior to that of the regular college curriculum, while, for the Minister of the Gospel, it has the double advantage of being secured in contact with the great problems of Theology, and of embracing the knowledge essential to his sacred calling.

T.—Apostolic Period; Period of Codification (evidence of Apostolical Fathers, Earliest Ecclesiastical Writers, Early Versions, First Heretics); Segregative Period (Acknowledged Books, Antilegomena, Heretical and Apocryphal Writings); Authoritative Period (4th century and onward); Era of Reformation (modern).

SACRED CRITICISM.—Original Authorities (MSS); Ancient Versions; Citations; Critical Conjecture; Canons of Criticism; History of Printed Text.

Senior Year.

INSPIRATION.—History of Opinion; Classification of Theories; Scriptural Statements on the Question; Definition of Terms; Dogmatic Statement of the True View.

INTERPRETATION.—Objects and Difficulties; Practical Canons of Hermeneutics; History of Interpretation; Select List of the best Commentaries, with Criticisms.

Department of Greek Exegesis.

Junior Year.

TEXT BOOKS.—Hahn's Greek Testament; Strong's Greek Harmony; Robinson's New Testament Lexicon.

REFERENCE BOOKS.—Green's Hand-book to the Grammar of the New Testament; Andrew's Life of our Lord; Neander's Planting and Training of the Church.

Middle Year.

TEXT BOOKS.—Greek Testament and Lexicon continued: Alexander's New Testament Literature.

Senior Year.

The text books are the same as in the Junior and Middle Years, and the students are referred to the best critical commentaries, ancient and modern.

METHOD.

During the first term of the Junior Year in connection with the Grammatical and Exegetical study of the Greek text, special attention is given to the harmony of the Gospel narratives; and during the second term, such selections from the Acts are read as bear most directly upon the Historical and Exegetical study of Paul's Epistles. A course of lectures on the difference between Classical and Hellenistic Greek is delivered to the Junior Class. Throughout the Middle Year, in addition to the Exegesis, New Testament Literature is studied, including a discussion of New Testament Philology. The Senior Year in this department is employed exclusively in Exegetical studies.

Historical Theology.

Junior Year.

TEXT BOOKS.—Smith's Old Testament History; Smith's Ancient History of the East; Rawlinson's Ancient History; Smith's New Testament History.

WORKS OF REFERENCE.—Kurtz's Sacred History; Rawlinson's Five Monarchies; Kurtz's History of the Old Covenant; Elliotts' Life of Christ; Coleman's Ancient Christianity.

Middle Year.

TEXT BOOKS.—Guericke's Church History (first part); Labberton's Historical Atlas.

WORKS OF REFERENCE.—Schaff's History of the Christian Church; Gieseler's Ecclesiastical History; Neander's History of the Christian Religion and Church; Smith's Chronological Tablès of Church History; Spruner's Historical Atlas.

Senior Year.

TEXT BOOKS.—Guericke's Church History [second part]: Shedd's History of Christian Doctrines: Hagenbach's History of the Church in the 18th and 19th Centuries.

METHOD.

In the Junior Year, lectures are given on other nations in relation to Israel, and on the interval of Jewish history between the close of the Old Testament Canon and the time of Christ. The condition of Palestine and the Roman Empire at the commencement of the Christian Era, is presented at the close of the year.

In the Middle Year attention is first bestowed on the Introduction to the study Church History, after which Christian Archæology and Art, with their bearing on the life and doctrines of the Church, are given. It is designed to give a limited course on the Comparative History of Religions.

In the Senior Year attention will be given to Ecclesiastical Statistics and Comparative Symbolics; also to the Life of Christ in connection with the recent controversies. Lectures on the History of the American Church will complete the year.

The use of an Historical Atlas is constantly required, both in attending the lectures and the use of text books. All the students are expected to furnish, at proper intervals, written essays bearing on the subjects under treatment.

Systematic Theology.

Junior Year.

TEXT BOOKS.—Haven's Mental Philosophy; Hopkin's Law of Love; Butler's Analogy.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Sir W. Hamilton's Lectures; Wayland's Moral Science; Moral Science by Alexander.

Middle Year.

TEXT BOOKS.—Watson's Institutes.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Paley's Natural Theology; Howe's Living Temple; Christian Theism, Thompson; Brown on the Creator; Bridgewater Treatises: Andrew's Life of Christ; Knapp's Theology; Hill's Lectures on Divinity.

Senior Year.

TEXT AND REFERENCE BOOKS as above, with Hodge's Theology; Edwards on the Will and Original Sin; Shedd's Essays, and History of Doctrines; Whedon on the Will; Bushnell's Vicarious Sacrifice; Bushnell's Nature and Supernatural; Latest Works on Person and Work of Christ.

METHOD.

In this department, the Junior Year is devoted to the study of Mental Philosophy, Moral Philosophy and Butler's Analogy. The Method includes recitations, and conversational Lectures. In the last weeks of the year, Lectures are delivered on the Nature, Importance and Method of Theological study, the spirit in which it should be conducted, and the general subject of Methodology.

Instruction during the Middle Year is exclusively by Lecture; the student is expected to read the Institutes of Watson, on the subjects discussed, and especially portions referred to for more particular examination.

The lectures comprise discussions of the Being of God, the Atheistic, Pantheistic, and Theistic positions and arguments on the subject, with special reference to later phases of thought and developments of Science; Attributes of God; Trinity; Persons in the Godhead; Evidences of Christianity, and correlated subjects; Christian Ethics.

The Senior Year is employed in the discussion of the most important phases of Anthropology; Man's Creation; His Place in Time and Order of Creation; His Peculiar Nature and Moral State; The Nature of His Probation; His Fall; Consequences to Himself; To His Posterity: Nature of Sin; Original Sin: A Comparison of Skeptical, Orthodox and Unorthodox Theories: Soteriology; Redemption, Its Need, Its Nature, Its Extent, Its Application: Justification by Faith; Regeneration; Full Sanctification: Eschatology; Immortality: Intermediate State; Resurrection; Final Judgment: Eternity and Nature of Heavenly Rewards; Final and Permanent Punishment of Sin.

Practical Theology.

Junior Year.

Text Books.—Russell & Murdoch's Vocal Culture; Fowler's English Language.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Rush on the Philosophy of the Human Voice; Crabb's Synonyms; Philological Works of Marsh, Trench and others; Cyclopædias of English Literature.

Middle Year.

TEXT BOOKS.—Catechisms of the Methodist Episcopal Church; Kidder's Homiletics; Russell's Pulpit Elocution.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Masterpieces of Pulpit Eloquence; Sermons of Wesley, Watson, Bunting, South, Saurin, Guthrie, Robertson, Summerfield, Payson, Beecher, McClintock.

Senior Year.

TEXT BOOKS.—Kidder's Christian Pastorate; Stevens' Church Polity; Discipline of the M. E. Church; Emory's History of the Discipline; Baker on the Discipline.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Hooker's Church Polity; Ante-Nicene Fathers; Daillie on the Fathers; Bangs' and Stevens' Histories of Methodism.

METHOD.

In the Junior Year special attention is given to the elements, principles and practice of vocal expression; also to the English language, with reference to the most effective production of written and oral discourse.

In the Middle Year the science of Catechetics is taught chiefly by lectures. The Sunday School Enterprise is also discussed in its most important theoretical and practical aspects. During the second term the science of Homiletics is studied systematically and thoroughly, in a text-book, accompanied by lectures and praxis on plans of discourses and the composition of sermons. In this connection a course of lectures is also delivered on the History of Preachers and Preaching; embodying reviews and criticisms of the sermons of the leading preachers of different periods, churches and countries. Students are also exercised in the analysis and criticism of the sermons of representative preachers.

In the Senior Year after a review of Homiletics, Pastoral Theology becomes a subject of careful instruction, both by means of text-books and lectures.

The following topics receive special attention: The History of Religious Offices; The Institution of the Christian Ministry; The Ministerial Call; Responsibility of the Pastoral Care; Qualities demanded in Pastors; Pastoral Duties, Agencies and Relations; Church Polity; Idea of the Church; Organization of the New Testament Church; Subsequent and Successive Forms of Church Government; Controversies on Church Polity; Origin and Character of Methodist Church Economy; Ritual and Ordinances of the Methodist Episcopal Church; The Administration of Discipline; Principles of Ecclesiastical Judicature; Forms and Process of Church Trials, Appeals, &c.

Church Enterprises; Missions; Education; Publishing Agencies; Tract Circulation; Sunday School Union; &c.

Practice in the various branches of Pulpit Elocution is continued throughout the year.

Religious Exercises.

At a quarter before nine o'clock, public prayers in the chapel are conducted by the members of the Faculty.

A regular devotional service is held on alternate Wednesday mornings, from nine till ten o'clock, participated in by the Faculty and students.

On the alternate Wednesday mornings there is preaching by a member of the Senior Class.

The students are divided into five religious classes, each of which holds weekly exercises, with one of their own number as leader.

There are two general prayer meetings each week, one on Sunday morning and one on Wednesday evening, conducted by the students.

Various other meetings for devotion and mutual exhortation are maintained by the students as a body, or by the classes separately.

Pastoral Work.

It is contrary to the order of the Seminary that any Student under the grade of Middle should take pastoral work, without the special action of the Faculty.

Modern Languages.

Instruction in the Modern Languages is afforded to such students as desire to study them.

Vocal Music.

Prof. Illsley, for many years an eminent teacher of Vocal and Instumental Music, gives instruction in vocal music to all students who desire it, free of charge.

Graduation.

Students who have the degree of A. B., or its equivalent in classical and scientific culture, and who complete the Seminary Course of three years, and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive the degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

Students who pursue the course including the Freshman and Sophomore years of college, and who likewise complete the Seminary Course and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive the Diploma of the Institution on graduation, and the degree of B. D. on election to Elders' Orders in an Annual Conference, and on application, accompanied by a theological thesis showing satisfactory literary progress.

Students who take a Partial Course and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive a certificate to that effect.

Expenses.

The expenses of the students will be brought as low as possible. Six dollars a year, in advance, must be paid towards incidental expenses. No charge is made for tuition, room rent, furniture, or use of the Library. Embury Hall, fitted up with all requisite conveniences, is allotted as a refectory for the use of students. Its administration is under the care of a matron and a committee of students. All the essential conveniences and comforts of home are thus provided at the lowest possible rates. The expense will thus be as low as the students choose to make it. During the past year board has been from $2.50 to $3.00 per week.

The students' rooms are neatly carpeted, furnished and provided with beds, bedding and linen. Fuel, lights, washing and pew rent must be paid for by the students. Married students can be accommodated with rooms for themselves, but not for their families.

Books and stationery are furnished at low prices.

Terms—Vacation.

The time fixed for the regular period of study is eight months, beginning on the third Thursday in September, and ending on the third Thursday in May.

It is divided into two terms by the Christmas Holidays.

Library.

The Library now contains about ten thousand volumes, including many of the fundamental works, both ancient and modern, in theological science. Additions will be regularly made. Arrangements are in progress for the purchase of the valuable library of the late Dr. McClintock, with a view to incorporate it with the Seminary Library. The libraries of the Professors, containing in the aggregate about fifteen thousand volumes, are also accessible to the students, under suitable restrictions.

Reading Room.

The Reading Room is furnished with most of the religious newspapers of the various denominations.

Literary Societies.

Two societies, "The McClintock Literary Society," and "The Philoponian Literary Association," are in active operation in the Institution. Their discussions cover the usual range of such associations. A standing Missionary Committee of the Societies has made good progress in the accumulation of missionary matter. A correspondence has been opened with all the prominent missionary societies of our own and foreign countries, and the Committee is regularly receiving their publications.

Extract from the Constitution of the Seminary.

Of Professorships, Scholarships, and Library Alcoves.

SECTION 1. Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of thirty thousand dollars, or more, for the purpose of founding a Professorship, shall have the privilege of naming such Professorship, which name shall not be altered thereafter.

SECTION 2. Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of five thousand dollars, or more, for the purpose of founding a Scholarship, shall have the privilege, not only of naming such Scholarship, but also of nominating, during his or their lifetime, the beneficiaries who are to be placed upon said foundation, who shall receive board as well as instruction gratuitously.

SECTION 3. Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of two thousand dollars, shall have the right of naming an Alcove in the Library, to be occupied by books purchased with the money so given or bequeathed.

Aid to Students.

We would call the special attention of the able and benevolent members of our Church, to the importance of providing help for many young men who are looking to the Ministry, but who are unable to meet the expenses incident to attendance upon the Seminary, even for a short time. We are happy to announce that this urgent want has been remembered in one instance, which we name with the hope that it will be suggestive: The late A. Minard, Esq., of Morristown, N. J., has bequeathed a sum sufficient to assist four students to the extent of one hundred dollars each annually.

Mr. Drew has munificently provided for every want and expense, except the item of living; for this, in at least every fourth case, we must look to others—and it is a most urgent want. The "McClintock Association," composed of a number of ladies of New York and vicinity, have generously undertaken to attend to this interest in part. Several Conferences have Education Societies for the same object. We trust that these agencies will meet with merited support.

Location of the Seminary.

The DREW THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY is located at Madison, New Jersey, upon the property formerly known as "The Forest." The situation is one of the most picturesque and healthful in the United States.

The Seminary Park contains ninety-five acres of land, a large proportion of which is highly ornamented with walks and drives, trees and shrubbery. On the corner contiguous to the village is the new and beautiful Methodist Episcopal Church. The Seminary buildings occupy a central position in the Park. They are:

1. MEAD HALL, the main edifice, containing the Chapel, the Lecture Rooms, and (until the Library building is erected) the Library.
2. ASBURY HALL, containing seventy-two rooms for students.

3. Embury Hall, containing the Refectory, Janitor's Residence, and numerous other apartments.

Flanking these buildings on either side, are the Professors' houses, occupied by members of the Faculty and their families.

It would scarcely have been possible to select a site commanding more positive advantages for the special purposes of such an institution. Combining the most agreeable scenery with the quiet and seclusion essential to advantageous study, it also has easy access to the great city of New York. Hence students desiring to visit the book or mission rooms of the church, to consult public libraries, museums of science, art, and antiquities, or to observe metropolitan life and institutions, have the opportunity of doing so as a recreation, when not occupied with school duties. They are thus enabled to secure whatever real advantages may be derived from personal acquaintance with the great centre of business and population, without being constantly subjected to the numerous disadvantages inseparable from the bustle and excitements of cities.

Modes of Access.

Students coming by way of New York reach Madison by the Morris and Essex Railroad, from the foot of Barclay Street, New York.

From the South, by the New Jersey Railroad to Newark, and there change from the New Jersey to the Morris and Essex Road. It is about ten minutes' walk from one station to the other. Conveyances will be found waiting at the Market Street Station for those who desire them.

From the West, students come by Easton, Pa., or Binghamton, N. Y., where connections are made with the Morris and Essex Railroad to Madison.

The Seminary grounds are distant about five minutes' walk from the station at Madison.

Letters of inquiry should be addressed to the President of Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, N. J.

Course of Study.—Admission.

The Regular Course of Study requires three years for its completion. It is arranged with reference to the attainments and studies of college graduates. It is earnestly desired that all students whose circumstances will allow them to obtain a college education, will do so before coming to the Seminary.

However, to meet the wants of those whose age, or other circumstances, may make such a previous collegiate course impossible, an Introductory Course of four years in the Classics and in Science is required, two years of which must be secured before coming to the Institution, and will be substantially the same as required for admission to college. The remaining two years will be conducted under instructors provided by the Institution, and will comprise the studies of the Freshman and Sophomore years, as follows:

Freshman Year.

FIRST TERM.	SECOND TERM.
Algebra, . . . Loomis.	Geometry, . . Loomis.
Livy, . . . Lincoln.	Trigonometry, . Greenleaf.
Selections from the Greek Historians, . Felton.	Horace, . . . Lincoln.
Greek Grammar, . Hadley.	Latin Prose Composition, Harkness or Arnold.
History of Greece, . Smith.	Homer's Iliad, . . Owen.
	Greek Prose Composition, Arnold.
	History of Rome, . Liddell.
	Rhetorical Exercises.—Exercises in Elocution and English Composition.

Sophomore Year.

FIRST TERM.	SECOND TERM.
Analytical Geometry,	Mechanics, . . Smith.
Cicero de Officiis, . Thacher.	Plautus, . . Harrington.
Terence or Juvenal,	Latin Prose Composition, Harkness or Arnold.
Latin Prose Composition, Harkness or Arnold.	Plato's Phædo, . Hermann.
Æschines and Demosthenes on the Crown, . Champlin.	Æschylus' Prometheus, Woolsey.
Greek Prose Composition, Arnold.	Greek Prose Composition, Arnold.
Rhetoric, . . Haven.	Logic, . . . Atwater.
	Natural Philosophy, . Johnston.
	Rhetorical Exercises.—Essays and Declamations throughout the year.

Students wishing to pursue a Partial Course, may do so, on providing accommodations for themselves in the vicinity.

Candidates for admission to the Seminary Course must produce the diploma of A. B. from a college or university, or must pass an examination satisfactory to the Faculty in classical and general literature and science, as above specified.

Applicants for admission who are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, must bring a certificate of local preacher's license, or a recommendation either from a quarterly conference or a leaders' meeting, with the written concurrence of the Pastor and Presiding Elder. The form of recommendation authorized by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is as follows :

"We, the members of the Quarterly Conference of ..... hereby express our judgment that ..... is called of God to the work of the ministry, and we recommend him as a suitable person to become a student in the Drew Theological Seminary.

....., President.

....., Secretary.

Members of other Churches must bring satisfactory written recommendations from ministers of the Churches to which they belong.

Five Years' Course.

To those who cannot possibly go through college, we would mention the advantages of our course. These are :

First—Two years' instruction in the classics and in science, preparatory to admission.

Second—Two years' preliminary instruction in the Institution, equivalent to the Freshman and Sophomore years in college.

Third—Three years' regular scientific study of Theology, including the full course, in which Hebrew, Greek, and, to some extent, Latin, are in constant use.

Such a course, faithfully gone through, must result in a degree of culture not inferior to that of the regular college curriculum, while, for the Minister of the Gospel, it has the double advantage of being secured in contact with the great problems of Theology, and of embracing the knowledge essential to his sacred calling.

TEXT BOOKS.—Greek Testament and Lexicon continued; Alexander's New Testament Literature.

REFERENCE BOOKS.—Sophocles' Greek Lexicon of the Roman and Byzantine Periods; Winter's New Testament Grammar; Trench's New Testament Synonyms.

Senior Year.

The text books are the same as in the Junior and Middle Years, and the students are referred to the best critical commentaries, ancient and modern.

Method.

During the first term of the Junior Year, in connection with the Grammatical and Exegetical study of the Greek text, special attention is given to the harmony of the Gospel narratives; and during the second term, such selections from the Acts are read as bear most directly upon the Historical and Exegetical study of Paul's Epistles. A course of lectures on the difference between Classical and Hellenistic Greek is delivered to the Junior Class. Throughout the Middle Year, in addition to the Exegesis, New Testament Literature is studied, including a discussion of New Testament Philology. The Senior Year in this department is employed exclusively in Exegetical studies.

Historical Theology.

Junior Year.

TEXT BOOKS.—Smith's Old Testament History; Smith's Ancient History of the East; Rawlinson's Ancient History; Smith's New Testament History.

WORKS OF REFERENCE.—Kurtz's Sacred History; Rawlinson's Five Monarchies; Kurtz's History of the Old Covenant; Elliotts' Life of Christ; Coleman's Ancient Christianity.

Middle Year.

TEXT BOOKS.—Guericke's Church History (first part); Labberton's Historical Atlas.

WORKS OF REFERENCE.—Schaff's History of the Christian Church; Gieseler's Ecclesiastical History; Neander's History of the Christian Religion and Church; Smith's Chronological Tables of Church History; Spruner's Historical Atlas.

Senior Year.

TEXT BOOKS,—Guericke's Church History (second part); Shedd's History of Christian Doctrines; Hagenbach's History of the Church in the 18th and 19th Centuries.

Method.

In the Junior Year, lectures are given on other nations in relation to Israel, and on the interval of Jewish history between the close of the Old Testament

Canon and the time of Christ. The condition of Palestine and the Roman Empire at the commencement of the Christian Era, is presented at the close of the year.

In the Middle Year, attention is first bestowed on the Introduction to the study Church History, after which Christian Archæology and Art, with their bearing on the life and doctrines of the Church, are given. It is designed to give a limited course on the Comparative History of Religions.

In the Senior Year, attention will be given to Ecclesiastical Statistics and Comparative Symbolics; also to the Life of Christ in connection with the recent controversies. Lectures on the History of the American Church will complete the year.

The use of an Historical Atlas is constantly required, both in attending the lectures and the use of text books. All the students are expected to furnish, at proper intervals, written essays bearing on the subjects under treatment.

Systematic Theology.

Junior Year.

Text Books.—Haven's Mental Philosophy; Hopkin's Law of Love; Butler's Analogy.

Books of Reference.—Sir W. Hamilton's Lectures; Wayland's Moral Science; Moral Science by Alexander.

Middle Year.

Text Books.—Watson's Institutes.

Senior Year.

TEXT AND REFERENCE BOOKS as above, with Hodge's Theology; Edwards on the Will and Original Sin; Shedd's Essays, and History of Doctrines; Whedon on the Will; Bushnell's Vicarious Sacrifice; Bushnell's Nature and Supernatural; Latest Works on Person and Work of Christ.

Method.

In this department, the Junior Year is devoted to the study of Mental Philosophy, Moral Philosophy and Butler's Analogy. The Method includes recitations, and conversational Lectures. In the last weeks of the year, Lectures are delivered on the Nature, Importance and Method of Theological study, the spirit in which it should be conducted, and the general subject of Methodology.

Instruction during the Middle Year is exclusively by Lecture; the student is expected to read the Institutes of Watson, on the subjects discussed, and especially portions referred to for more particular examination.

The lectures comprise discussions of the Being of God, the Atheistic, Pantheistic, and Theistic positions and arguments on the subject, with special reference to later phases of thought and developments of Science; Attributes of God; Trinity; Persons in the Godhead; Evidences of Christianity, and correlated subjects; Christian Ethics.

The Senior Year is employed in the discussion of the most important phases of Anthropology; Man's Creation; His Place in Time and Order of Creation; His Peculiar Nature and Moral State; The Nature of His Probation; His Fall; Consequences to Himself; To His Posterity; Nature of Sin; Original Sin; A Comparison of Sceptical, Orthodox and Unorthodox Theories; Soteriology; Redemption, Its Need, Its Nature, Its Extent, Its Application; Justification by Faith; Regeneration; Full Sanctification; Eschatology; Immortality; Intermediate State; Resurrection; Final Judgment; Eternity and Nature of Heavenly Rewards; Final and Permanent Punishment of Sin.

Practical Theology.

Junior Year.

Text Books.—Russell & Murdoch's Vocal Culture; Fowler's English Language.

Books of Reference.—Rush on the Philosophy of the Human Voice; Crabb's Synonyms; Philological Works of Marsh, Trench and others; Cyclopædias of English Literature.

Middle Year.

Text Books.—Catechisms of the Methodist Episcopal Church; Kidder's Homiletics; Russell's Pulpit Elocution.

Books of Reference.—Masterpieces of Pulpit Eloquence; Sermons of Wesley, Watson, Bunting, South, Saurin, Guthrie, Robertson, Summerfield, Payson, Beecher, McClintock.

Senior Year.

TEXT BOOKS.—Kidder's Christian Pastorate; Stevens' Church Polity; Discipline of the M. E. Church; Emory's History of the Discipline; Baker on the Discipline.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Hooker's Church Polity; Ante-Nicene Fathers; Daillie on the Fathers; Bangs' and Stevens' Histories of Methodism.

Method.

In the Junior Year, special attention is given to the elements, principles and practice of vocal expression; also to the English language, with reference to the most effective production of written and oral discourse.

In the Middle Year, the science of Catechetics is taught chiefly by lectures. The Sunday School Enterprise is also discussed in its most important theoretical and practical aspects. During the second term the science of Homiletics is studied systematically and thoroughly, in a text-book, accompanied by lectures and praxes on plans of discourses and the composition of sermons. In this connection a course of lectures is also delivered on the History of Preachers and Preaching; embodying reviews and criticisms of the sermons of the leading preachers of different periods, churches and countries. Students are also exercised in the analysis and criticism of the sermons of representative preachers.

In the Senior Year, after a review of Homiletics, Pastoral Theology becomes a subject of careful instruction, both by means of text-books and lectures.

The following topics receive special attention : The History of Religious Offices ; The Institution of the Christian Ministry ; The Ministerial Call ; Responsibility of the Pastoral Care ; Qualities demanded in Pastors ; Pastoral Duties, Agencies and Relations ; Church Polity ; Idea of the Church ; Organization of the New Testament Church ; Subsequent and Successive Forms of Church Government ; Controversies on Church Polity ; Origin and Character of Methodist Church Economy ; Ritual and Ordinances of the Methodist Episcopal Church ; The Administration of Discipline ; Principles of Ecclesiastical Judicature ; Forms and Process of Church Trials, Appeals, &c.

Church Enterprises ; Missions ; Education ; Publishing Agencies ; Tract Circulation ; Sunday School Union, &c.

Practice in the various branches of Pulpit Elocution is continued throughout the year.

Religious Exercises.

At a quarter before nine o'clock, public prayers in the chapel are conducted by the members of the Faculty.

A regular devotional service is held on alternate Wednesday mornings, from nine till ten o'clock, participated in by the Faculty and students.

On the alternate Wednesday mornings there is preaching by a member of the Senior Class.

The students are divided into five religious classes, each of which holds weekly exercises, with one of their own number as leader.

There are two general prayer meetings each week, one on Sunday morning and one on Wednesday evening, conducted by the students.

Various other meetings for devotion and mutual exhortation are maintained by the students as a body, or by the classes separately.

Pastoral Work.

It is contrary to the order of the Seminary that any Student under the grade of Middle should take pastoral work, without the special action of the Faculty.

Modern Languages.

Instruction in the Modern Languages is afforded to such students as desire to study them.

Vocal Music.

Prof. Illsley, for many years an eminent teacher of Vocal and Instrumental Music, gives instruction in vocal music to all students who desire it, free of charge.

Graduation.

Students who have the degree of A. B., or its equivalent, in classical and scientific culture, and who complete the Seminary Course of three years, and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive the degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

Students who pursue the course, including the Freshman and Sophomore years of college, and who likewise complete the Seminary Course and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive the Diploma of the Institution on graduation, and the degree of B. D. on election to Elders' Orders in an Annual Conference, and on application, accompanied by a theological thesis showing satisfactory literary progress.

Students who take a Partial Course and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive a certificate to that effect.

Expenses.

The expenses of the students will be brought as low as possible. Six dollars a year, in advance, must be paid towards incidental expenses. No charge is made for tuition, room rent, furniture, or use of the Library. Embury Hall, fitted up with all requisite conveniences, is allotted as a refectory for the use of students. Its administration is under the care of a matron and a committee of students. All the essential conveniences and comforts of home are thus provided at the lowest possible rates. The expense will thus be as low as the students choose to make it. During the past year board has been from $2.50 to $3.00 per week.

The students' rooms are neatly carpeted, furnished and provided with beds, bedding and linen. Fuel, lights, washing and pew-rent must be paid for by the students. Married students can be accommodated with rooms for themselves, but not for their families.

Books and stationery are furnished at low prices.

Terms—Vacation.

The time fixed for the regular period of study is eight months, beginning on the third Thursday in September, and ending on the third Thursday in May. It is divided into two terms by the Christmas Holidays.

Library.

The Library now contains about ten thousand volumes, including many of the fundamental works, both ancient and modern, in theological science. Additions will be regularly made. The libraries of the Professors, containing in the aggregate about fifteen thousand volumes, are also accessible to the students, under suitable restrictions.

Reading Room.

The Reading Room is furnished with most of the religious newspapers of the various denominations.

Literary Societies.

Three societies, "The McClintock Literary Society," "The Philoponian Literary Association," and "The Foster Lyceum," are in active operation in the Institution. Their discussions cover the usual range of such associations. A standing Missionary Committee of the Societies has made good progress in the accumulation of missionary matter. A correspondence has been opened with all the prominent missionary societies of our own and foreign countries, and the Committee is regularly receiving their publications.

Extract from the Constitution of the Seminary.

Of Professorships, Scholarships, and Library Alcoves.

SECTION 1. Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of thirty thousand dollars, or more, for the purpose of founding a Professorship, shall have the privilege of naming such Professorship, which name shall not be altered thereafter.

SECTION 2. Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of five thousand dollars, or more, for the purpose of founding a Scholarship, shall have the privilege, not only of naming such Scholarship, but also of nominating, during his or their lifetime, the beneficiaries who are to be placed upon said foundation, who shall receive board as well as instruction gratuitously.

SECTION 3. Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of two thousand dollars, shall have the right of naming an Alcove in the Library, to be occupied by books purchased with the money so given or bequeathed.

Aid to Students.

We would call the special attention of the able and benevolent members of our Church, to the importance of providing help for many young men who are looking to the Ministry, but who are unable to meet the expenses incident to attendance upon the Seminary, even for a short time. We are happy to announce that this urgent want has been remembered in one instance, which we name with the hope that it will be suggestive: The late A. Minard, Esq., of Morristown, N. J., has bequeathed a sum sufficient to assist four students to the extent of one hundred dollars each annually.

Mr. Drew has munificently provided for every want and expense, except the item of living; for this, in at least every fourth case, we must look to others—and it is a most urgent want. The "McClintock Association," composed of a number of ladies of New York and vicinity, have generously undertaken to attend to this interest in part. Several Conferences have Education Societies for the same object. We trust that these agencies will meet with merited support.

Location of the Seminary.

The DREW THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY is located at Madison, New Jersey, upon the property formerly known as "The Forest." The situation is one of the most picturesque and healthful in the United States.

The Seminary Park contains ninety-five acres of land, a large proportion of which is highly ornamented with walks and drives, trees and shrubbery. On the corner contiguous to the village is the new and beautiful Methodist Episcopal Church. The Seminary buildings occupy a central position in the Park. They are:

1. MEAD HALL, the main edifice, containing the Chapel, the Lecture Rooms, and (until the Library building is erected) the Library.
2. ASBURY HALL, containing seventy-two rooms for students.
3. EMBURY HALL, containing the Refectory, Janitor's Residence, and numerous other apartments.

Flanking these buildings on either side, are the Professors' houses, occupied by members of the Faculty and their families.

It would scarcely have been possible to select a site commanding more positive advantages for the special purposes of such an institution. Combining the most agreeable scenery with the quiet and seclusion essential to advantageous study, it also has easy access to the great city of New York. Hence students desiring to visit the book or mission rooms of the church, to consult public libraries, museums of science, art, and antiquities, or to observe metropolitan life and institutions, have the opportunity of doing so as a recreation, when not occupied with school duties. They are thus enabled to secure whatever real advantages may be derived from personal acquaintance with the great centre of business and population, without being constantly subjected to the numerous disadvantages inseparable from the bustle and excitements of cities.

Modes of Access.

Students coming by way of New York reach Madison by the Morris and Essex Railroad, from the foot of Barclay Street, New York.

From the South, by the New Jersey Railroad to Newark, and there change from the New Jersey to the Morris and Essex Road. It is about ten minutes' walk from one station to the other. Conveyances will be found waiting at the Market Street Station for those who desire them.

From the West, students come by Easton, Pa., or Binghamton, N. Y., where connections are made with the Morris and Essex Railroad to Madison.

The Seminary grounds are distant about five minutes' walk from the station at Madison.

Letters of inquiry should be addressed to the President of Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, N. J.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—Pre-Christian History, Other Nations in relation to Israel; Old Testament History; Interregnum of Inspiration; New Testament History; Lives of Christ and the Apostles; Christian Archæology and Art.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Psychology and Ethics; Relations of Philosophy to Theology; Nature and Scope of Theological Study.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Vocal Culture; Systematic Elocution; English Philology; Exercises in Writing, and Extemporaneous Speaking.

II.—MIDDLE YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Hebrew Bible continued (Selections from the Psalms, Job, and Ecclesiastes); Canon, Criticism, Versions.

NEW TESTAMENT LITERATURE.—Exegesis of Corinthians, Ephesians, and 1st John; New Testament Literature and Philology; Hermeneutics.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—Church History to the Reformation; History of Doctrines; History of Missions; Comparative History of Religions.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Introduction to Theology: Its Nature, Method, and Sources; The Being and Attributes of God.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Catechetics; The Sunday-school Enterprise; Homiletics and Homiletical Composition; Elocution continued, with Exercises in Extemporaneous Addresses and Discussions.

III.—SENIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Hebrew Bible and Exegesis (Canticles, selections from the Prophetical Books, Deborah's Ode); Biblical Chaldee; Inspiration and Interpretation with reference to recent controversies.

NEW TESTAMENT LITERATURE.—Leviticus in the LXX.; Hebrews; Romans; Greek Fathers; Introduction to Manuscript Study.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—Church History completed; History of Doctrines; Comparative Symbolics; Statistics; Discussions of the Life of Christ from the Modern Point of View.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Theology continued; Anthropology; Soteriology; Eschatology; Polemics.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Pastoral Theology; inclusive of the Pastoral Office and Care; Ministerial Duties; Church Polity, Worship, Ritual and Ordinances; Church Enterprises and the Administration of Church Discipline; Homiletics reviewed; Pulpit Elocution, the Composition of Sermons, Preaching and Homiletical Criticism.

Instruction by Departments.

I.—HEBREW EXEGESIS.

JUNIOR YEAR.

TEXT-BOOKS.—Hahn's Hebrew Bible; Gesenius' or Fuerst's Hebrew Lexicon; Strong's Epitome of Hebrew Grammar; Green's Introductory Hebrew Grammar.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Jahn's Biblical Archæology; Coleman's Biblical Geography; Horne's Introduction; Angus' Bible Handbook; Ayre's Treasury of Bible Knowledge.

METHOD.—Critical study of the text-books, supplemented by lectures on the following topics: Hebrew Archæology.—Civil and religious institutions; employments; domestic and social usages; safeguards of life, property, and franchise; treatment of criminals, enemies, and corpses. Biblical Chronology.—Patriarchs; profane chronology; reigns of Judah and Israel; Daniel's seventy weeks; Christ's ministry; synchronisms in the Acts. Biblical Geography.—Eden; ethnography; route of the Israelites; Palestine in different ages; Jerusalem; Temple; Christ's journeys; Paul's tours. Biblical Introduction.—An account of the author, date, occasion, contents, and difficulties of each Book of Scripture, in order. Such of the above topics as admit of it are illustrated by maps and diagrams.

MIDDLE YEAR.

TEXT-BOOKS.—Hebrew Bible and Lexicon (continued); Green's Hebrew Grammar.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Westcott's New Testament Canon; Davidson's Sacred Criticism; Alexander on the Psalms.

METHOD.—Study of the text-books, with lectures on Canon of the O. T.—Traditional period; formative period; editorial period. Canon of the N. T.—Apostolic period; period of codification (evidences of Apostolic Fathers, earliest ecclesiastical writers, early versions, first heretics); segregative period (acknowledged books, antilegomena, heretical and apocryphal writings); authoritative period (4th century and onward); era of Reformation (modern). Sacred Criticism.—Original authorities (MSS.); ancient versions; citations; critical conjecture; canons of criticism; history of printed text.

SENIOR YEAR.

TEXT-BOOKS.—Strong's Epitome of Chaldee Grammar (in addition to Hebrew Bible, Lexicon, and Grammar).

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Lee on Inspiration; Davidson's Sacred Hermeneutics; Keil and Delitzsch on Isaiah and the Minor Prophets; Stuart on Daniel.

METHOD.—Textual study, with lectures on Inspiration.—History of opinion; classification of theories; Scriptural statements on the question; definition of terms; dogmatic statement of the true view. Interpretation.—Objects and difficulties; practical canons of hermeneutics; history of interpretation; select list of the best commentaries, with criticisms.

The extended tour in Europe and the East, undertaken during the present year by the Professor of this Department, will enable him henceforth to enrich the above course of lectures with the results of personal observations and explorations. He expects to return before the opening of the next Seminary year.

II.—GREEK EXEGESIS AND NEW TESTAMENT LITERATURE.

JUNIOR YEAR.

TEXT-BOOKS.—Tischendorf's Greek Testament; Strong's Greek Harmony; Robinson's New Testament Lexicon.

REFERENCE-BOOKS.—Andrew's Life of our Lord; Neander's Planting and Training of the Church.

METHOD.—During the first term of the Junior Year, in connection with the grammatical and exegetical study of the Greek text, special attention is given to the harmony of the Gospel narratives; and during the second term, such selections from the Acts are read as bear most directly upon the historical and exegetical study of Paul's Epistles. A course of lectures on the difference between Classical and Hellenistic Greek is delivered to the Junior Class.

MIDDLE YEAR.

TEXT-BOOKS.—Greek Testament and Lexicon as before; Buttman's New Testament Greek Grammar.

REFERENCE-BOOKS.—Sophocles' Greek Lexicon of the Roman and Byzantine Periods; Winer's New Testament Grammar; Trench's New Testament Synonyms.

METHOD.—Throughout the Middle Year, in addition to the Exegesis, New Testament Literature is studied, including a discussion of New Testament Philology. The Literature and Hermeneutics are taught mostly by lectures.

SENIOR YEAR.

Text-Books and Method are for the most part the same as in the Junior and Middle Years. The best books for study and reference on the New Testament are indicated during the course.

III.—HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.

JUNIOR YEAR.

TEXT-BOOKS.—Smith, Old Testament History; Smith, Ancient History of the East: Rawlinson, Ancient History: Smith, New Testament History.

WORKS OF REFERENCE.—Kurtz, Sacred History; Rawlinson, Five Monarchies; Kurtz, History of the Old Covenant; Ellicott, Life of Christ; Coleman, Ancient Christianity.

METHOD.—Lectures are given on other nations in relation to Israel, and on the interval of Jewish history between the close of the Old Testament Canon and the time of Christ. The condition of Palestine and the Roman Empire at the commencement of the Christian Era, is presented at the close of the year.

MIDDLE YEAR.

TEXT-BOOKS.—Hase, Church History (Classical and Mediæval Periods); Labberton, Historical Atlas.

WORKS OF REFERENCE.—Schaff, History of the Christian Church; Gieseler, Ecclesiastical History; Neander, History of the Christian Religion and Church; Smith, Chronological Tables of Church History; Spruner, Historical Atlas.

METHOD.—Attention is first bestowed on the Introduction to the Study of Church History. Afterward, Christian Archæology and Art, with their bearing on the life and doctrines of the Church, are given. It is designed to give a limited course on the Comparative History of Religions.

SENIOR YEAR.

TEXT-BOOKS.—Hase, Church History (Post-Reformation Period); Shedd, History of Christian Doctrines; Hagenbach, History of the Church in the 18th and 19th Centuries.

REFERENCE-BOOKS.—Dorner, History of Protestant Theology; Reuss, Christian Doctrine.

METHOD.—Attention is given to Ecclesiastical Statistics and Comparative Symbolics; also to the Life of Christ in connection with the recent controversies. Lectures on the History of the American Church will complete the year. The use of a Historical Atlas is constantly required, both in attending the lectures and the use of text-books. All the students are expected to furnish, at proper intervals, written essays bearing on the subjects under treatment.

IV.—SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.

JUNIOR YEAR.

TEXT-BOOKS.—Haven's Mental Philosophy; Hopkin's Law of Love; Butler's Analogy.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Hamilton's Philosophy; Porter's Human Intellect; Whedon on the Will; Edwards do.; Jouffroy's Introduction to Ethics; Wayland's Moral Science; Wuttke's Christian Ethics.

METHOD.—The method of instruction combines recitations and conversational lectures. Special attention is given to the relations of Philosophy to Theology. Lectures are given on the Will, and on the nature and scope of Theological Study.

MIDDLE YEAR.

TEXT-BOOK.—Watson's Theological Institutes.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Paley's Natural Theology; Chadbourne's do.; Chalmers' Moral and Intellectual Constitution of Man; Thompson's Christian Theism; Knapp's Christian Theology; Hill's Divinity; Hodge's Systematic Theology.

METHOD.—The mode of instruction is by lectures, with thorough review. Students are directed to a careful reading of appropriate parts of the text-book. Topics of discussion, in order, are: The nature, method, and sources of theology; the being of God, together with leading anti-theistic assumptions or theories—atheism, pantheism, positivism, evolutionism; the nature and attributes of God; the Trinity; the divinity of Christ; the Holy Spirit; and the person of Christ.

SENIOR YEAR.

TEXT-BOOK.—Watson's Theological Institutes.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Müller on the Christian Doctrine of Sin; Edwards on Original Sin; Princeton Essays; Shedd's Essays; Cunningham's Historical Theology; Ritschl's Reconciliation and Justification; Knapp, Hill, and Hodge, as above.

METHOD.—The same method of instruction is pursued as in the middle year. Discussions embrace the more important questions of Christian Theology; the origin, primitive state, probation, and fall of man; the depravity of the race—its nature, source, ground, consequence; the doctrine of sin; the atonement—its necessity, nature, sufficiency, extent; its benefits in justification, regeneration, assurance, sanctification; immortality, intermediate state, second advent, resurrection, judgment, and final destinies. Polemic Theology receives special attention in connection with the discussion of doctrines, instead of a separate treatment.

V.—PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.

JUNIOR YEAR.

TEXT-BOOKS.—Russell and Murdoch's Vocal Culture; Fowler's English Language; Hart's English and American Literature.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Rush on the Philosophy of the Human Voice; Crabb's Synonyms; Philological Works of Marsh, Trench, and others; Cyclopædias of English and American Literature.

METHOD.—The requirements of this Department in the Junior Year are chiefly preparatory to the more specific work of the following years. 1.—Special attention is given to the elements, principles, and practice of vocal expression; the design being to put every student on a course of self-cultivation and progressive improvement in true and effective oratory. 2.—An opportunity is given for advanced and critical study of the English language, with the special object of enabling young men to attain the highest efficiency in its use, both in writing and in oral discourse. 3.—By means of lectures and illustrative teaching, it is sought to introduce students to a practical knowledge of Bibliography, and their privileges in connection with books. 4.—By a condensed but systematic course in English and American Literature, the celebrated books and authors of successive periods are brought under review, with reference to their claims on the time and attention of ministers.

MIDDLE YEAR.

TEXT-BOOKS.—Catechisms of the Methodist Episcopal Church; Kidder's Homiletics; Russell's Vocal Culture; Bacon's Manual of Gesture.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Masterpieces of Pulpit Eloquence; Sermons of Wesley, Watson, Bunting, South, Saurin, Guthrie, Robertson, Summerfield, Payson, Beecher, McClintock, and others.

METHOD.—The science of Catechetics is taught chiefly by lectures. The Sunday-school Enterprise is also discussed in its most important theoretical and practical aspects. During the second term the science of Homiletics is studied systematically and thoroughly, in a text-book, accompanied by lectures and praxes on plans of discourses and the composition of sermons. In this connection a course of lectures is also delivered on the History of Preachers and Preaching; embodying reviews and criticisms of the sermons of the leading preachers of different periods, Churches, and countries. Students are also exercised in the analysis and criticism of the sermons of representative preachers.

SENIOR YEAR.

TEXT-BOOKS.—Kidder's Christian Pastorate; Stevens' Church Polity; Discipline of the M. E. Church; Emory's History of the Discipline; Baker on the Discipline; Russell's Pulpit Elocution.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Hooker's Church Polity; Ante-Nicene Fathers; Daillie on the Fathers; Bangs' and Stevens' Histories of Methodism; Watson's Institutes, Part IV.

METHOD.—Instruction is given in Pastoral Theology both by text-books and lectures. The following topics receive special attention: History of religious offices; institution of the Christian ministry; ministerial call; responsibility of the pastoral care; qualities demanded in pastors; pastoral duties, agencies, and relations: Church polity; idea of the Church; organization of the New Testament Church; subsequent and successive forms of Church government; controversies on Church polity; origin and character of Methodist Church economy; ritual and ordinances of the Methodist Episcopal Church; administration of discipline; principles of ecclesiastical judicature; forms and process of Church trials and appeals; Church enterprises; missions; education; publishing agencies; tract circulation; Sunday-school Union. Practice in the various branches of Pulpit Elocution is continued throughout the year, together with continued exercises in homiletical composition and criticism.

TWO YEARS' PRELIMINARY COURSE.

The above course of study, in order to its complete mastery, demands full collegiate preparation; however, to meet the wants of those whose age or circumstances may make a previous collegiate course impracticable, a two years' course of instruction in Language and Science is provided, comprising the Classics, the science of Geology, and, to a limited extent, that of Mathematics. While it is proposed to make this course productive, in a good measure, of that breadth of scholarship, facility of expression, and discipline of mind, which the study of language and science secures, it will also be the aim, so far as possible, to select such studies as will lead the mind of the student into lines of thought that will forecast the Theological Course. It is intended to combine, in the course of classical studies, both the elevated and almost Christian philosophy of such writers as Seneca, and the real Christian teachings of some of the Church Fathers, such as Lactantius, thus securing the double object of classical discipline and habits of religious thought.

This course, faithfully prosecuted, must result in a high degree of culture, while, for the Minister of the Gospel, it has the advantage of being secured in contact with the great problems of Theology.

General Information.

RELIGIOUS EXERCISES.

At a quarter before nine o'clock, public prayers in the chapel are conducted by the members of the Faculty. Wednesday mornings, from nine until ten, are devoted alternately to prayer-meetings, and to preaching by members of the Senior Class in presence of the Faculty and students.

The students are divided into five religious classes, each of which holds weekly exercises, with one of their own number as leader.

There are two general prayer-meetings each week, one on Sunday morning and one on Wednesday evening, conducted by the students.

Various other meetings for devotion and mutual exhortation are maintained by the students as a body, or by the classes separately.

ADMISSION.

Candidates for admission to the Regular Seminary Course must produce the diploma of A.B. from a college or university, or must pass an examination satisfactory to the Faculty in classical and general literature and science.

Applicants for admission who are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, must bring a certificate of local preacher's license, or a recommendation either from a quarterly conference or a leader's meeting, with the written concurrence of the Pastor and Presiding Elder. The form of recommendation authorized by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is as follows: "We, the members of the Quarterly Conference of ——— ———, hereby express our judgment that ——— ——— is called of God to the work of the ministry, and we recommend him as a suitable person to become a student in the Drew Theological Seminary."

This must be signed by the President and Secretary of the Quarterly Conference. Members of other Churches must bring satisfactory recommendations from ministers of the Churches to which they belong.

GRADUATION.

Students who have the degree of A.B., or its equivalent, in classical and scientific culture, and who complete the Seminary Course of three years, and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive the degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

Students who pursue the course, including the Freshman and Sophomore years of college, and who likewise complete the Seminary Course and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive the Diploma of the Institution on graduation, and the degree of B.D. on election to Elders' Orders in an Annual Conference, and on application, accompanied by a theological thesis showing satisfactory literary progress.

Students who take a Special Course and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive a certificate to that effect.

SPECIAL ELOCUTIONARY EXERCISES.

An avowed object of this Institution is to train young men with a view to their becoming ready and efficient extemporaneous preachers. Elocution, therefore, is taught systematically, and by progressive course. Besides this system of study and practice, arrangements are made to furnish each year a special course of instruction and drill from one of the best practical teachers of elocution in the country.

For the ensuing year, Professor MARK BAILEY, of New-Haven has been engaged to conduct these special exercises, and during their continuance all needful concessions of time and opportunity will be granted those students who are prepared for, and anxious to profit personally by, the oratorical training to which the Professor devotes his exclusive attention.

NON-RESIDENT LECTURERS.

Besides the regular resident corps of instructors, it is contemplated to continue the present arrangement of providing Lecturers, representative of different denominations and various fields of activity, to present special topics of vital interest and importance to young men preparing for the ministry.

ORIENTAL AND MODERN LANGUAGES.

In addition to the regular study of the Hebrew and Greek anguages, in connection with the two exegetical departments, nstruction is given to those desiring it in the Arabic, Syriac, nd Sanscrit. Moreover, in order to meet the new demands rising from the enlarged mission fields of the Church, the same pportunity is afforded in German, French, Italian, and Spanish. n neither case is there additional expense to the student.

VOCAL MUSIC.

Prof. Lincoln, of New-York, for many years an eminent teacher f Vocal and Instrumental Music, gives instruction in vocal nusic to all students who desire it, free of charge.

LIBRARY.

1. The Library is unusually rich in works adapted to the consultation and reading of students for the ministry. There is no department of theological literature which is not well represented. Special care has been bestowed to provide introductory works, such as Bibliography and Cyclopædias, both general and special, in the English, German, and French languages; and on these, as a foundation, the entire library has been constructed. Not to mention other works, there are complete sets of the Abbé Migne's uniform edition of the Greek and Latin Fathers, the Oxford translation of the Fathers, Wesley's Christian Library, Tischendorf's Codex Sinaiticus, and the collected works of the Reformers and the later leading writers of Europe and America. There are likewise full sets of the prominent reviews and periodicals, both foreign and American.

2. The Seminary has been fortunate in securing the collection of the Rev. Dr. Stevens, used by him in the preparation of his Histories, and of Creamer's unrivaled collection of Hymnology. During the current year, the library of the late Dr. McClintock has been purchased, through the instrumentality of the ladies of the McClintock Association of New-York, and is now incorporated with that of the Seminary. This is an important addition, particularly in Practical Theology, Lexicography, and Philology.

3. The Libraries of the Professors are also available to the students under suitable restrictions. The total number of volumes thus accessible to them is about twenty thousand, representing all departments of Theological literature and the affiliated sciences. The advantage of such a collection of works, adapted in every way to the requirements of the theological student in each stage of his curriculum, is very great. Its location on the Seminary grounds adds largely to its practical value. Where text-books are taken from the library they can be retained during the entire term.

READING ROOM.

The Reading Room is supplied with the representative Quarterlies, Magazines, and Newspapers, both religious and literary, of this country and Europe. The advantage thus afforded is supplemented by the excellent Reading Room of the Young Men's Christian Association, of Madison.

LITERARY SOCIETIES.

Three societies, the McClintock Literary Society, the Philoponean Literary Association, and the Foster Lyceum, are in active operation in the Institution. Their object is the cultivation of readiness and accuracy of thought, and its expression in speech. The range of topics discussed is not confined to theology, but embraces the whole field of inquiry with which a Minister of the Gospel is supposed to be acquainted.

MISSIONS.

This Institution having been established in immediate contiguity with the centre of Missionary operations of the Methodist Episcopal Church, it aims to give suitable prominence to those kinds of instruction which are needed, (1,) by students purposing to go as missionaries to foreign countries, and (2,) by ministers at home, who ought always to have an intelligent sympathy with their brethren in the foreign field, and a fixed purpose to promote the conversion of the world. To these ends special studies are provided for candidates for foreign mission service and regular instruction is given to each senior class in reference to the history, agencies, and results of missions.

Furthermore, with a view to maintaining a general and practical interest in the Missionary enterprises of the Church, an Association has been organized, embracing the members of the Faculty as well as all the students, for the purpose of collecting and reporting information respecting the principal mission fields of the world. This organization also contemplates public discussions of the various practical questions which challenge the attention of missionaries in the field and the managers and supporters of missions at home. Addresses are often secured from returned and outgoing missionaries.

EXPENSES—ROOMS.

The expense of attending the Seminary has always been remark, ably low, and every effort will be made to reduce it still further. No charge is made for tuition, room rent, furniture, or use of library or reading-room. Ten dollars a year, in advance, must be paid toward incidental expenses. Fuel, (the average price of which is ten dollars,) lights, and washing are paid for by the students. During the past year the board has been from $2.50 to $2.75 per week.

Asbury Hall was prepared solely for the use of students. Each room is supplied with carpet, full set of oak furniture, bedsbedding, linen, and every appliance needful for the comfort of the occupants. The students thus have all the essential conveniences of home, and at the lowest possible rates. Married students can be accommodated with rooms for themselves, but not for their families.

Students wishing to pursue a Special Course may do so, on providing accommodations for themselves in the vicinity. Apartments in the town can be easily secured at moderate prices.

Books and stationery are furnished at low rates.

AID TO STUDENTS.—PASTORAL AND CITY MISSIONARY WORK.

1. Munificent provision has been made by Mr. Drew for every want and expense of the student, except the single item of living. The Seminary Year being but eight months, provision is necessary for that time only. The interval of four months can be employed, as is frequently the case, in teaching and pastoral work. Such opportunities are often afforded by the demands naturally arising in the populous region in which the Seminary is situated, and especially because of its immediate proximity to such cities as Newark, Jersey City, and New-York. On the other hand, no student below the grade of Middle can take pastoral work without the special action of the Faculty. This regulation has its obvious ground. It is not wise on the part of the student to divert his attention from the great work in hand. He needs his time, all of it, especially during the early part of his course, for patient and studious preparation for the highest usefulness.

2. In addition to the facilities named above, provision has been made to meet, so far as possible, the wants of students preparing to preach the Gospel, and, to give them the complete benefit of their stay in the Seminary, the McClintock Association, composed of a number of ladies of New-York, Baltimore, and other places, have generously undertaken to attend to this interest in part. Most of the Conferences have Education Societies for the same object. We trust that these agencies will meet with merited support.

3. We would call the special attention of the able and benevolent members of our Church to the importance of providing help for many young men who are looking to the Ministry, but who are unable to meet the expenses incident to attendance upon the Seminary, even for a short time. There is many a young man who would be of great service to the Church and the world but for pecuniary embarrassment, from which he could be easily relieved by the liberality of those who are not called to preach, but are called to give.

4. We are happy to announce that this urgent want has been remembered in two instances, which we name with the hope that they will be suggestive: The late A. Minard, Esq., of Morristown, N. J., has bequeathed a sum sufficient to assist four students to the extent of one hundred dollars each annually. During the present year, the late Hon. James Riddle, of Wilmington, Del., has likewise bequeathed a sum, the revenue of which is to be applied, perpetually, to the education of two students in the Seminary.

LOCATION OF THE SEMINARY.

THE DREW THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY is located at Madison, New-Jersey. The situation is one of the most picturesque and healthful in the United States.

The Seminary Park contains ninety-five acres of land, a large proportion of which is highly ornamented with walks and drives, trees and shrubbery. On the corner contiguous to the village is the new and beautiful Methodist Episcopal Church. The Seminary buildings occupy a central position in the Park. They are:

1. MEAD HALL, the main edifice, containing the Chapel, the Reading-Room, the Lecture Rooms, the Offices of the Professors, and, until the Library building is erected, the Library.
2. ASBURY HALL, containing seventy-two rooms for students.
3. EMBURY HALL, containing the Refectory, Janitor's Residence, and numerous other apartments.

On either side of these buildings are the Professors' residences.

It would scarcely have been possible to select a site commanding more positive advantages for the special purposes of such an institution. The same inducements which controlled the Presbyterian General Assembly in the location, at Princeton, of the old est Theological Seminary in that Church—namely, the absence of all influences "to divert the mind, to dissipate the thoughts, and to interfere with assiduous devotion to study," had weight in determining the site of the Drew Theological Seminary.

But every Theological Seminary should possess, likewise, the leading benefits of the city. These are enjoyed at Madison; for while it combines the most agreeable scenery, the quiet and seclusion essential to advantageous study, and the society of a cultivated Christian community, the students have easy access to the city of New-York. Hence they have every opportunity to visit the Book or Mission Rooms of the Church-to consult Public Libraries, Museums of Science, Art, and Antiquities, or to observe metropolitan life and institutions. They are thus enabled to secure whatever real advantages may be derived from personal acquaintance with the great national centre of business, population, and intelligence, without being constantly subjected to the numerous disadvantages inseparable from the excitements and avocations of cities.

MODES OF ACCESS.

Students coming by way of New-York reach Madison by the Morris and Essex Railroad, from foot of Barclay street, New-York.

From the South, by the New-Jersey Railroad to Newark, and there change from the New-Jersey to the Morris and Essex Road. It is about ten minutes' walk from one station to the other. Conveyances will be found waiting at the Market Street Station.

From the West, students come by Easton, Pa., or Binghamton, N. Y., where connections are made with the Morris and Essex Railroad to Madison.

The Seminary grounds are distant about five minutes' walk from the station at Madison.

Letters of inquiry should be addressed to the President of Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, New-Jersey.

OF PROFESSORSHIPS, SCHOLARSHIPS, AND LIBRARY ALCOVES.

COURSE OF STUDY.

The Regular Course of Study requires three years for its completion. It is arranged with reference to the attainments of college graduates. It is earnestly desired that all students whose circumstances will allow them to obtain a college education, should do so before entering the Seminary.

Instruction by Years.

I.—JUNIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Hebrew Grammar; Hebrew Bible begun (four chapters of Genesis, and Messianic selections from the Pentateuch;) Biblical Geography, Chronology, Archæology, and Introduction.

NEW TESTAMENT LITERATURE.—Selections from the Greek Harmony, and Acts of the Apostles; New Testament Greek Grammar.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—Pre-Christian History, Other Nations in relation to Israel; Old Testament History; Interregnum of Inspiration; New Testament History.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Psychology and Ethics; Relations of Philosophy to Theology; Nature and Scope of Theological Study.

II.—MIDDLE YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Hebrew Bible continued, (Selections from the Psalms, Job, and Ecclesiastes;) Canon, Criticism, Versions.

NEW TESTAMENT LITERATURE.—Exegesis of Corinthians, Ephesians, and 1st John; New Testament Literature and Philology; Hermeneutics.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—Church History to the Reformation; History of Missions; Comparative History of Religions.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Introduction to Theology: Its Nature, Method, and Sources; The Being and Attributes of God.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Catechetics; The Sunday-school Enterprise; Homiletics and Homiletical Composition; Elocution continued, with Exercises in Extemporaneous Addresses and Discussions.

III.—SENIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Hebrew Bible and Exegesis (Ecclesiastes, selections from the Prophetical Books, Deborah's Ode); Biblical Chaldee; Inspiration and Interpretation with reference to recent controversies.

NEW TESTAMENT LITERATURE.—Leviticus in the LXX.; Hebrews; Romans; Greek Fathers; Introduction to Manuscript Study.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—Church History since the Reformation, including Comparative Symbolics and Statistics; History of Doctrines; Discussions of the Life of Christ from the Modern Point of View.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Theology continued; Anthropology; Soteriology; Eschatology; Polemics.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Pastoral Theology; inclusive of the Pastoral Office and Care; Ministerial Duties; Church Polity, Worship, Ritual and Ordinances; Church Enterprises and the Administration of Church Discipline; Pulpit Elocution, the Composition of Sermons, Preaching and Homiletical Criticism.

Instruction by Departments.

I.—HEBREW EXEGESIS.

JUNIOR YEAR.

TEXT-BOOKS.—Hahn, Hebrew Bible; Gesenius or Fuerst, Hebrew Lexicon; Strong, Epitome of Hebrew Grammar; Green, Introductory Hebrew Grammar.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Jahn, Biblical Archæology; Coleman, Biblical Geography; Horne, Introduction; Angus, Bible Hand-book; Ayre, Treasury of Bible Knowledge.

METHOD.—Critical study of the text-books, supplemented by lectures on the following topics: Hebrew Archæology.—Civil and religious institutions; employments; domestic and social usages; safeguards of life, property, and franchise; treatment of criminals, enemies, and corpses. Biblical Chronology.—Patriarchs; profane chronology; reigns of Judah and Israel; Daniel's seventy weeks; Christ's ministry; synchronisms in the Acts. Biblical Geography.—Eden; ethnography; route of the Israelites; Palestine in different ages; Jerusalem; Temple; Christ's journeys; Paul's tours. Biblical Introduction.—An account of the author, date, occasion, contents, and difficulties of each Book of Scripture, in order. Such of the above topics as admit of it are illustrated by maps and diagrams.

MIDDLE YEAR.

TEXT-BOOKS.—Hebrew Bible and Lexicon (continued); Green, Hebrew Grammar.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Westcott, New Testament Canon; Davidson, Sacred Criticism; Alexander, on the Psalms.

METHOD.—Study of the text-books, with lectures on Canon of the O. T.—Traditional period; formative period; editorial period. Canon of the N. T.—Apostolic period; period of codification (evidences of Apostolic Fathers, earliest ecclesiastical writers, early versions, first heretics); segregative period (acknowledged books, antilegomena, heretical and apocryphal writings); authoritative period (4th century and onward); era of Reformation (modern). Sacred Criticism.—Original authorities (MSS.); ancient versions; citations; critical conjecture; canons of criticism; history of printed text.

SENIOR YEAR.

TEXT-BOOKS.—Strong, Epitome of Chaldee Grammar (in addition to Hebrew Bible, Lexicon, and Grammar).

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Lee, Inspiration; Davidson, Sacred Hermeneutics; Keil and Delitzsch, Isaiah and the Minor Prophets; Stuart on Daniel.

METHOD.—Textual study, with lectures on Inspiration.—History of opinion; classification of theories; Scriptural statements on the question; definition of terms; dogmatic statement of the true view. Interpretation.—Objects and difficulties; practical canons of hermeneutics; history of interpretation; select list of the best commentaries, with criticisms.

II.—GREEK EXEGESIS AND NEW TESTAMENT LITERATURE.

JUNIOR YEAR.

TEXT-BOOKS.—Tischendorf, Greek Testament; Strong, Greek Harmony; Robinson, New Testament Lexicon.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Andrew, Life of our Lord; Neander, Planting and Training of the Church.

METHOD.—During the first term of the Junior Year, in connection with the grammatical and exegetical study of the Greek text, special attention is given to the harmony of the Gospel narratives; and during the second term, such selections from the Acts are read as bear most directly upon the historical and exegetical study of Paul's Epistles. A course of lectures on the difference between Classical and Hellenistic Greek is delivered to the Junior Class.

MIDDLE YEAR.

TEXT-BOOKS.—Greek Testament and Lexicon, as before; Buttman, New Testament Greek Grammar.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Sophocles, Greek Lexicon of the Roman and Byzantine Periods; Winer, New Testament Grammar; Trench, New Testament Synonyms.

METHOD.—Throughout the Middle year, in addition to the Exegesis, New Testament Literature is studied, including a discussion of New Testament Philology. The Literature and Hermeneutics are taught mostly by lectures.

SENIOR YEAR.

Text-books and Method are for the most part the same as in the Junior and Middle Years. The best books for study and reference on the New Testament are indicated during the course.

III.—HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.

JUNIOR YEAR.

TEXT-BOOKS.—Smith, Old Testament History; Rawlinson, Ancient History; Smith, New Testament History.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Kurtz, Sacred History; Rawlinson, Five Monarchies; Kurtz, History of the Old Covenant; Ellicott, Life of Christ; Coleman, Ancient Christianity.

METHOD.—Lectures are given on other nations in relation to Israel, and on the interval of Jewish History between the close of the Old Testament Canon and the time of Christ. The condition of Palestine and the Roman Empire at the commencement of the Christian Era is presented at the close of the year.

MIDDLE YEAR.

TEXT-BOOKS.—Hase, Church History (Classical and Mediæval Periods); Labberton, Historical Atlas.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Schaff, History of the Christian Church; Gieseler, Ecclesiastical History; Neander, History of the Christian Religion and Church; Smith, Chronological Tables of Church History; Spruner, Historical Atlas.

METHOD.—Attention is first bestowed on the Introduction to the Study of Church History. Afterward, Christian Archæology and Art, with their bearing on the life and doctrines of the Church, are given. It is designed to give a limited course on the Comparative History of Religions.

SENIOR YEAR.

TEXT-BOOKS.—Hase, Church History (Post-Reformation Period); Hagenbach, History of the Church in the 18th and 19th Centuries.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Shedd, History of Christian Doctrines; Dorner, History of Protestant Theology; Reuss, Christian Doctrine.

METHOD.—Lectures on the History of the American Church will complete the year. The use of a Historical Atlas is constantly required, both in attending the lectures and the use of text-books. All the students are expected to furnish, at proper intervals, written essays bearing on the subjects under treatment.

IV.—SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.

JUNIOR YEAR.

TEXT-BOOKS.—Haven, Mental Philosophy; Hopkins, Law of Love.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Hamilton, Philosophy; Porter, Human Intellect; Whedon, The Will; Edwards, do.; Jouffroy, Introduction to Ethics; Wayland, Moral Science; Wuttke, Christian Ethics.

METHOD.—The method of instruction combines recitations and conversational lectures. Special attention is given to the relations of Philosophy to Theology. Lectures are given on the Will, and on the nature and scope of Theological Study.

MIDDLE YEAR.

TEXT-BOOK.—Watson, Theological Institutes.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Paley, Natural Theology; Chadbourne, do.; Chalmers, Moral and Intellectual Constitution of Man; Thompson, Christian Theism; Knapp, Christian Theology; Hill, Lectures in Divinity; Hodge, Systematic Theology.

METHOD.—The mode of instruction is by lectures, with thorough review. Students are directed to a careful reading of appropriate parts of the text-book. Topics of discussion, in order, are: The nature, method, and sources of theology; the being of God, together with leading anti-theistic assumptions or theories—atheism, pantheism, positivism, evolutionism; the nature and attributes of God; the Trinity; the divinity of Christ; the Holy Spirit; and the person of Christ.

SENIOR YEAR.

TEXT-BOOK.— Watson, Theological Institutes.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Müller, Christian Doctrine of Sin; Edwards, Original Sin; Princeton Essays; Shedd, Essays; Cunningham, Historical Theology; Ritschl, Reconciliation and Justification; Knapp, Hill, and Hodge, as above.

METHOD.—The same method of instruction is pursued as in the middle year. Discussions embrace the more important questions of Christian Theology; the origin, primitive state, probation, and fall of man; the depravity of the race—its nature, source, ground, consequence; the doctrine of sin; the atonement—its necessity, nature, sufficiency, extent; its benefits in justification, regeneration, assurance, sanctification; immortality, intermediate state, second advent, resurrection, judgment, and final destinies. Polemic Theology receives special attention in connection with the discussion of doctrines, instead of a separate treatment.

V.—PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.

JUNIOR YEAR.

TEXT-BOOKS.—Russell and Murdoch, Vocal Culture; Hart, English and American Literature.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Rush, Philosophy of the Human Voice; Crabb, Synonyms; Fowler, English Language; Philological Works of Marsh, Trench, and others; Cyclopædias of English and American Literature.

METHOD.—The requirements of this Department in the Junior Year are chiefly preparatory to the work of the following years. 1.—Attention is given to the elements, principles, and practice of vocal expression; the design being to put students on a course of self-cultivation in true and effective oratory. 2.—An opportunity is given for critical study of the English language, with the object of enabling young men to attain the highest efficiency in its use. 3.—By means of lectures and illustrative teaching, it is sought to introduce students to a practical knowledge of Bibliography. 4.—By a condensed but systematic course in English and American Literature, the celebrated books and authors of successive periods are brought under review, with reference to their claims on the attention of ministers.

MIDDLE YEAR.

TEXT-BOOKS.—Catechisms of the M. E. Church; Kidder, Homiletics; Russell, Vocal Culture; Bacon, Manual of Gesture.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Masterpieces of Pulpit Eloquence; Sermons of Wesley, Watson, Bunting, South, Saurin, Guthrie, Robertson, Summerfield, Payson, Beecher, McClintock, and others.

METHOD.—The science of Catechetics is taught chiefly by lectures. The Sunday-school Enterprise is discussed in its theoretical and practical aspects. The science of Homiletics is studied systematically and thoroughly, in a text-book, accompanied by lectures and praxes on plans of discourses and the composition of sermons. A course of lectures is delivered on the History of Preachers and Preaching; embodying reviews and criticisms of sermons of the leading preachers of different periods, Churches, and countries. Students are also exercised in analysis and criticism of sermons.

SENIOR YEAR.

TEXT-BOOKS.—Kidder, Christian Pastorate; Stevens, Church Polity; Discipline of the M. E. Church; Sherman, History of the Discipline: Baker on the Discipline; Watson, Institutes, Part IV.; Russell, Pulpit Elocution.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.—Hooker, Church Polity; Ante-Nicene Fathers; Daillie on the Fathers; Bangs, and Stevens, Histories of Methodism.

METHOD.—Instruction in Pastoral Theology is by text-books and lectures. The following topics receive attention: History of religious offices; institution of the Christian ministry; ministerial call; responsibility of the pastoral care; qualities demanded in pastors; pastoral duties, agencies, and relations; Church polity; idea of the Church; organization of the N. T. Church; subsequent forms of Church government; controversies on Church polity; origin and character of Methodist Church economy; ritual and ordinances of the M. E. Church; administration of discipline; principles of ecclesiastical judicature; forms and process of Church trials and appeals; Church enterprises; missions; education; publishing agencies; tract circulation; Sunday-school Union. Practice in Pulpit Elocution and in homiletical composition and criticism continue throughout the year.

Preliminary Course.

The foregoing course of study, in order to its complete mastery, demands full collegiate preparation; however, to meet the wants of those whose age or circumstances may make a previous collegiate course impracticable, a two years' course of instruction is provided, comprising the Classics, History, Geology, and Mathematics. While it is proposed to make this course productive, in a good measure, of that breadth of scholarship, facility of expression, and discipline of mind, which the study of language and science secures, it is intended, so far as possible, to select such studies as will lead the mind of the student into lines of thought that will forecast the Theological Course.

FRESHMAN YEAR.

TEXT-BOOKS.—Allen & Greenough, Latin Grammar; Arnold, Latin Prose Composition; Heine, Cicero's De Officiis; Seneca, De Vita Beata; Hadley, Greek Grammar; Boise, Greek Prose Composition; Owen, Homer's Iliad; Boise, Xenophon's Memorabilia; Gilman, History; Loomis, Algebra and Geometry.

SOPHOMORE YEAR.

TEXT-BOOKS.—Arnold, Latin Prose Composition; Lincoln, Horace; Tyler, Germania and Agricola; Boise, Greek Prose Composition; Woolsey, Æschylus' Prometheus; Plato, Apology and Crito; Hart, Rhetoric; Atwater, Logic; Dana, Geology; Loomis, Trigonometry and Analytical Geometry.

Dr. VALENTINI gives instruction in the Italian Language and Literature, on Mondays, Tuesdays, and Thursdays, 4-5; and in the Latin Language and Literature, on Mondays, 11-12; and Wednesdays and Fridays, 12-1.

General Information.

RELIGIOUS EXERCISES.

Public prayers are conducted in the chapel, daily, by the members of the Faculty. Wednesday mornings, one hour is devoted alternately to prayer-meetings, and to preaching by members of the Senior Class, in presence of the Faculty and students.

The students are divided into four religious classes, each of which meets on Thursday evening, and with one of its own number as leader. A general prayer-meeting is held each Sabbath morning.

The Methodist church, whose edifice adjoins the Seminary grounds, is at present under the pastoral charge of Rev. J. K. Burr, D.D. The students avail themselves of the opportunities there for public and social worship.

ADMISSION.

Candidates for admission to the Regular Seminary Course, must produce the diploma of A.B. from a college or university, or must pass an examination satisfactory to the Faculty in classical and general literature and science.

Applicants for admission who are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, must bring a certificate of local preacher's license, or a recommendation either from a quarterly conference or a leader's meeting, with the written concurrence of the Pastor and Presiding Elder. The form of recommendation authorized by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is as follows: "We, the members of the Quarterly Conference of ——— ———, hereby express our judgment that ——— ——— is called of God to the work of the ministry, and we recommend him as a suitable person to become a student in the Drew Theological Seminary."

This must be signed by the President and Secretary of the Quarterly Conference. Members of other Churches must bring satisfactory recommendations from ministers of the Churches to which they belong.

GRADUATION.

Students who have the degree of A.B., or its equivalent, in classical and scientific culture, and who complete the Seminary Course of three years, and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive the degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

Students who pursue the course, including the Freshman and Sophomore years, complete the Seminary Course, and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive the Diploma of the Institution on graduation, and the degree of B.D. on election to Elders' Orders in an Annual Conference, and on application, accompanied by a theological thesis, showing satisfactory literary progress.

Students who take a Special Course, and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive a certificate to that effect.

SPECIAL ELOCUTIONARY EXERCISES.

An avowed object of this Institution is to train young men with a view to their becoming ready and efficient extemporaneous preachers. Elocution, therefore, is taught systematically, and by progressive courses. Besides this system of study and practice, arrangements are made to furnish each year a special course of instruction and drill from one of the best practical teachers of elocution in the country.

For the ensuing year, Professor MARK BAILEY, of New-Haven, has been engaged to conduct these special exercises, and during their continuance all needful concessions of time and opportunity will be granted those students who are prepared for, and anxious to profit personally by, the oratorical training to which the Professor devotes his exclusive attention.

NON-RESIDENT LECTURERS.

Besides the regular resident corps of instructors, lectures are given by representative men of different denominations and various fields of activity, who present special topics of importance to young men preparing for the ministry.

ORIENTAL AND MODERN LANGUAGES.

Special instruction is given to those desiring it in the Arabic yriac, and Sanscrit. Also, to meet the demands arising from the nlarged mission fields of the Church, the same opportunity will e afforded in German, French, Italian, and Spanish. In neither ase is there additional expense to the student.

LIBRARY.

2. The Seminary has been fortunate in securing the collection f early and rare publications on Methodism, used by the Rev. Dr. Stevens in the preparation of his Histories, and of Creamer's nrivaled collection of Hymnology. The library of Dr. McClinock has been purchased by the Seminary, and forms an important art, particularly in Practical Theology, Lexicography, and Philolgy. During the current year, valuable contributions have been nade by the estate of the late Thos. Carlton, D.D., by Miss Amanda King, and by John B. Cornell, Esq., making an increase f about a thousand volumes during the year.

3. The Libraries of the Professors are also available to the students under suitable restrictions. The total number of volumes hus accessible is over twenty thousand, representing all departments of Theological literature and the affiliated sciences. The dvantage of such a collection of works, adapted in every way to he requirements of the theological student, in each stage of his curriculum, is very great. Where text-books are taken from the ibrary, they can be retained during the entire term.

READING ROOM.

The Reading Room is supplied with the representative Quar-terlies, Magazines, and Newspapers, both religious and literary, of this country and Europe. The advantage thus afforded is supplemented by the excellent Reading Room of the Young Men's Christian Association.

LITERARY SOCIETIES.

Three societies, the McClintock Literary Society, the Philoponean Literary Association, and the Foster Lyceum, are in active operation in the Institution. Their object is the cultivation of readiness and accuracy of thought, and its expression in speech. The range of topics discussed is not confined to theology, but embraces the whole field of inquiry with which a Minister of the Gospel is supposed to be acquainted.

As a stimulus to linguistic attainments, both in their philological and missionary bearing, a Polyglot Society has been inaugurated, already representing twenty-six different languages. Not only students, but members of the Faculty and other persons interested in philological study, are admitted to membership.

MISSIONS.

This Institution having been established in immediate contiguity with the centre of Missionary operations of the Methodist Episcopal Church, it aims to give suitable prominence to those kinds of instruction which are needed, (1,) by students purposing to go as missionaries to foreign countries, and (2,) by ministers at home, who ought always to have an intelligent sympathy with their brethren in the foreign field, and a fixed purpose to promote the conversion of the world. To these ends special studies are provided for candidates for foreign mission service, and regular instruction is given to each senior class in reference to the history, agencies, and results of missions.

sions of the various practical questions which challenge the attention of missionaries in the field and the managers and supporters of missions at home. Addresses are often secured from returned and outgoing missionaries.

EXPENSES—ROOMS.

The expense of attending the Seminary has always been remarkably low, and every effort will be made to reduce it still further. No charge is made for tuition, room rent, furniture, or use of library or reading room. The only charge made by the Seminary is ten dollars per year, for incidental expenses, which must be paid in advance. Heating, (eleven dollars the current year,) lights, and washing are paid for by the students. Board in the club averages $2.83 per week, the present year.

Asbury Hall was prepared solely for the use of students. Each room is supplied with carpet, full set of furniture, beds, and blankets. Students provide their toilet and bed linen. Books are secured at from 25 to 33 per cent discount from list prices. Thus all the expenses are reduced to the lowest possible rates. Married students can be accommodated with rooms for themselves, but not for their families.

Students wishing to pursue a Special Course may do so, on providing accommodations for themselves in the vicinity. Apartments in the town can be easily secured at moderate prices.

AID TO STUDENTS.—PASTORAL AND CITY MISSIONARY WORK.

1. Munificent provision has been made by Mr. Drew for every want and expense of the student, except the single item of living. The Seminary Year being but eight months, provision is necessary for that time only. The interval of four months can be employed, as is frequently the case, in teaching and pastoral work. Such opportunities are often afforded by the demands naturally arising in the populous region in which the Seminary is situated, and especially because of its immediate proximity to such cities as Newark, Jersey City, and New-York. On the other hand, no student below the grade of Middle can take pastoral work without the special action of the Faculty. This regulation has its obvious ground. It is not wise on the part of the student to divert his attention from the great work in hand. He needs his time, all of it, especially during the early part of his course, for patient and studious preparation for the highest usefulness.

2. In addition to the facilities named above, provision has been made to meet, so far as possible, the wants of students preparing to preach the Gospel; and to give them the complete benefit of their stay in the Seminary, the McClintock Association, composed of a number of ladies of New-York, Baltimore, and other places, have generously undertaken to attend to this interest in part. Most of the Conferences have Education Societies for the same object.

3. We would call the special attention of the able and benevolent members of our Church to the importance of providing help for many young men who are looking to the Ministry, but who are unable to meet the expenses incident to attendance upon the Seminary, even for a short time. There is many a young man who would be of great service to the Church and the world but for pecuniary embarrassment, from which he could be easily relieved by the liberality of those who are not called to preach, but are called to give.

4. We are happy to announce that this urgent want has been remembered in two instances, which we name with the hope that they will be suggestive: The late A. Minard, Esq., of Morristown, N. J., has bequeathed a sum sufficient to assist four students to the extent of one hundred dollars each annually. The late Hon. James Riddle, of Wilmington, Del., has likewise bequeathed a sum, the revenue of which is to be applied, perpetually, to the education of two students in the Seminary.

LOCATION OF THE SEMINARY.

The Drew Theological Seminary is located at Madison, New-Jersey. The situation is one of the most picturesque and healthful in the United States.

The Seminary Park contains ninety-five acres of land, a large proportion of which is highly ornamented with walks and drives, trees and shrubbery. On the corner contiguous to the village is he new and beautiful Methodist Episcopal Church. The Semiıary buildings occupy a central position in the Park. They are:

. MEAD HALL, the main edifice, containing the Chapel, Reading-Room, Lecture Rooms, Offices of the Professors, and the Library.

. ASBURY HALL, containing seventy-two rooms for students.

. EMBURY HALL, containing the Dining Hall, Society Hall, Matron's apartments, and rooms for twenty students.

On either side of these buildings are the Professors' residences. It would scarcely have been possible to select a site command-ng more positive advantages for the special purposes of such an nstitution. The same inducements which controlled the Presbyerian General Assembly in the location, at Princeton, of the oldest Theological Seminary in that Church—namely, the absence of all influences "to divert the mind, to dissipate the thoughts, ınd to interfere with assiduous devotion to study"—had weight n determining the site of the Drew Theological Seminary.

But every Theological Seminary should possess, likewise, the eading benefits of the city. These are enjoyed at Madison; for while it combines the most agreeable scenery, the quiet and seclusion essential to advantageous study, and the society of a cultivated Christian community, the students have easy access to the City of New-York. Hence they have every opportunity to visit the Book or Mission Rooms of the Church, to consult Public Libraries, Museums of Science, Art, and Antiquities, or to observe metropolitan life and institutions. They are thus enabled to secure whatever real advantages may be derived from personal acquaintance with the great national centre of business, population, and intelligence, without being constantly subjected to the numerous disadvantages inseparable from the excitements and avocations of cities.

PROFESSORSHIPS, SCHOLARSHIPS, AND LIBRARY ALCOVES.

SECTION I.—Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of thirty thousand dollars, or more, for the purpose of founding a Professorship, shall have the privilege of naming such Professorship, which name shall not be altered thereafter.

SECTION II.—Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of five thousand dollars, or more, for the purpose of founding a Scholarship, shall have the privilege, not only of naming such Scholarship, but also of nominating, during his or their lifetime, the beneficiaries who are to be placed upon said foundation, who shall receive board as well as instruction gratuitously.

SECTION III.—Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of two thousand dollars, shall have the right of naming an Alcove in the Library, to be occupied by books purchased with the money so given or bequeathed.

COURSE OF STUDY.

The Regular Course of Study requires three years for its completion. It is arranged with reference to the attainments of college graduates. It is earnestly desired that all students whose circumstances will allow them to obtain a college education, should do so before entering the Seminary.

I.—JUNIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Hebrew Grammar; four chapters of Genesis, and Messianic selections from the Pentateuch. Lectures on the following topics: Hebrew Archæology.—Civil and religious institutions; employments; domestic and social usages; safeguards of life, property, and franchise; treatment of criminals, enemies, and corpses. Biblical Chronology.—Patriarchs; profane chronology; reigns of Judah and Israel; Daniel's seventy weeks; Christ's ministry; synchronisms in the Acts. Biblical Geography.—Eden; ethnography; route of the Israelites; Palestine in different ages; Jerusalem; Temple; Christ's journeys; Paul's tours. Biblical Introduction.—An account of the author, date, occasion, contents, and difficulties of each Book of Scripture, in order. Such of the above topics as admit of it are illustrated by maps and diagrams.

NEW TESTAMENT LITERATURE.—Greek Harmony; Galatians; Septuagint.—During the first term of the Junior Year, in connection with the grammatical and exegetical study of the Greek text, special attention is given to the harmony of the Gospel narratives; and during the second term, such selections from the Acts are read as bear most directly upon the historical and exegetical study of Paul's Epistles. A course of lectures is given on the difference between Classical and Hellenistic Greek.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—Old Testament History; New Testament History.—Lectures are given on other nations in relation to Israel, and on the interval of Jewish History between the close of the Old Testament Canon and the time of Christ. The condition of Palestine and the Roman Empire at the commencement of the Christian Era is presented at the close of the year.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Mental and Moral Philosophy.—The method of instruction combines recitations and conversational lectures. Special attention is given to the relations of Philosophy to Theology. Lectures are given on the Will, and on the nature and scope of Theological Study.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Vocal Culture; English and American Literature. 1.—Attention is given to the elements, principles, and practice of Vocal expression; the design being to put students on a course of self-cultivation in true and effective oratory. 2.—An opportunity is afforded for critical study of the English language, to aid young men to attain the highest efficiency in its use. 3.—By means of lectures and illustrative teaching, it is sought to introduce students to a practical knowledge of Bibliography. 4.—By a systematic course in English and American Literature, the celebrated books and authors of successive periods are brought under review, with reference to their claims on the attention of ministers.

II.—MIDDLE YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Selections from the Psalms and Job. Lectures on Canon of the O. T.—Traditional period; formative period; editorial period. Canon of the N. T.—Apostolic period; period of codification (evidences of Apostolic Fathers, earliest ecclesiastical writers, early versions, first heretics); segregative period (acknowledged books, antilegomena, heretical and apocryphal writings); authoritative period (4th century and onward); era of Reformation (modern). Sacred Criticism.—Original authorities (MSS.); ancient versions; citations; critical conjecture; canons of criticism; history of printed text.

NEW TESTAMENT LITERATURE. — Corinthians, Ephesians, and 1st John. Throughout the Middle year, in addition to the Exegesis, New Testament Literature is studied, including a discussion of New Testament Philology. The Literature and Hermeneutics are taught mostly by lectures.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—Church History (Classical and Mediæval Periods.)—Attention is first bestowed on the introduction to the Study of Church History. Afterward, Christian Archæology and Art, with their bearing on the life and doctrines of the Church, are given. It is designed to give a limited course on the Comparative History of Religions.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Theological Institutes.—The mode of instruction is by lectures. Students are directed to a careful reading of appropriate parts of Watson's Institutes. Topics of discussion, in order, are: The nature, method, and sources of theology; the being of God, together with leading anti-theistic assumptions or theories—atheism, pantheism, positivism, evolutionism; the nature and attributes of God; the Trinity; the divinity of Christ; the Holy Spirit; and the person of Christ.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Catechisms of the M. E. Church; Homiletics; Vocal Culture; Gesture. The science of Catechetics is taught chiefly by lectures. The Sunday-school Enterprise is discussed in its theoretical and practical aspects. The science of Homiletics is studied systematically and thoroughly, in a text-book, accompanied by lectures and praxes on plans of discourses and the composition of sermons. A course of lectures is delivered on the History of Preachers and Preaching; embodying reviews and criticisms of sermons of the leading preachers of different periods, Churches, and countries. Students are also exercised in analysis and criticism of sermons.

III.—SENIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Ecclesiastes, selections from the Prophetical Books, Deborah's Ode; Biblical Chaldee; Chaldee Grammar. Lectures on Inspiration.—History of opinion; classification of theories; Scriptural statements on the question; definition of terms; dogmatic statement of the true view. Interpretation.—Objects and difficulties; practical canons of hermeneutics; history of interpretation; select list of the best commentaries, with criticisms.

NEW TESTAMENT LITERATURE.—Leviticus in the LXX.; Hebrews; Romans; Greek Fathers; Introduction to Manuscript Study. The method is for the most part the same as in the Junior and Middle Years. The best books for study and reference on the New Testament are indicated during the course.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—Church History (Post-Reformation Period); History of the Church in the 18th and 19th Centuries. Comparative Symbolics and Statistics; History of Doctrines; Discussions of the Life of Christ from the Modern Point of View. Lectures on the History of the American Church will complete the year. The use of a Historical Atlas is constantly required, both in attending the lectures and the use of text-books. All the students are expected to furnish, at proper intervals, written essays bearing on the subjects under treatment.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Theological Institutes. The same method of instruction is pursued as in the Middle Year. Discussions embrace the more important questions of Christian Theology; the origin, primitive state, probation, and fall of man; the depravity of the race—its nature, source, ground, consequence; the doctrine of sin; the atonement—its necessity, nature, sufficiency, extent; its benefits in justification, regeneration, assurance, sanctification; immortality, intermediate state, second advent, resurrection, judgment, and final destinies. Polemic Theology receives special attention in connection with the discussion of doctrines, instead of a separate treatment.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—The Christian Pastorate; Church Polity; Discipline of the M. E. Church; Pulpit Elocution. Instruction in Pastoral Theology is by text-books and lectures. The following topics receive attention: History of religious offices; institution of the Christian ministry; ministerial call; responsibility of the pastoral care; qualities demanded in pastors; Church polity; idea of the Church; organization of the N. T. Church; subsequent forms of Church government; controversies on Church polity; origin and character of Methodist Church economy; administration of discipline; ecclesiastical judicature; Church enterprises; Practice in Pulpit Elocution and in homiletical composition and criticism continue throughout the year.

General Information.

RELIGIOUS EXERCISES.

Public prayers are conducted in the chapel, daily, by the members of the Faculty. Wednesday mornings, one hour is devoted alternately to prayer-meetings, and to preaching by members of the Senior Class, in presence of the Faculty and Students.

The students are divided into religious classes, each of which meets on Thursday evening, and with one of its own number as leader. A general prayer-meeting is held each Sabbath morning.

The Methodist Church, whose edifice adjoins the Seminary grounds, is at present under the pastoral charge of Rev. J. K. Burr, D.D. The students avail themselves of the opportunities there for public and social worship.

ADMISSION.

Candidates for admission to the regular Seminary Course, must produce the diploma of A.B. from a college or university, or must pass an examination satisfactory to the Faculty in classical and general literature and science.

Applicants for admission who are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, must bring a certificate of local preacher's license, or a recommendation either from a quarterly conference or a leader's meeting, with the written concurrence of the Pastor and Presiding Elder. The form of recommendation authorized by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is as follows: "We, the members of the Quarterly Conference of ——— ———, hereby express our judgment that ——— ——— is called of God to the work of the ministry, and we recommend him as a suitable person to become a student in the Drew Theological Seminary."

This must be signed by the President and Secretary of the Quarterly Conference. Members of other Churches must bring satisfactory recommendations from ministers of the Churches to which they belong.

GRADUATION.

Students who have the degree of A.B., or its equivalent, in classical and scientific culture, and who complete the Seminary Course, and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive the degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

Students not graduates of college, whose linguistic and scientific attainments meet the requirements of the Faculty for admission, and who complete the course and pass a satisfactory examination, will, on their graduation, receive the Diploma of the Institution, and on their admission to Elder's orders and the presentation of a satisfactory theological thesis, will also receive the degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

SPECIAL ELOCUTIONARY EXERCISES.

An avowed object of this Institution is to train young men with a view to their becoming ready and efficient extemporaneous preachers. Elocution, therefore, is taught systematically, and by progressive courses. Besides this system of study and practice, arrangements are made to furnish each year a special course of instruction and drill from one of the best practical teachers of elocution in the country.

During the continuance of these special exercises, all needful concessions of time and opportunity will be granted those students who are prepared for, and anxious to profit personally by, the oratorical training to which the special Professor devotes his exclusive attention.

NON-RESIDENT LECTURERS.

Besides the regular resident corps of instructors, lectures are given by representative men of different denominations and various fields of activity, who present special topics of importance to young men preparing for the ministry.

ORIENTAL AND MODERN LANGUAGES.

Special instruction is given to those desiring it in the Arabic, Syriac, and Sanscrit. Also, to meet the demands arising from the enlarged mission fields of the Church, the same opportunity will be afforded in German, French, Italian, and Spanish. In neither case is there additional expense to the student.

LIBRARY.

2. The Seminary has been fortunate in securing the collection of early and rare publications on Methodism, used by the Rev. Dr. Stevens in the preparation of his Histories, and of Creamer's unrivaled collection of Hymnology. The library of Dr. McClintock has been purchased by the Seminary, and forms an important part, particularly in Practical Theology, Lexicography, and Philology. Valuable contributions have recently been made by the estate of the late Thos. Carlton, D.D., by Miss Amanda King, and by John B. Cornell, Esq., making an increase of about a thousand volumes.

3. The Libraries of the Professors are also available to the students under suitable restrictions. The total number of volumes thus accessible is over twenty thousand, representing all departments of Theological literature and the affiliated sciences. The advantage of such a collection of works, adapted in every way to the requirements of the Theological student, in each stage of his curriculum, is very great. Where text-books are taken from the library, they can be retained during the entire term.

READING ROOM.

The Reading Room is supplied with the representative Quarterlies, Magazines, and Newspapers, both religious and literary, of this country and Europe. The advantage thus afforded is supplemented by the excellent Reading Room of the Young Men's Christian Association.

LITERARY SOCIETIES.

Three societies, the McClintock Literary Society, the Philoponean Literary Association, and the Foster Lyceum, are in active operation in the Institution. Their object is the cultivation of readiness and accuracy of thought, and its expression in speech. The range of topics discussed is not confined to theology, but embraces the whole field of inquiry with which a Minister of the Gospel ought to be acquainted.

MISSIONS.

This Institution having been established in immediate contiguity with the centre of Missionary operations of the Methodist Episcopal Church, it aims to give suitable prominence to those kinds of instruction which are needed, (1,) by students purposing to go as missionaries to foreign countries, and (2,) by ministers at home, who ought always to have an intelligent sympathy with their brethren in the foreign field, and a fixed purpose to promote the conversion of the world. To these ends special studies are provided for candidates for foreign mission service, and regular instruction is given to each senior class in reference to the history, agencies, and results of missions.

Furthermore, with a view to maintaining a general and practical interest in the Missionary enterprises of the Church, an Association has been organized, embracing the members of the Faculty as well as all the students, for the purpose of collecting and reporting information respecting the principal mission fields of the world. This organization also contemplates public discussions of the various practical questions which challenge the attention of missionaries in the field and the managers and supporters of missions at home. Addresses are often secured from returned and outgoing missionaries.

EXPENSES—ROOMS.

The expense of attending the Seminary has always been remarkably low, and every effort will be made to reduce it still further. No charge is made for tuition, room rent, furniture, or use of library or reading room. The only charge made by the Seminary is ten dollars per year, for incidental expenses, which must be paid in advance. Heating, (eleven dollars the current year,) lights, and washing are paid for by the students. Board in the club averages $2.83 per week, the present year.

Asbury Hall was prepared solely for the use of students. Each room is supplied with carpet, full set of furniture, beds, and blankets. Students provide their toilet and bed linen. Books are secured at from 25 to 33 per cent discount from list prices. Thus all the expenses are reduced to the lowest possible rates. Married students can be accommodated with rooms for themselves, but not for their families.

Students wishing to pursue a Special Course may do so, on providing accommodations for themselves in the vicinity. Apartments in the town can be easily secured at moderate prices.

AID TO STUDENTS. — PASTORAL AND CITY MISSIONARY WORK.

1. Munificent provision has been made by Mr. Drew for every want and expense of the student, except the single item of living. The Seminary year being but eight months, provision is necessary for that time only. The interval of four months can be employed, as is frequently the case, in teaching and pastoral work. Such opportunities are often afforded by the demands naturally arising in the populous region in which the Seminary is situated, and especially because of its immediate proximity to such cities as Newark, Jersey City, and New-York. On the other hand, no student below the grade of Middle can take pastoral work without the special action of the Faculty. This regulation has its obvious ground. It is not wise on the part of the student to divert his attention from the great work in hand. He needs his time, all of it, especially during the early part of his course, for patient and studious preparation for the highest usefulness.

2. In addition to the facilities named above, provision has been made to meet so far as possible, the wants of students preparing to preach the Gospel; and to give them the complete benefit of their stay in the Seminary, the McClintock Association, composed of a number of ladies of New-York, Baltimore, and other places, have generously undertaken to attend to this interest in part. Most of the Conferences have Educational Societies for the same object.

3. We would call the special attention of the able and benevolent members of our Church to the importance of providing help for many young men who are looking to the Ministry, but who are unable to meet the expenses incident to attendance upon the Seminary, even for a short time. There is many a young man who would be of great service to the Church and the world but for pecuniary embarrassment, from which he could be easily relieved by the liberality of those who are not called to preach, but are called to give.

4. We are happy to announce that this urgent want has been remembered in two instances, which we name with the hope that they will be suggestive: The late A. Minard, Esq., of Morristown, N. J., has bequeathed a sum sufficient to assist four students to the extent of one hundred dollars each annually. The late Hon. James Riddle, of Wilmington, Del., has likewise bequeathed a sum, the revenue of which is to be applied, perpetually, to the education of two students in the Seminary.

LOCATION OF THE SEMINARY.

THE DREW THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY is located at Madison, New-Jersey. The situation is one of the most picturesque and healthful in the United States.

The Seminary Park contains ninety-five acres of land, a large proportion of which is highly ornamented with walks and drives, trees and shrubbery. On the corner contiguous to the village is the new and beautiful Methodist Episcopal Church. The Seminary buildings occupy a central position in the Park. They are:

1. MEAD HALL, the main edifice, containing the Chapel, Reading-Room, Lecture Rooms, Offices of the Professors, and the Library.
2. ASBURY HALL, containing seventy-two rooms for students.
3. EMBURY HALL, containing the Dining Hall, Society Hall, Matron's apartments, and rooms for twenty students.

On either side of these buildings are the Professors' residences.

It would scarcely have been possible to select a site commanding more positive advantages for the special purposes of such an institution.

Madison combines the most agreeable scenery, the quiet and seclusion essential to advantageous study, and the society of a cultivated Christian community. The students have easy access to the City of New-York. Hence they have every opportunity to visit the Book or Mission Rooms of the Church, to consult Public Libraries, Museums of Science, Art, and Antiquities, or to observe metropolitan life and institutions. They are thus enabled to secure whatever real advantages may be derived from personal acquaintance with the great national centre of business, population, and intelligence, without being constantly subjected to the numerous disadvantages inseparable from the excitements and avocations of cities.

Extract from the Constitution of the Seminary.

COURSE OF STUDY.

The regular Course of Study requires three years for its completion. It is arranged with reference to the attainments of college graduates. It is earnestly desired that all students whose circumstances will allow them to obtain a college education, should do so before entering the Seminary.

I.—JUNIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Hebrew Grammar; four chapters of Genesis, and Messianic selections from the Pentateuch. Lectures on the following topics: Hebrew Archæology.—Civil, religious and social institutions. Biblical Chronology.—Patriarchs; profane chronology; reigns of Judah and Israel; Daniel's seventy weeks; Christ's ministry; synchronisms in the Acts. Biblical Geography.—Eden; ethnography; route of the Israelites; Palestine in different ages; Jerusalem; Temple; Christ's journeys; Paul's tours. Biblical Introduction.—An account of the author, date, occasion and contents of each Book of Scripture. Such of the above topics as admit of it are illustrated by maps and diagrams.

NEW TESTAMENT LITERATURE.—Greek Harmony; Galatians; Septuagint.—During the first term of the Junior Year, in connection with the study of the Greek text, attention is given to the harmony of the Gospel narratives; and during the second term, such selections from the Acts are read as bear upon the study of Paul's Epistles. A course of lectures is given on the difference between Classical and Hellenistic Greek.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—Old Testament History; New Testament History.—Lectures are given on other nations in relation to Israel, and on the interval of Jewish History between the close of the Old Testament Canon and the time of Christ. The condition of Palestine and the Roman Empire at the commencement of the Christian Era is presented at the close of the year.

Systematic Theology.—Mental and Moral Philosophy.—The method of instruction combines recitations and conversational lectures. Special attention is given to the relations of philosophy to theology. Lectures are given on the Will, and on the nature and scope of theological study.

Practical Theology.—Vocal Culture; English and American Literature. 1.—Attention is given to the principles and practice of Vocal expression; the design being to put students on a course of self-cultivation in true and effective oratory. 2.—An opportunity is afforded for critical study of the English language, to aid young men to attain the highest efficiency in its use. 3.—By means of lectures and illustrative teaching, it is sought to introduce students to a practical knowledge of Bibliography. 4.—By a systematic course in English and American Literature, the celebrated books and authors of successive periods are brought under review, with reference to their claims on the attention of ministers.

II.—MIDDLE YEAR.

Exegetical Theology.—Selections from the Psalms and Job. Lectures on Canon of the O. T.—Traditional period; formative period; editorial period. Canon of the N. T.—Apostolic period; period of codification (evidences of Apostolic Fathers, earliest ecclesiastical writers, early versions, first heretics); segregative period (acknowledged books, antilegomena, heretical and apocryphal writings); authoritative period (4th century and onward); era of Reformation (modern). Sacred Criticism.—Original authorities (MSS.); ancient versions; citations; critical conjecture; canons of criticism; history of printed text.

New Testament Literature.—Corinthians, Ephesians, and 1st John. Throughout the Middle year, in addition to the Exegesis, New Testament Literature is studied, including a discussion of New Testament Philology. The Literature and Hermeneutics are taught mostly by lectures.

Historical Theology.—Church History (Classical and Mediæval Periods.) —Attention is first bestowed on the Introduction to the Study of Historical Theology.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Theological Institutes.—The mode of instruction is by lectures. Students are directed to a careful reading of appropriate parts of Watson's Institutes. Topics of discussion, in order, are: The nature, method, and sources of theology; the being of God, together with leading anti-theistic assumptions or theories—atheism, pantheism, positivism, evolutionism; the nature and attributes of God; the Trinity; the divinity of Christ; the Holy Spirit; and the person of Christ.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Catechetics; Homiletics; Vocal Culture; Gesture. The science of Catechetics is taught chiefly by lectures, including the Sunday-School Enterprise, which is fully discussed in its theoretical and practical aspects. The science of Homiletics is studied systematically in a text-book, accompanied by lectures and praxes on plans and the composition of sermons. A course of lectures is delivered on the History of Preachers and Preaching; embodying reviews and criticisms of sermons of the leading preachers of different periods, Churches, and countries. Students are also exercised in the analysis and criticism of sermons.

III.—SENIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Ecclesiastes, selections from the Prophetical Books, Deborah's Ode; Biblical Chaldee; Chaldee Grammar. Lectures on Inspiration.—History of opinion; classification of theories; Scriptural statements on the question; definition of terms; dogmatic statement of the true view. Interpretation.—Objects and difficulties; practical canons of hermeneutics; history of interpretation; select list of the best commentaries, with criticisms.

NEW TESTAMENT LITERATURE.—Leviticus in the LXX.; Hebrews; Romans; Greek Fathers; Introduction to Manuscript Study. The method is for the most part the same as in the Junior and Middle Years. The best books for study and reference on the New Testament are indicated during the course.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—Church History (Post Reformation Period). History of the Church in the 18th and 19th Centuries. Lectures on the History of the American Church will complete the year. The students are expected to furnish, at proper intervals, written essays bearing on the subjects under treatment.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Theological Institutes. The same method of instruction is pursued as in the Middle Year. Discussions embrace the more important questions of Christian Theology; the origin, primitive state, probation, and fall of man; the depravity of the race —its nature, source, ground, consequence; the doctrine of sin; the atonement—its necessity, nature, sufficiency, extent; its benefits in justification, regeneration, assurance, sanctification; immortality, intermediate state, second advent, resurrection; judgment, and final destinies. Polemic Theology receives special attention in connection with the discussion of doctrines, instead of separate treatment.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—The Christian Pastorate; Church Polity; Discipline of the M. E. Church; Pulpit Elocution. Instruction in Pastoral Theology is by text-books and lectures. The following topics receive attention: History of religious offices; institution of the Christian ministry; ministerial call; responsibility of the pastoral care; qualities demanded in pastors; Church Polity; idea of the Church; organization of the N. T. Church; subsequent forms of Church government; controversies on Church polity; origin and character of Methodist Church economy; administration of discipline; ecclesiastical judicature; Church enterprises; Practice in Pulpit Elocution and in homiletical composition and criticism continue throughout the year.

General Information.

RELIGIOUS EXERCISES.

Public prayers are conducted in the chapel, daily, by the members of the Faculty. Wednesday mornings, one hour is devoted alternately to prayer-meetings, and to preaching by members of the Senior Class, in presence of the Faculty and Students.

The students are divided into religious classes, each of which meets on Thursday evening, and with one of its own number as leader. A general prayer-meeting is held each Sabbath morning.

The Methodist Church edifice adjoins the Seminary grounds. The students avail themselves of the opportunities there for public and social worship.

ADMISSION.

Candidates for admission to the regular Seminary Course, must produce the diploma of A. B. from a college or university, or must pass an examination satisfactory to the Faculty in classical and general literature and science.

Applicants for admission who are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, must bring a certificate of local preacher's license, or a recommendation either from a quarterly conference or a leaders' meeting, with the written concurrence of their Pastor and Presiding Elder. The form of recommendation authorized by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is as follows: "We, the members of the Quarterly Conference of ——— ———, hereby express our judgment that——— ——— is called of God to the work of the ministry, and we recommend him as a suitable person to become a student in the Drew Theological Seminary."

This must be signed by the President and Secretary of the Quarterly Conference. Members of other Churches must bring satisfactory recommendations from ministers of the Churches to which they belong.

GRADUATION.

Students who have the degree of A.B., or its equivalent, in classical and scientific culture from a College or University, and who complete the Seminary Course, and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive the degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

Students not graduates of college, whose linguistic and scientific attainments meet the requirements of the Faculty for admission, and who complete the course and pass a satisfactory examination, will, on their graduation receive the Diploma of the Institution, and on their admission to Elder's orders and the presentation of a satisfactory theological thesis, also receive the degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

SPECIAL ELOCUTIONARY EXERCISES.

An avowed object of this Institution is to train young men with a view to their becoming ready and efficient extemporaneous preachers. Elocution therefore, is taught systematically and by progressive courses. Besides the system of study and practice, arrangements are made to furnish each year a special course of instruction and drill from one of the best practical teachers of elocution in the country.

During the continuance of these special exercises, all needful concession of time and opportunity will be granted those students who are prepared for and anxious to profit personally by, the oratorical training to which the special Professor devotes his exclusive attention.

NON-RESIDENT LECTURERS.

Besides the regular resident corps of instructors, lectures are given by representative men of different denominations and various fields of activity who present special topics of importance to young men preparing for the ministry.

ORIENTAL AND MODERN LANGUAGES.

Special instruction is given to those desiring it in the Arabic, Syriac, and Sanscrit. Also, to meet the demands arising from the enlarged mission fields of the Church, the same opportunity will be afforded in German, French, Italian, and Spanish. In neither case is there additional expense to the student.

LIBRARY.

1. The Library is unusually rich in works adapted to the consultation and reading of students for the ministry. There is no department of theological literature which is not well represented Special care has been bestowed to provide introductory books, such as leading works in Bibliography and Lexicography, both general and special, in the English, German, and French languages. There are complete sets of the Abbe Migne's uniform edition of the Greek and Latin Fathers, the Oxford translation of the Fathers, Wesley's Christian Library, Tischendorf's Codex Sinaiticus, and the collected works of the Reformers and of many of the later leading writers of Europe and America. There are likewise full sets of prominent reviews and periodicals, both foreign and American.

2. The Seminary has been fortunate in securing the collection of early and rare publications on Methodism, used by the Rev. Dr. Stevens in the preparation of his Histories, and of Creamer's unrivaled collection of Hymnology. The library of the late Dr. McClintock has been purchased by the Seminary, and forms an important part, particularly in Practical Theology, Lexicography, and Philology. Valuable contributions have recently been made by the estate of the late Thos. Carlton, D.D., by Miss Amanda King, by John B. Cornell, Esq., and by the family of the late Rev. John D. Blain, making an increase of about fifteen hundred volumes.

3. The Libraries of the Professors are also available to the students under suitable restrictions. The total number of volumes thus accessible is over twenty thousand, representing all departments of theological literature and the affiliated sciences. The advantage of such a collection of works, adapted in every way to the requirements of the theological student, in each stage of his curriculum, is very great. Where text-books are taken from the library, they can be retained during the entire term.

READING ROOM.

The Reading Room is supplied with the representative Quarterlies, Magazines, and Newspapers, both religious and literary, of this country and Europe. The advantage thus afforded is supplemented by the excellent Reading Room of the Young Men's Christian Association.

LITERARY SOCIETIES.

Three societies, the McClintock Literary Society, the Philoponea Literary Association, and the Foster Lyceum, are in active operation in th institution. Their object is the cultivation of readiness and accuracy c thought, and its expression in speech. The range of topics discussed is nc confined to theology, but embraces the whole field of inquiry with which Minister of the Gospel ought to be acquainted.

MISSIONS.

This institution having been established in immediate contiguity with tl centre of Missionary operations of the Methodist Episcopal Church, aims to give suitable prominence to those kinds of instruction which a needed, (1,) by students purposing to go as missionaries to forei countries, and (2,) by ministers at home, who ought always to have intelligent sympathy with their brethren in the foreign field, and a fix purpose to promote the conversion of the world. To these ends spec studies are provided for candidates for foreign mission service, and regu instruction is given to each senior class in reference to the history, agenci and results of missions.

Furthermore, with a view to maintaining a general and practical inter in the Missionary enterprises of the Church, an Association has be organized, embracing the members of the Faculty as well as all the studer for the purpose of collecting and reporting information respecting principal mission fields of the world. This organization also contempla public discussions of the various practical questions which challenge attention of missionaries in the field and the managers and supporters missions at home. Addresses are often secured from returned and outgc missionaries.

EXPENSES—ROOMS.

The expense of attending the Seminary has always been remarkably l and every effort will be made to reduce it still further. No ch is made for tuition, room rent, furniture, or use of library or rea room. The only charge made by the Seminary is ten dollars per y for incidental expenses, which must be paid in advance. Heat (eleven dollars the current year,) lights, and washing are paid for the students. Board in the club averages $2.81 per week, the present year.

Asbury Hall was prepared solely for the use of students. Each room is supplied with carpet, full set of furniture, beds, and blankets. Students provide their toilet and bed linen. Books are secured at from 25 to 33 per cent. discount from list prices. Thus all the expenses are reduced to the lowest possible rates. Married students can be accommodated with rooms for themselves, but not for their families.

Students wishing to pursue a Special Course may do so, on providing accommodations for themselves in the vicinity. Apartments in the town can be easily secured at moderate prices.

AID TO STUDENTS.—PASTORAL AND CITY MISSIONARY WORK.

1. Munificent provision has been made for meeting every want and expense of the student, except the single item of living. The Seminary year being but eight months, provision is necessary for that time only. The interval of four months can be employed, as is frequently the case, in teaching and pastoral work. Such opportunities are often afforded by the demands naturally arising in the populous region in which the Seminary is situated, and especially because of its immediate proximity to such cities as Newark, Jersey City, and New-York. On the other hand, no student below the grade of Middle can take pastoral work without the special action of the Faculty. This regulation is based upon the fact that it is not wise on the part of the student to divert his attention from the great work in hand. He needs all his time, all of it, especially during the early part of his course, for patient and studious preparation for the highest usefulness.

2. In addition to the facilities named above, provision has been made to meet, so far as possible, the wants of students preparing to preach the Gospel; and to give them the complete benefit of their stay in the Seminary, the McClintock Association, composed of a number of ladies of New-York, Baltimore, and other places, have generously undertaken to extend to this interest in part. Most of the Conferences have Educational Societies for the same object.

3. We would call the special attention of the able and benevolent members of our Church to the importance of providing help for many young men who are looking to the Ministry, but who are unable to meet the expenses incident to attendance upon the Seminary, even for a short time. There is many a young man who would be of great service to the Church and the world but for pecuniary embarrassment, from which he could be easily relieved by the liberality of those who are not called to preach, but are called to give.

4. We are happy to announce that this urgent want has been remembered in one instance, which we name with the hope that it will be suggestive: The late Hon. James Riddle, of Wilmington, Del., has bequeathed a sum, the revenue of which is to be applied, perpetually, to the education of two students in the Seminary.

LOCATION OF THE SEMINARY.

The Drew Theological Seminary is located at Madison, New-Jersey. The situation is one of the most picturesque and healthful in the United States.

The Seminary Park contains ninety-five acres of land, a large proportion of which is highly ornamented with walks and drives, trees and shrubbery. On the corner contiguous to the village is the new and beautiful Methodist Episcopal Church. The Seminary buildings occupy a central position in the Park. They are:

1. Mead Hall, the main edifice, containing the Chapel, Reading-Room, Lecture Rooms, Offices of the Professors, and the Library.

2. Asbury Hall, containing seventy-two rooms for students.

3. Embury Hall, containing the Dining Hall, Society Hall, Matron's apartments, and rooms for twenty students.

On either side of these buildings are the Professors' residences.

It would scarcely have been possible to select a site commanding more positive advantages for the special purposes of such an institution.

Madison combines the most agreeable scenery, the quiet and seclusion essential to advantageous study, and the society of a cultivated Christian community. The students have easy access to the City of New-York. Hence they have every opportunity to visit the Book or Mission Rooms, the Church, to consult Public Libraries, Museums of Science, Art, and Antiquities, or to observe metropolitan life and institutions. They are thus enabled to secure whatever real advantages may be derived from personal acquaintance with the great national centre of business, population, and intelligence, without being constantly subjected to the numerous disadvantages inseparable from the excitements and avocations of cities.

Persons desiring any further information concerning the Seminary are requested to address the President.

Extract from the Constitution of the Seminary.

PROFESSORSHIPS, SCHOLARSHIPS, AND LIBRARY ALCOVES.

SECTION I.—Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of forty thousand dollars, or more, for the purpose of founding a Professorship, shall have the privilege of naming such Professorship, which name shall not be altered thereafter.

SECTION II.—Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of five thousand dollars, or more, for the purpose of founding a scholarship, shall have the privilege, not only of naming such scholarship, but also of nominating, during his or their lifetime, the beneficiaries who are to be placed upon said foundation, who shall receive board as well as instruction gratuitously.

SECTION III.—Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of two thousand dollars, shall have the right of naming an Alcove in the Library, to be occupied by books purchased with the money so given or bequeathed.

Course of Study.

The regular course of study requires three years for its completion. It is arranged with reference to the attainments of college graduates. It is earnestly desired that all students whose circumstances will allow them to obtain a college education, should do so before entering the Seminary;

I.—JUNIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Hebrew Grammar; four chapters of Genesis, Messianic selections from the Pentateuch. Lectures on the following topics: Hebrew Archæology.—Civil, religious and social institutions. Biblical Chronology.—Patriarchs; profane chronology; reigns of Judah and Israel; Daniel's seventy weeks; Christ's ministry; synchronisms in the Acts. Biblical Geography.—Eden; ethnography; route of the Israelites; Palestine in different ages; Jerusalem; Temple; Christ's journeys; Paul's tours. Biblical Introduction.—An account of the author, date, occasion and contents of each Book of Scripture. Such of the above topics as admit of it are illustrated by maps and diagrams.

NEW TESTAMENT LITERATURE.—Greek Harmony; Galatians; Septuagint. During the first term of the Junior Year, in connection with the study of the Greek text, attention is given to the harmony of the Gospel narratives; and during the second term, such selections from the Acts are read as bear upon the study of Paul's Epistles. A course of lectures is given on the difference between Classical and Hellenistic Greek.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—Old Testament History; New Testament History.—Lectures are given on other nations in relation to Israel, and on the interval of Jewish History between the close of the Old Testament Canon and the time of Christ. The condition of Palestine and the Roman Empire at the commencement of the Christian Era is presented at the close of the year.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—The nature, scope, method, and sources of theology: the being of God, together with leading anti-theistic assumption, atheism, pantheism, positivism, and naturalistic evolutionism; apologetics; the attributes of God; the Trinity; the divinity of Christ; the Holy Spirit.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Vocal Culture; Bibliography and Authorship. 1.—Systematic attention is given to the principles and practice of vocal expression; the design being to put students on a course of thorough self-cultivation in true and effective oratory. 2.—By means of lectures and illustrative teaching it is sought to make students acquainted with Bibliography in all its most important branches and applications—also with the relative merits and claims upon the attention of ministers, of the most celebrated books and authors of successive periods. Historical notices of libraries—library methods—the right judgment of books, habits of reading and study, book buying and the proper selections for students' and ministers' libraries are among the topics discussed in this course of lectures and instruction. Exercises in rhetorical composition are required monthly.

II.—MIDDLE YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Selections from the Psalms and Job. Lectures on Canon of the O. T.—Traditional period; formative period; editorial period. Canon of the N. T.—Apostolic period; period of codification (evidences of Apostolic Fathers, earliest ecclesiastical writers, early versions, first heretics); segregative period (acknowledged books, antilegomena, heretical and apocryphal writings); authoritative period (4th century and onward); era of Reformation (modern). Sacred Criticism.—Original authorities (MSS.); ancient versions; citations; critical conjecture; canons of criticism; history of printed text.

NEW TESTAMENT LITERATURE.—Corinthians, Ephesians, and 1st John. Throughout the Middle year, in addition to the Exegesis, New Testament Literature is studied, including a discussion of New Testament Philology. The Literature and Hermeneutics are taught mostly by lectures.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—Church History (Classical and Mediæval Periods.)—Attention is first bestowed on the Introduction to the Study of Historical Theology.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Anthropology.—The origin, nature, primitive state, probation, and fall of man; the depravity of the race—its nature, proofs, source, ground, and consequence; the nature of sin; the doctrine of the will. Christology: the personality, humiliation, and exaltation of Christ.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Catechetics; Homiletics; Vocal Culture; Gesture. The science of Catechetics is taught chiefly by lectures, including the Sunday School Enterprise, which is fully discussed in its theoretical and practical aspects. The science of Homiletics is studied systematically in a text-book, accompanied by lectures and praxes on plans and the composition of sermons. A course of lectures is delivered on the History of Preachers and Preaching; embodying reviews and criticisms of sermons of the leading preachers of different periods, Churches, and countries. Students are also exercised in the analysis and criticism of sermons.

III.—SENIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Ecclesiastes, selections from the Prophetical Books, Deborah's Ode; Biblical Chaldee; Chaldee Grammar. Lectures on Inspiration.—History of opinion; classification of theories; Scriptural statements on the question; definition of terms; dogmatic statement of the true view. Interpretation.—Objects and difficulties; practical canons of hermeneutics; history of interpretation; select list of the best commentaries, with criticisms.

NEW TESTAMENT LITERATURE.—Leviticus in the LXX.; Hebrews; Romans; Greek Fathers; Introduction to Manuscript Study. The method is for the most part the same as in the Junior and Middle Years. The best books for study and reference on the New Testament are indicated during the course.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—Church History (Post Reformation Period): History of the Church in the 18th and 19th Centuries. Lectures on the History of the American Church will complete the year. The students are expected to furnish, at proper intervals, written essays bearing on the subjects under treatment.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Soteriology.—The truth, necessity, nature, sufficiency, and universality of the atonement; the conditionality of its saving grace; its benefits in justification, regeneration, assurance, sanctification. Eschatology: immortality, intermediate state, second advent, resurrection, judgment and final destinies.

Through the triennial course in this department, instruction is given mostly by lectures.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—The Christian Pastorate; Church Polity; Discipline of the M. E. Church; Pulpit Elocution. Instruction in Pastoral Theology is by text-books and lectures. The following topics receive attention; History of religious offices; institution of the Christian ministry; ministerial call; reponsibility of the pastoral care; qualities demanded in pastors; Church Polity; idea of the Church; organization of the N. T. Church; subsequent forms of Church government; controversies on Church Polity; origin and character of Methodist Church economy; administration of discipline; ecclesiastical judicature; Church enterprises; Practice in Pulpit Elocution and in homiletical composition and criticism continue throughout the year.

General Information.

RELIGIOUS EXERCISES.

Public prayers are conducted in the chapel, daily, by the members of the Faculty. Wednesday mornings, one hour is devoted alternately to prayer meetings, and to preaching by members of the Senior Class, in presence of the Faculty and Students.

The students are divided into religious classes, each of which meets on Thursday evening, and with one of its own number as leader. A general prayer-meeting is held each Sabbath morning.

The Methodist Church edifice adjoins the Seminary grounds. The students avail themselves of the opportunities there for public and social worship.

ADMISSION.

Candidates for admission to the regular Seminary Course, must produce the diploma of A. B. from a college or university, or must pass an examination satisfactory to the Faculty in classical and general literature and science.

Applicants for admission who are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, must bring a certificate of local preacher's license, or a recommendation either from a quarterly conference or a leaders' meeting, with the written concurrence of their Pastor and Presiding Elder. The form of recommendation authorized by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is as follows: "We, the members of the Quarterly Conference of ——— ———, hereby express our judgment that ——— ——— is called of God to the work of the ministry, and we recommend him as a suitable person to become a student in the Drew Theological Seminary."

This must be signed by the President and Secretary of the Quarterly Conference. Members of other Churches must bring satisfactory recommendations from ministers of the Churches to which they belong.

Students from other Theological Seminaries, will on presenting a certificate of their good standing in the same, be admitted to the same relative position in this Institution.

Students may be admitted to either of the classes at any time during the year, on passing a satisfactory examination.

The Seminary year begins the third Thursday in September and ends the third Thursday in May, on which day the public anniversary exercises are held.

GRADUATION.

Students who have the degree of A.B., or its equivalent, in classical and scientific culture from a College or University, and who complete the Seminary Course, and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive the degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

Students not graduates of college, whose linguistic and scientific attainments meet the requirements of the Faculty for admission to the regular course, and who complete the course and pass a satisfactory examination, will, on their graduation, receive the Diploma of the Institution.

SPECIAL ELOCUTIONARY EXERCISES.

An avowed object of this Institution is to train young men with a view to their becoming ready and efficient extemporaneous preachers. Elocution, therefore, is taught systematically and by progressive courses. Besides this system of study and practice, arrangements are made to furnish each year a special course of instruction and drill from one of the best practical teachers of elocution in the country.

During the continuance of these special exercises, all needful concessions of time and opportunity will be granted those students who are prepared for, and anxious to profit personally by, the oratorical training to which the special Professor devotes his attention.

NON-RESIDENT LECTURERS.

Besides the regular resident corps of instructors, lectures are given by representative men of different denominations and various fields of activity, who present special topics of importance to young men preparing for the ministry.

ORIENTAL AND MODERN LANGUAGES.

Special instruction is given to those desiring it in the Arabic, Syriac, and Sanscrit. Also, to meet the demands arising from the enlarged mission fields of the Church, the same opportunity will be afforded in German, French, Italian, and Spanish. In neither case is there additional expense to the student.

LIBRARY.

1. The Library is unusually rich in works adapted to the consultation and reading of students for the ministry. There is no department of theological literature which is not well represented. Special care has been bestowed to provide introductory books, such as leading works in Bibliography and Lexicography, both general and special, in the English, German, and French languages. There are complete sets of the Abbe Migne's uniform edition of the Greek and Latin Fathers, the Oxford translation of the Fathers, Wesley's Christian Library, Tischendorf's Codex Sinaiticus, and the collected works of the Reformers and of many of the later leading writers of Europe and America. There are likewise full sets of prominent reviews and periodicals, both foreign and American.

2. The Seminary has been fortunate in securing the collection of early and rare publications on Methodism, used by the Rev. Dr. Stevens in the preparation of his Histories, and of Creamer's unrivaled collection of Hymnology. The library of the late Dr. McClintock has been purchased by the Seminary, and forms an important part, particularly in Practical Theology, Lexicography, and Philology. Valuable contributions have recently been made by the estate of the late Thos. Carlton, D.D., by Miss Amanda King, by John B. Cornell, Esq., and by the family of the late Rev. John D. Blain, making an increase of about fifteen hundred volumes.

3. The Libraries of the Professors are also available to the students under suitable restrictions. The total number of volumes thus accessible is over twenty thousand, representing all departments of theological literature and the affiliated sciences. The advantage of such a collection of works, adapted in every way to the requirements of the theological student, in each state of his curriculum, is very great. Where text-books are taken from the library, they can be retained during the entire term.

READING ROOM.

The Reading Room is supplied with the representative Quarterlies, Magazines, and Newspapers, both religious and literary, of this country and Europe. The advantage thus afforded is supplemented by the excellent Reading Room of the Young Men's Christian Association.

LITERARY SOCIETIES.

Three societies, the McClintock Literary Society, the Philoponean Literary Association, and the Foster Lyceum, are in active operation in the institution. Their object is the cultivation of readiness and accuracy of thought, and its expression in speech. The range of topics discussed is not confined to theology, but embraces the whole field of inquiry with which a Minister of the Gospel ought to be acquainted.

MISSIONS.

This institution having been established in immediate contiguity with the centre of Missionary operations of the Methodist Episcopal Church, it aims to give suitable prominence to those kinds of instruction which are needed, (1,) by students purposing to go as missionaries to foreign countries, and (2,) by ministers at home, who ought always to have an intelligent sympathy with their brethren in the foreign field, and a fixed purpose to promote the conversion of the world. To these ends special studies are provided for candidates for foreign mission service, and regular instruction is given to each senior class in reference to the history, agencies, and results of missions.

Furthermore, with a view to maintaining a general and practical interest in the Missionary enterprises of the Church, an ASSOCIATION has been organized, embracing the members of the Faculty as well as all the students, for the purpose of collecting and reporting information respecting the principal mission fields of the world. This organization also contemplates public discussions of the various practical questions which challenge the attention of missionaries in the field and the managers and supporters of missions at home. Addresses are often secured from returned and outgoing missionaries.

EXPENSES—ROOMS.

The expense of attending the Seminary has always been remarkably low, and every effort will be made to reduce it still further. No charge is made for tuition, room rent, furniture, or use of library or reading room. The only charge made by the Seminary is ten dollars per year, for incidental expenses, which must be paid in advance. Heating, (eleven dollars the current year,) lights and washing are paid for by the students. Board in the club averages $2.81 per week, the present year.

Asbury Hall was prepared solely for the use of students. Each room is supplied with carpet, full set of furniture, beds, and blankets. Students provide their toilet and bed linen. Books are secured at from 25 to 33 per cent. discount from list prices. Thus all the expenses are reduced to the lowest possible rates. Married students can be accommodated with rooms for themselves, but not for their families.

Students wishing to pursue a Special Course may do so, on providing accommodations for themselves in the vicinity. Apartments in the town can be easily secured at moderate prices.

AID TO STUDENTS.—PASTORAL AND CITY MISSIONARY WORK.

2. In addition to the facilities named above, provision has been made to meet, so far as possible, the wants of students preparing to preach the Gospel; and to give them the complete benefit of their stay in the Seminary, the McClintock Association, composed of a number of ladies of New-York, Baltimore, and other places, have generously undertaken to attend to this interest in part. Most of the Conferences have Educational Societies for the same object.

3. We would call the special attention of the able and benevolent members of our church to the importance of providing help for many young men who are looking to the Ministry, but who are unable to meet the expenses incident to attendance upon the Seminary, even for a short time. There is many a young man who would be of great service to the church and the world but for pecuniary embarrassment, from which he could be easily relieved by the liberality of those who are not called to preach, but are called to give.

4. We are happy to announce that this urgent want has been remembered in one instance, which we name with the hope that it will be suggestive: The late Hon. James Riddle, of Wilmington, Del., has bequeathed a sum, the revenue of which is to be applied, perpetually, to the education of two students in the Seminary.

ALUMNI AND ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

Notwithstanding the recency of its organization, this Seminary is already represented by graduates to the number of one hundred and twenty-five, or more, actually engaged in ministerial and pastoral work. Their fields of labor are distributed in twenty-five different Conferences, from Canada on the North to Florida and Louisiana on the South, and from New-Hampshire in the East to Kansas and Oregon in the West. Seven graduates of the Seminary are connected with foreign mission fields, viz.: Japan, India and Bulgaria, one having been forced to return from China on account of failing health. One graduate is employed as a college professor and several are pursuing special studies in foreign Universities.

An Alumni Association has been in existence for several years. Its members hold a public anniversary and a social reunion each year, during commencement week. Not content with securing their own pleasure and profit in connection with the Institution, they have already commenced raising funds for the endowment of an Alumni Professorship. From their own number liberal subscriptions have been made toward that important object and it is confidently hoped that by self-denial and co-operative activity they will accomplish the task they have taken in hand.

LOCATION OF THE SEMINARY.

THE DREW THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY is located at Madison, New-Jersey. The situation is one of the most picturesque and healthful in the United States.

The Seminary Park contains ninety-five acres of land, a large portion of which is highly ornamented with walks and drives, trees and shrubbery. On the corner contiguous to the village is the new and beautiful Methodist Episcopal Church. The Seminary buildings occupy a central position in the Park. They are:

1. MEAD HALL, the main edifice, containing the Chapel, Reading-Room, Lecture Rooms, Offices of the Professors, and the Library.

2. ASBURY HALL, containing seventy-two rooms for students.

3. EMBURY HALL, containing the Dining Hall, Society Hall, Matron's apartments, and rooms for twenty students.

On either side of these buildings are the Professors' residences.

It would scarcely have been possible to select a site commanding more positive advantages for the special purposes of such an institution.

Madison combines the most agreeable scenery, the quiet and seclusion essential to advantageous study, and the society of a cultivated Christian community. The students have easy access to the City of New-York. Hence they have every opportunity to visit the Book or Mission Rooms of the Church, to consult Public Libraries, Museums of Science, Art and Antiquities, or to observe metropolitan life and institutions. They are thus enabled to secure whatever real advantages may be derived from personal acquaintance with the great national centre of business, population and intelligence, without being constantly subjected to the numerous disadvantages inseparable from the excitements and avocations of cities.

Course of Study.

The regular course of study requires three years for its completion. It is arranged with reference to the attainments of college graduates. It is earnestly desired that all students whose circumstances will allow them to obtain a college education, should do so before entering the Seminary.

I—JUNIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Hebrew Grammar; four chapters of Genesis, and Messianic selections from the Pentateuch. Lectures on the following topics: Hebrew Archæology.—Civil and religious institutions; employments; domestic and social usages; safeguards of life, property, and franchise; treatment of criminals; burial customs. Biblical Chronology.—Patriarchs; profane chronology; reigns of Judah and Israel; Daniel's seventy weeks; Christ's ministry; synchronisms in the Acts. Biblical Geography.—Eden; ethnography; route of the Israelites; Palestine in different ages; Jerusalem; Temple; Christ's journeys; Paul's tours. Biblical Introduction.—An account of the author, date, occasion, contents, and difficulties of each Book of Scripture, in order. Such of the above topics as admit of it are illustrated by maps and diagrams.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Greek Harmony; Galatians; Septuagint. During the first term of the Junior Year, in connection with the study of the Greek text, attention is given to the harmony of the Gospel narratives; and during the second term, such selections from the Acts are read as bear upon the study of Paul's Epistles.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—Old Testament History; New Testament History.—Lectures are given on other nations in relation to Israel, and on the interval of Jewish History between the close of the Old Testament Canon and the time of Christ. The condition of Palestine and the Roman Empire at the commencement of the Christian Era is presented at the close of the year.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—The nature, scope, method, and sources of theology; the being of God, together with leading anti-theistic assumption, atheism, pantheism, positivism, and naturalistic evolutionism; apologetics; the attributes of God; the Trinity; the divinity of Christ; the Holy Spirit.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Vocal Culture; Bibliography and Authorship. 1.—Systematic attention is given to the principles and practice of vocal expression; the design being to put students on a course of thorough self-cultivation in true and effective oratory. 2.—By means of lectures and illustrative teaching it is sought to make students acquainted with Bibliography in all its most important branches and applications—also with the relative merits and claims upon the attention of ministers, of the most celebrated books and authors of successive periods. Historical notices of libraries—library methods—the right judgment of books, habits of reading and study, book buying and the proper selections for students' and ministers' libraries are among the topics discussed in this course of lectures and instruction. Exercises in rhetorical composition are required monthly.

II.—MIDDLE YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Selections from the Psalms and Job. Lectures on Canon of the O. T.—Traditional period; formative period; editorial period. Canon of the N. T.—Apostolic period; period of codification (evidences of Apostolic Fathers, earliest ecclesiastical writers, early versions, first heretics); segregative period (acknowledged books, antilegomena, heretical and apocryphal writings); authoritative period (4th century and onward); era of Reformation (modern). Sacred Criticism.—Original authorities (MSS.); ancient versions; citations; critical conjecture; canons of criticism; history of printed text.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Romans and Ephesians, Throughout the Middle year, in addition to the Exegesis, New Testament Literature is studied, including a discussion of New Testament Philology.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—Church History (Classical and Mediæval Periods.)—Attention is first bestowed on the Introduction to the Study of Historical Theology.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Anthropology.—The origin, nature, primitive state, probation, and fall of man; the depravity of the race—its nature, proofs, source, ground, and consequence; the nature of sin; the doctrine of the will. Christology: the personality, humiliation, and exaltation of Christ.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Catechetics; Homiletics; Vocal Culture; Gesture. The science of Catechetics is taught chiefly by lectures, including the Sunday School Enterprise, which is fully discussed in its theoretical and practical aspects. The science of Homiletics is studied systematically in a text-book, accompanied by lectures and praxes on plans and the composition of sermons. A course of lectures is delivered on the History of Preachers and Preaching; embodying reviews and criticisms of sermons of the leading preachers of different periods, Churches, and countries. Students are also exercised in the analysis and criticism of sermons.

III.—SENIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Ecclesiastes, selections from the Prophetical Books, Deborah's Ode; Biblical Chaldee; Chaldee Grammar. Lectures on Inspiration.—History of opinion; classification of theories; Scriptural statements on the question; definition of terms; dogmatic statement of the true view. Interpretation.—Objects and difficulties; practical canons of hermeneutics; history of interpretation; select list of the best commentaries, with criticisms.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Leviticus in the LXX.; Hebrews; Corinthians; Greek Fathers; Introduction to Manuscript Study. The method is for the most part the same as in the Junior and Middle Years. The best books for study and reference on the New Testament are indicated during the course.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—Church History (Post Reformation Period): History of the Church in the 18th and 19th Centuries. Lectures on the History of the American Church will complete the year. The students are expected to furnish, at proper intervals, written essays bearing on the subjects under treatment.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Soteriology.—The truth, necessity, nature, sufficiency, and universality of the atonement; the conditionality of its saving grace; its benefits in justification, regeneration, assurance sanctification. Eschatology: immortality, intermediate state, second advent, resurrection, judgment and final destinies.

Through the triennial course in this department, instruction is given mostly by lectures.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—The Christian Pastorate: Church Polity: Discipline of the M. E. Church; Pulpit Elocution. Instruction in Pastoral Theology is by text-books and lectures. The following topics receive attention; History of religious offices; institution of the Christian ministry; ministerial call; responsibility of the pastoral care; qualities demanded in pastors; Church Polity; idea of the Church; organization of the N. T. Church: subsequent forms of Church government; controversies on Church Polity; origin and character of Methodist Church economy; administration of discipline; ecclesiastical judicature; Church enterprises. Practice in Pulpit Elocution and in homiletical composition and criticism continues throughout the year.

General Information.

RELIGIOUS EXERCISES.

Public prayers are conducted in the chapel, daily, by the members of the Faculty. Wednesday mornings, one hour is devoted alternately to prayer meetings, and to preaching by members of the Senior Class, in presence of the Faculty and Students.

The students are divided into religious classes, each of which meets on Thursday evening, and with one of its own number as leader. A general prayer-meeting is held each Sabbath morning.

The Methodist Church edifice adjoins the Seminary grounds. The students avail themselves of the opportunities there for public and social worship.

ADMISSION.

Candidates for admission to the regular Seminary Course must produce the diploma of A. B. from a college or university, or must pass an examination satisfactory to the Faculty in classical and general literature and science.

Applicants for admission who are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, must bring a certificate of local preacher's license, or a recommendation either from a quarterly conference or a leader's meeting, with the written concurrence of their Pastor and presiding Elder. The form of recommendation authorized by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is as follows: "We, the members of the Quarterly Conference of ——— ———, hereby express our judgment that ——— ——— is called of God to the work of the ministry, and we recommend him as a suitable person to become a student in the Drew Theological Seminary."

This must be signed by the President and Secretary of the Quarterly Conference. Members of other Churches must bring satisfactory recommendations from ministers of the Churches to which they belong.

Students from other Theological Seminaries, will, on presenting a certificate of their good standing in the same, be admitted to the same relative position in this Institution.

Students may be admitted to either of the classes at any time during the year, on passing a satisfactory examination.

The Seminary year begins the third Thursday in September and ends the third Thursday in May, on which day the public anniversary exercises are held.

GRADUATION.

Students who have the degree of A.B., or its equivalent, in classical and scientific culture from a College or University, and who complete the Seminary Course, and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive the degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

Students not graduates of college, whose linguistic and scientific attainments meet the requirements of the Faculty for admission to the regular course, and who complete the course and pass a satisfactory examination, will, on their graduation, receive the Diploma of the Institution.

ELOCUTION.

An avowed object of this Institution is to train young men with a view to their becoming ready and efficient extemporaneous preachers. Elocution, therefore, is taught systematically and by progressive course. Besides the system of study and practice regularly required in the department of Practical Theology, arrangements are made to furnish each year a special course of instruction and drill from one of the best teachers of elocution in the country.

During the continuance of the special elocutionary exercises, such needful concessions of time and opportunity will be granted those students who are prepared for, and anxious to profit personally by, the oratorical training to which the special Professor devotes his attention.

On the plan thus stated, both the importance and the means of obtaining oratorical power are pressed upon the attention of students from the beginning to the end of their three years' course; not as a separate branch of education, but as an essential complement of their increase of knowledge by means of parallel studies in other departments. This is believed to be the very best mode of oratorical education, and where practiced, it is designed both to develope the individuality of each student and to put him on a course of self improvement that will not only enable him to attain immediate results of the highest value, but go on increasing his power of effective expression during his future ministry.

No charge is made to students for the special instruction in Elocution, but none are allowed to share it who fail to make the required preparation.

NON-RESIDENT LECTURERS.

Besides the regular resident corps of instructors, lectures are given by representative men of different denominations and various fields of activity, who present special topics of importance to young men preparing for the ministry.

ORIENTAL AND MODERN LANGUAGES.

Special instruction is given to those desiring it in the Arabic, Syriac, and Sanscrit. Also, to meet the demands arising from the enlarged mission fields of the Church, the same opportunity will be afforded in German, French, Italian, and Spanish. In neither case is there additional expense to the student.

LIBRARY.

1. The Library is unusually rich in works adapted to the consultation and reading of students for the ministry. There is no department of theological literature which is not well represented. Special care has been bestowed to provide introductory books, such as leading works in Bibliography and Lexicography, both general and special, in the English, German, and French languages. There are complete sets of the Abbe Migne's uniform edition of the Greek and Latin Fathers, the Oxford translation of the Fathers, Wesley's Christian Library, Tischendorf's Codex Sinaiticus, and the collected works of the Reformers and of many of the later leading writers of Europe and America. There are likewise full sets of prominent reviews and periodicals, both foreign and American.

2. The Seminary has been fortunate in securing the collection of early and rare publications on Methodism, used by the Rev. Dr. Stevens in the preparation of his Histories, and of Creamer's unrivaled collection of Hymnology. The library of the late Dr. McClintock has been purchased by the Seminary, and forms an important part, particularly in Practical Theology, Lexicography, and Philology. Valuable contributions have recently been made by the estate of the late Thos. Carlton, D.D., by Miss Amanda King, by John B. Cornell, Esq., and by the family of the late Rev. John D. Blain, making an increase of about fifteen hundred volumes.

3. The Libraries of the Professors are also available to the students under suitable restrictions. The total number of volumes thus accessible is over twenty thousand, representing all departments of theological literature and the affiliated sciences. The advantage of such a collection of works, adapted in every way to the requirements of the theological student, in each stage of his curriculum, is very great. Where text-books are taken from the library, they can be retained during the entire term.

READING ROOM.

The reading room is supplied with the representative Quarterlies, Magazines, and Newspapers, both religious and literary, of this country and Europe. The advantage thus afforded is supplemented by the excellent Reading Room of the Young Men's Christian Association.

LITERARY SOCIETIES.

Three societies, the McClintock Literary Society, the Philoponean Literary Association, and the Foster Lyceum, are in active operation in the institution. Their object is the cultivation of readiness and accuracy of thought, and its expression in speech. The range of topics discussed is not confined to Theology, but embraces the whole field of inquiry with which a Minister of the Gospel ought to be acquainted.

MISSIONS.

This institution having been established in immediate contiguity with the centre of Missionary operations of the Methodist Episcopal Church, it aims to give suitable prominence to those kinds of instruction which are needed, (1,) by students purposing to go as Missionaries to foreign countries, and (2,) by ministers at home, who ought always to have an intelligent sympathy with their brethern in the foreign field, and a fixed purpose to promote the conversion of the world. To these ends special studies are provided for candidates for foreign mission service, and regular instruction is given to each senior class in reference to the history, agencies, and results of missions.

Furthermore, with a view to maintaining a general and practical interest in the Missionary enterprises of the Church, an ASSOCIATION has been organized, embracing the members of the Faculty as well as all the students, for the purpose of collecting and reporting information respecting the principal mission fields of the world. This organization also contemplates public discussions of the various practical questions which challenge the attention of missionaries in the field and the managers and supporters of missions at home. Addresses are often secured from returned and outgoing missionaries.

EXPENSES—ROOMS.

The expense of attending the Seminary has always been remarkably low, and every effort will be made to reduce it still further. No charge is made for tuition, room rent, furniture, or use of library or reading room. The only charge made by the Seminary is ten dollars per year, for incidental expenses, which must be paid in advance. Heating (ten dollars the current year,) lights and washing are paid for by the students. Board in the club averages $2.41 per week, the current year.

Asbury Hall was prepared solely for the use of students. Each room is supplied with carpet, full set of furniture, beds, and blankets. Students provide their toilet and bed linen. Books are secured at from 25 to 33 per cent. discount from list prices. Thus all the expenses are reduced to the lowest possible rates. Married students can be accommodated with rooms for themselves, but not for their families.

Students wishing to pursue a Special Course may do so, on providing accommodations for themselves in the vicinity. Apartments in the town can be easily secured at moderate prices.

AID TO STUDENTS.—PASTORAL AND CITY MISSIONARY WORK.

2. In addition to the facilities named above, provision has been made to meet, so far as possible, by means of educational loans, the necessities of students preparing to preach the Gospel; and to give them the complete benefit of their stay in the Seminary. The McClintock Association, composed of a number of ladies of New-York, Baltimore, and other places, has generously undertaken to attend to this interest in part. Most of the Conferences have Educational Societies for the same object. From all sources, the Seminary was enabled to aid the students last year to the amount of $3,391.

3. We would call the special attention of the able and benevolent members of our church to the importance of providing help for many young men who are looking to the Ministry, but who are unable to meet the expenses incident to attendance upon the Seminary, even for a short time. There is many a young man who would be of great service to the church and the world but for pecuniary embarrassment, from which he could be easily relieved by the liberality of those who are not called to preach, but are called to give.

4. We are happy to announce that this urgent want has been remembered in one instance, which we name with the hope that it will be suggestive: The late Hon. James Riddle, of Wilmington, Del., has bequeathed a sum, the revenue of which is to be applied, perpetually, to the education of two students in the Seminary.

ALUMNI AND ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

Notwithstanding the recency of its organization, this Seminary is already represented by graduates to the number of one hundred and twenty-five, or more, actually engaged in ministerial and pastoral work. Their fields of labor are distributed in twenty-nine different Conferences, from Minnesota and Canada on the North to Florida, Louisiana and Texas on the South, and from New-Hampshire in the East to Kansas and Oregon in the West. Seven graduates of the Seminary are connected with foreign mission fields, viz.: Japan, India and Bulgaria, one having been forced to return from China on account of failing health. One graduate is employed as a college professor and several are pursuing special studies in foreign Universities.

An Alumni Association has been in existence for several years. Its members hold a public anniversary and a social reunion each year, during commencement week. Not content with securing their own pleasure and profit in connection with the Institution, they have already commenced raising funds for the endowment of an Alumni Professorship. From their own number liberal subscriptions have been made toward that important object and it is confidently hoped that by self-denial and co-operative activity they will accomplish the task they have taken in hand.

LOCATION OF THE SEMINARY.

THE DREW THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY is located at Madison, New-Jersey. The situation is one of the most picturesque and healthful in the United States.

The Seminary Park contains ninety-five acres of land, a large portion of which is highly ornamented with walks and drives, trees and shrubbery. On the corner contiguous to the village is the new and beautiful Methodist Episcopal Church. The Seminary buildings occupy a central position in the Park. They are:

1. MEAD HALL, the main edifice, containing the Chapel, Reading-Room, Lecture Rooms, Offices of the Professors, and the Library.
2. ASBURY HALL, containing seventy-two rooms for students.
3. EMBURY HALL, containing the Dining Hall, Society Hall, Matron's apartments, and rooms for twenty students.

On either side of these buildings are the Professors' residences.

It would scarcely have been possible to select a site commanding more positive advantages for the special purposes of such an institution.

Madison combines the most agreeable scenery, the quiet and seclusion essential to advantageous study, and the society of a cultivated Christian community. The students have easy access to the City of New-York. Hence they have every opportunity to visit the Book or Mission Rooms of the Church, to consult Public Libraries, Museums of Science, Art and Antiquities, or to observe metropolitan life and institutions. They are thus enabled to secure whatever real advantages may be derived from personal acquaintance with the great national centre of business, population and intelligence, without being constantly subjected to the numerous disadvantages inseparable from the excitements and avocations of cities.

MODES OF ACCESS.

Persons coming by way of New York city reach Madison by the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad, either from the foot of Barclay or Christopher street.

Those from the South and West, come by the Pennsylvania Railroad or the Central Railroad of New Jersey to Newark, and there change to the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad.

From Eastern and Northern Pennsylvania, students can come by way of Easton, and from the South-Western portions of the State of New York by way of Binghampton, connecting at each of those places with the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad.

Persons desiring any further information concerning the Seminary are requested to address the President.

Course of Study.

The regular course of study requires three years for its completion. It is arranged with reference to the attainments of college graduates. It is earnestly desired that all students whose circumstances will allow them to obtain a college education, should do so before entering the Seminary.

I—JUNIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Hebrew Grammar; four chapters of Genesis, and Messianic selections from the Pentateuch. Lectures on the following topics: Hebrew Archæology.—Civil and religious institutions; employments; domestic and social usages; safeguards of life, property, and franchise; treatment of criminals; burial customs. Biblical Chronology.—Patriarchs; profane chronology; reigns of Judah and Israel; Daniel's seventy weeks; Christ's ministry; synchronisms in the Acts. Biblical Geography.—Eden; ethnography; route of the Israelites; Palestine in different ages; Jerusalem; Temple; Christ's journeys; Paul's tours. Biblical Introduction.—An account of the author, date, occasion, contents, and difficulties of each Book of Scripture, in order. Such of the above topics as admit of it are illustrated by maps and diagrams.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Greek Harmony; Galatians; Septuagint. During the first term of the Junior Year, in connection with the study of the Greek text, attention is given to the harmony of the Gospel narratives; and during the second term, such selections from the Acts are read as bear upon the study of Paul's Epistles.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—Old Testament History; New Testament History.—Lectures are given on other nations in relation to Israel, and on the interval of Jewish History between the close of the Old Testament Canon and the time of Christ. The condition of Palestine and the Roman Empire at the commencement of the Christian Era is presented at the close of the year.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—The nature, scope, method, and sources of theology; the being of God, together with leading anti-theistic assumption, atheism, pantheism, positivism, and naturalistic evolutionism; apologetics; the attributes of God; the Trinity; the divinity of Christ; the Holy Spirit.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Vocal Culture; Bibliography and Authorship, 1.—Systematic attention is given to the principles and practice of vocal expression; the design being to put students on a course of thorough self-cultivation in true and effective oratory. 2.—By means of lectures and illustrative teaching it is sought to make students acquainted with Bibliography in all its most important branches and applications—also with the relative merit and claims upon the attention of ministers, of the most celebrated books and authors of successive periods. Historical notices of libraries—library methods—the right judgment of books, habits of reading and study, book buying and the proper selections for students' and ministers' libraries are among the topics discussed in this course of lectures and instruction. Exercises in rhetorical composition are required monthly.

II.—MIDDLE YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Selections from the Psalms and Job. Lectures on Canon of the O. T.—Traditional period; formative period; editorial period. Canon of the N. T.—Apostolic period; period of codification (evidences of Apostolic Fathers, earliest ecclesiastical writers, early versions, first heretics); segregative period (acknowledged books, antilegomena, heretical and apocryphal writings); authoritative period (4th century and onward); era of Reformation (modern). Sacred Criticism.—Original authorities (MSS.); ancient versions; citations; critical conjecture; canons of criticism; history of printed text.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Romans and Ephesians, Throughout the Middle year, in addition to the Exegesis, New Testament Literature is studied, including a discussion of New Testament Philology.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—Church History (Classical and Mediæval Periods.) Attention is first bestowed on the Introduction to the Study of Historical Theology.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Anthropology.—The origin, nature, primitive state, probation, and fall of man; the depravity of the race —its nature, proofs, source, ground, and consequence; the nature of sin; the doctrine of the will. Christology: the personality, humiliation, and exaltation of Christ.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY—Catechetics; Homiletics; Vocal Culture; Gesture. The science of Catechetics is taught chiefly by lectures, including the Sunday School Enterprise, which is fully discussed in its theoretical and practical aspects. The science of Homiletics is studied systematically in a text-book, accompanied by lectures and praxes on plans and the composition of sermons. A course of lectures is delivered on the History of Preachers and Preaching: embodying reviews and criticisms of sermons of the leading preachers of different periods, Churches, and countries. Students are also exercised in the analysis and criticism of sermons.

III.—SENIOR YEAR

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Ecclesiastes, selections from the Prophetical Books, Deborah's Ode; Biblical Chaldee; Chaldee Grammar. Lectures on Inspiration.—History of opinion: classification of theories; Scriptural statements on the question; definition of terms; dogmatic statement of the true view. Interpretation.—Objects and difficulties; practical canons of hermeneutics, history of interpretation; select list of the best commentaries, with criticisms.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Leviticus in the LXX.; Hebrews, Corinthians; Greek Fathers; Introduction to Manuscript Study. The method is for the most part the same as in the Junior and Middle Years. The best books for study and reference on the New Testament are indicated during the course.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—Church History (Post Reformation Period): History of the Church in the 18th and 19th Centuries. Lectures on the History of the American Church will complete the year. The students are expected to furnish, at proper intervals, written essays bearing on the subjects under treatment.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Soteriology.—The truth, necessity, nature sufficiency, and universality of the atonement; the conditionality of its saving grace; its benefits in justification, regeneration, assurance sanctification. Eschatology: immortality, intermediate state, second advent, resurrection, judgment and final destinies.

Through the triennial course in this department, instruction is given mostly by lectures.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—The Christian Pastorate: Church Polity: Discipline of the M. E. Church; Pulpit Elocution. Instruction in Pastoral Theology is by text-books and lectures. The following topics receive attention, History of religious offices; institution of the Christian ministry; ministerial call; responsibility of the pastoral care; qualities demanded in pastors; Church Polity; idea of the Church; organization of the N. T. Church; subsequent forms of Church government; controversies on Church Polity; origin and character of Methodist Church economy; administration of discipline; ecclesiastical judicature; Church enterprises. Practice in Pulpit Elocution and in homiletical composition and criticism continues throughout the year.

*Special exercises in Elocution are given daily in the early part of the second term, under Prof. R. L. Cumnock.

General Information.

RELIGIOUS EXERCISES.

Public prayers are conducted in the chapel, daily, by the members of the Faculty. Wednesday mornings, one hour is devoted alternately to prayer meetings, and to preaching by members of the Senior Class, in presence of the Faculty and Students.

The students are divided into religious classes, each of which meets on Thursday evening, and with one of its own number as leader. A general prayer-meeting is held each Sabbath morning.

The Methodist Church edifice adjoins the Seminary grounds. The students avail themselves of the opportunities there offered for public and social worship.

ADMISSION.

Candidates for admission to the regular Seminary Course must produce the diploma of A. B. from a college or university, or must pass an examination satisfactory to the Faculty in classical and general literature and science.

Applicants for admission who are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, must bring a certificate of local preacher's license, or a recommendation from either a quarterly conference or a leader's meeting, with the written concurrence of their Pastor and presiding Elder. The form of recommendation authorized by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is as follows: "We, the members of the Quarterly Conference of ——— ———, hereby express our judgment that ——— ——— is called of God to the work of the ministry, and we recommend him as a suitable person to become a student in the Drew Theological Seminary."

This must be signed by the President and Secretary of the Quarterly Conference. Members of other Churches must bring satisfactory recommendations from ministers of the Churches to which they belong.

Students from other Theological Seminaries, will, on presenting a certificate of their good standing in the same, be admitted to the same relative position in this Institution.

Students may be admitted to either of the classes at any time during the year, on passing a satisfactory examination.

The Seminary year begins the third Thursday in September and ends the third Thursday in May, on which day the public anniversary exercises are held.

GRADUATION.

Students who have the degree of A. B., or its equivalent, in classical and scientific culture from a College or University, and who complete the Seminary Course, and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive the degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

Students not graduates of college, whose linguistic and scientific attainments meet the requirements of the Faculty for admission to the regular course, and who complete the course and pass a satisfactory examination, will, on their graduation, receive the Diploma of the Institution.

ELOCUTION.

An avowed object of this Institution is to train young men with a view to their becoming ready and efficient extemporaneous preachers. Elocution, therefore, is taught systematically and by progressive courses. Besides the system of study and practice regularly required in the department of Practical Theology, arrangements are made to furnish each year a special course of instruction and drill from one of the best teachers of elocution in the country.

During the continuance of the special elocutionary exercises, all needful concessions of time and opportunity will be granted those students who are prepared for, and anxious to profit personally by, the oratorical training to which the special Professor devotes his attention.

On the plan thus stated, both the importance and the means of attaining oratorical power are pressed upon the attention of students, from the beginning to the end of their three years' course ; not as a separate branch of education, but as an essential complement of their increase of knowledge by means of parallel studies in other departments. This is believed to be the very best mode of oratorical education, and as here practiced, it is designed both to develope the individuality of each student and to put him on a course of self improvement that will not only enable him to attain immediate results of the highest value, but to go on increasing his power of effective expression during his future ministry.

No charge is made to students for the special instruction in Elocution, but none are allowed to share it who fail to make the required preparation.

NON-RESIDENT LECTURERS.

Besides the regular resident corps of instructors, lectures are given by representative men of different denominations and various fields of activity, who present special topics of importance to young men preparing for the ministry.

ORIENTAL AND MODERN LANGUAGES.

Special instruction is given to those desiring it in the Arabic, Syriac, and Sanscrit. Also, to meet the demands arising from the enlarged mission fields of the Church, the same opportunity will be afforded in German, French, Italian, and Spanish. In neither case is there additional expense to the student.

LIBRARY.

1. The Library is unusually rich in works adapted to the consultation and reading of students for the ministry. There is no department of theological literature which is not well represented. Special care has been bestowed to provide introductory books, such as leading works in Bibliography and Lexicography, both general and special, in the English, German, and French languages. There are complete sets of the Abbe Migne's uniform edition of the Greek and Latin Fathers, the Oxford translation of the Fathers, Wesley's Christian Library, Tischendorf's Codex Sinaiticus, and the collected works of the Reformers and of many of the later leading writers of Europe and America. There are likewise full sets of prominent reviews and periodicals, both foreign and American.

2. The Seminary has been fortunate in securing the collection of early and rare publications on Methodism, used by the Rev. Dr. Stevens in the preparation of his Histories, and of Creamer's unrivaled collection of Hymnology. The library of the late Dr. McClintock has been purchased by the Seminary, and forms an important part, particularly in Practical Theology, Lexicography, and Philology. Valuable contributions have recently been made by the estate of the late Thos. Carlton, D. D., by Miss Amanda King, by John B. Cornell, Esq., and by the family of the late Rev. John D. Blain, making an increase of about fifteen hundred volumes.

3. The Libraries of the Professors are also available to the students under suitable restrictions. The total number of volumes thus accessible is over twenty thousand, representing all departments of theological literature and the affiliated sciences. The advantage of such a collection of works, adapted in every way to the requirements of the theological student, in each stage of his curriculum, is very great. Where text-books are taken from the library, they can be retained during the entire term.

READING ROOM.

The reading room is supplied with the representative Quarterlies Magazines, and Newspapers, both religious and literary, of this country and Europe. The advantage thus afforded is supplemented by the excellent Reading Room of the Young Men's Christian Association.

LITERARY SOCIETIES.

Two societies, the McClintock Literary Society, and the Foster Lyceum, are in active operation in the institution. Their object is the cultivation of readiness and accuracy of thought, and its expression in speech. The range of topics discussed is not confined to Theology but embraces the whole field of inquiry with which a Minister of the Gospel ought to be acquainted.

MISSIONS.

This institution having been established in immediate contiguity with the centre of Missionary operations of the Methodist Episcopal Church, it aims to give suitable prominence to those kinds of instruction which are needed, (1,) by students purposing to go as Missionaries to foreign countries, and (2,) by ministers at home, who ought always to have an intelligent sympathy with their brethern in the foreign field, and a fixed purpose to promote the conversion of the world. To these ends special studies are provided for candidates for foreign mission service, and regular instruction is given to each senior class in reference to the history, agencies, and results of missions.

Furthermore, with a view to maintaining a general and practical interest in the Missionary enterprises of the Church, an ASSOCIATION has been organized, embracing the members of the Faculty as well as all the students, for the purpose of collecting and reporting information respecting the principal mission fields of the world. This organization also contemplates public discussions of the various practical questions which challenge the attention of missionaries in the field and the managers and supporters of missions at home. Addresses are often secured from returned and outgoing missionaries.

EXPENSES—ROOMS.

The expense of attending the Seminary has always been remarkably low, and every effort will be made to reduce it still further. No charge is made for tuition, room rent, furniture, or use of Library or reading room. The only charge made by the Seminary is ten dollars per year, for incidental expenses, which must be paid in advance. Heating (ten dollars the current year,) lights and washing are paid for by the students. Board in the club averages $2.50 per week, the current year.

Asbury Hall was prepared solely for the use of students. Each room is supplied with carpet, full set of furniture, beds, and blankets. Students provide their toilet and bed linen. Books are secured at from 25 to 33 per cent. discount from list prices. Thus all the expenses are reduced to the lowest possible rates. Married students can be accommodated with rooms for themselves, but not for their families.

Students wishing to pursue a Special Course may do so, on providing accommodations for themselves in the vicinity. Apartments in the town can be easily secured at moderate prices.

AID TO STUDENTS.—PASTORAL AND CITY MISSIONARY WORK.

2. In addition to the facilities named above, provision has been made to meet, so far as possible, by means of educational loans, the necessities of students preparing to preach the Gospel; and to give them the complete benefit of their stay in the Seminary. The McClintock Association, composed of a number of ladies of New-York, Baltimore, and other places, has generously undertaken to attend to this interest in part. Most of the Conferences have Educational Societies for the same object. From all sources, the Seminary was enabled to aid the students last year to the amount of about $3,000.

3. We would call the special attention to the able and benevolen members of our church to the importance of providing help for many young men who are looking to the Ministry, but who are unable t meet the expenses incident to attendance upon the Seminary, even fo a short time. There is many a young man who would be of grea service to the church and the world but for pecuniary embarrassment from which he could be easily relieved by the liberality of those wh are not called to preach, but are called to give.

4. We are happy to announce that this urgent want has been re membered in one instance, which we name with the hope that it will b suggestive: The late Hon. James Riddle, of Wilmington, Del., has be queathed a sum, the revenue of which is to be applied, perpetually, t the education of two students in the Seminary.

ALUMNI AND ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

Notwithstanding the recency of its organization, this Seminary is al ready represented by graduates to the number of one hundred an forty, or more, actually engaged in ministerial and pastoral work Their fields of labor are distributed in more than thirty different Con ferences, from Minnesota and Canada on the North to Florida, Louis iana and Texas on the South, and from New-Hampshire in the East t Kansas and Oregon in the West. Graduates of the Seminary are con nected with the principal foreign mission fields of the Church, viz Japan, India, Bulgaria and China.

An Alumni Association has been in existence for several years. It members hold a public anniversary and a social reunion each year, dur ing commencement week. Not content with securing their ow pleasure and profit in connection with the Institution, they have al ready commenced raising funds for the endowment of an Alumni Pro fessorship. From their own number liberal subscriptions have bee made toward that important object and it is confidently hoped that b self-denial and co-operative activity they will accomplish the task the have taken in hand.

LOCATION OF THE SEMINARY.

THE DREW THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY is located at Madison, Ne Jersey. The situation is one of the most picturesque and healthful i the United States.

The Seminary Park contains ninety-five acres of land, a large portio of which is highly ornamented with walks and drives, trees and shrub bery. On the corner contiguous to the village is the new and beautiful Methodist Episcopal Church. The Seminary buildings occupy a central position in the Park. They are :

1. MEAD HALL, the Main edifice, containing the Chapel, Reading-Room, Lecture Rooms, Offices of the Professors, and the Library.
2. ASBURY HALL, containing seventy-two rooms for students.
3. EMBURY HALL, containing the Dining Hall, Society Hall, Matron's apartments, and rooms for twenty students.

On either side of these buildings are the Professors' residences.

It would scarcely have been possible to select a site commanding more positive advantages for the special purposes of such an institution.

Madison combines the most agreeable scenery, the quiet and seclusion essential to advantageous study, and the society of a cultivated Christian community. The students have easy access to the City of New-York. Hence they have every opportunity to visit the Book or Mission Rooms of the Church, to consult Public Libraries, Museums of Science, Art and Antiquities, or to observe metropolitan life and institutions. They are thus enabled to secure whatever real advantages may be derived from personal acquaintance with the great national centre of business, population and intelligence, without being constantly subjected to the numerous disadvantages inseparable from the excitements and avocations of cities.

MODES OF ACCESS.

Persons coming by way of New-York city reach Madison by Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad, either from the foot of Barclay or Christopher street.

Those from the South and West, come by the Pennsylvania Railroad or the Central Railroad of New-Jersey to Newark, and there change to the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad.

From Eastern and Northern Pennsylvania, students can come by way of Easton, and from the South-Western portions of the State of New York by way of Binghamton, connecting at each of those places with the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad.

Resolutions of the Trustees on the Resignation of Bishop Hurst.

The Trustees of Drew Theological Seminary, in view of the resignation of President John F. Hurst, desire to place on record their estimate of his character and of the services which he has rendered to the institution, and embody the same in the following preamble and resolutions:

Whereas, The election of President John F. Hurst to the high and responsible office of Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and his removal pursuant to the instructions of the General Conference to Des Moines, Iowa, necessitate his resignation of the office of President of Drew Theological Seminary; therefore,

Resolved, 1. That in our intercourse with Dr. Hurst as Professor of Historical Theology and President of the Seminary, we have found in him a union of the Christian, the gentleman, the scholar, the man of affairs, and the personal friend.

2. That his influence over the students has been pure and elevating, the product of those qualities of mind and heart, and of the faithful, earnest, and affectionate discharge of his duty, and of his personal bearing which have rendered him so peculiarly successful in every position which he has filled.

3. That in the critical emergency when the founder of the Institution became unable through a reverse of fortune to further sustain it, at a time when the whole country was groaning under unexampled financial embarrassments, the manner in which the spirit of Dr. Hurst rose to the demands of the hour, the wisdom which he displayed in devising and executing means of relief, the untiring assiduity with which he devoted himself to the irksome task of money raising, and the hopeful and tranquil disposition which he sustained through all, alike deserve our highest esteem and kindle our sincerest affection. While we have endeavored to co-operate with him to the utmost of our ability, and duly appreciate the munificent gifts of the people, we can do no less than to declare the magnificent re-endowment of our beloved Institution to be a monument reared chiefly by the personal efforts and made possible by the personal worth of our retiring President.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be presented to Bishop Hurst, and recorded on the Minutes, and printed in the catalogue.

Course of Study.

———:o:———

The regular course of study requires three years for its completion. It is arranged with reference to the attainments of college graduates. It is earnestly desired that all students whose circumstances will allow them to obtain a college education, shall do so before entering the Seminary.

I—JUNIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Hebrew Grammar; four chapters of Genesis, and Messianic selections from the Pentateuch. Lectures on Bible History and Geography with sciopticon illustrations.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Greek Harmony; Galatians; Septuagint. During the first term of the Junior Year, in connection with the study of the Greek text, attention is given to the harmony of the Gospel narratives; and during the second term, such selections from the Acts are read as bear upon the study of Paul's Epistles.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—History of the planting and training of the Christian Church; Post Apostolic History to the middle of the fifth century.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—The subject, scope, method, and sources of Theology; Theism, with a review of anti-theistic assumptions; Revelation and Inspiration; the attributes of God; the Trinity; the Divinity of Christ; the Holy Spirit.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Vocal Culture; Bibliography and Authorship, 1.—Systematic attention is given to the principles and practice of vocal expression; the design being to put students on a course of thorough self-cultivation in true and effective oratory. 2.—By means of lectures and illustrative teaching it is sought to make students acquainted with Bibliography in all its most important branches and applications—also with the relative merit and claims upon the attention of ministers, of the most celebrated books and authors of successive periods. Historical notices of libraries—library methods—the right judgment of books, habits of reading and study, book buying and the proper selections for students' and ministers' libraries are among the topics discussed in this course of lectures and instruction. Exercises in rhetorical composition are required monthly.

II.—MIDDLE YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Selections from the Psalms and Job. Lectures on Canon of the O. T.—Traditional period; formative period; editorial period. Canon of the N. T.—Apostolic period; period of codification (evidence of Apostolic Fathers, earliest ecclesiastical writers, early visions, first heretics); segregative period (acknowledged books, antilegomena, heretical and apocryphal writings); authoritative period (4th century and onward); era of Reformation (modern). Sacred Criticism.—Original authorities (MSS.); ancient versions; citations; critical conjecture; canons of criticism; history of printed text.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Romans and Ephesians, throughout the Middle year. In addition to the Exegesis, New Testament Literature is studied, including a discussion of New Testament Philology.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—The Mediæval Period to the Protestant Reformation.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY,—Anthropology: the primitive state, probation, and fall of man; the depravity of the race; the doctrine of sin; the will. Christology: the personality of Christ.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Catechetics; Homiletics; Vocal Culture; Gesture. The science of Catechetics is taught chiefly by lectures, including the Sunday School Enterprise, which is fully discussed in its theoretical and practical aspects. The science of Homiletics is studied systematically in a text-book, accompanied by lectures and praxes on plans and the composition of sermons. A course of lectures is delivered on the History of Preachers and Preaching; embodying reviews and criticisms of sermons of the leading preachers of different periods, Churches and countries. Students are also exercised in the analysis and criticism of sermons.

III.—SENIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Ecclesiastes, selections from the Prophetical Books, Deborah's Ode; Biblical Chaldee; Chaldee Grammar. Lectures on Interpretation.—Objects and difficulties; practical canons of hermeneutics, history of interpretation; select list of the best commentaries, with criticisms.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Leviticus in the LXX.; Hebrews, Corinthians; Greek Fathers; Introduction to Manuscript study. The method is for the most part the same as in the Junior and Middle years. The best books for study and reference on the New Testament are indicated during the course.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—The Reformation and the Counter-Reformation; Rise and Growth of the Modern Protestant Churches; The History of Christian Doctrine.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Soteriology: The atonement in Christ—its reality, necessity, nature and universality; the Salvation in Christ—immediate benefits of atonement; conditional benefits. Eschatology.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—The Christian Pastorate; Church Polity; Discipline of the M. E. Church; Pulpit Elocution. Instruction in Pastoral Theology is by text-books and lectures. The following topics receive attention, History of religious offices; institution of the Christian ministry; ministerial call; responsibility of the pastoral care; qualities demanded in pastors: Church Polity; idea of the Church; organization of the N. T. Church; subsequent forms of Church government: controversies on Church Polity; origin and character of Methodist Church economy; administration of discipline; ecclesiastical judicature; Church enterprises. Practice in Pulpit Elocution and in homiletical composition and criticism continues throughout the year.

		*Elocution.

*Special exercises in Elocution are given daily in the early part of the second term, under Prof. R. L. Cumnock.

General Information.

RELIGIOUS EXERCISES.

Public prayers are conducted in the chapel, daily, by the members of the Faculty. Wednesday mornings, one hour is devoted alternately to prayer meetings, and to preaching by members of the Senior Class, in presence of the Faculty and Students.

The students are divided into religious classes, each of which meets on Thursday evening, and with one of its own number as leader. A general prayer-meeting is held each Sabbath morning.

The Methodist Church edifice adjoins the Seminary grounds. The students avail themselves of the opportunities there offered for public and social worship.

ADMISSION.

Candidates for admission to the regular Seminary Course must produce the diploma of A. B. from a college or university, or must pass an examination satisfactory to the Faculty in classical and general literature and science.

Applicants for admission who are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, must bring a certificate of local preacher's license, or a recommendation from either a quarterly conference or a leader's meeting, with the written concurrence of their Pastor and presiding Elder. The form of recommendation authorized by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is as follows: "We, the members of the Quarterly Conference of ——— ———, hereby express our judgment that ——— ——— is called of God to the work of the ministry, and we recommend him as a suitable person to become a student in the Drew Theological Seminary."

This must be signed by the President and Secretary of the Quarterly Conference. Members of other Churches must bring satisfactory recommendations from ministers of the Churches to which they belong.

Students from other Theological Seminaries, will, on presenting a certificate of their good standing in the same, be admitted to the same relative position in this Institution.

Students may be admitted to either of the classes at any time during the year, on passing a satisfactory examination.

The Seminary year begins the third Thursday in September, and ends the third Thursday in May, on which day the public anniversary exercises are held.

GRADUATION.

Students who have the degree of A. B., from a College or University, and who complete the Seminary Course, and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive the degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

Students not graduates of college, whose linguistic and scientific attainments meet the requirements of the Faculty for admission to the regular course, and who complete the course and pass a satisfactory examination, will, on their graduation, receive the Diploma of the Institution.

ELOCUTION.

An avowed object of this Institution is to train young men with a view to their becoming ready and efficient extemporaneous preachers. Elocution, therefore, is taught systematically and by progressive courses. Besides the system of study and practice regularly required in the department of Practical Theology, arrangements are made to furnish each year a special course of instruction and drill from one of the best teachers of elocution in the country.

During the continuance of the special elocutionary exercises, all needful concessions of time and opportunity will be granted those students who are prepared for, and anxious to profit personally by, the oratorical training to which the special Professor devotes his attention.

On the plan thus stated, both the importance and the means of attaining oratorical power are pressed upon the attention of students, from the beginning to the end of their three years' course; not as a separate branch of education, but as an essential complement of their increase of knowledge by means of parallel studies in other departments. This is believed to be the very best mode of oratorical education, and as here practiced, it is designed both to develope the individuality of each student, and to put him on a course of self improvement that will not only enable him to attain immediate results of the highest value, but to go on increasing his power of effective expression during his future ministry.

No charge is made to students for the special instruction in Elocution, but none are allowed to share it who fail to make the required preparation.

NON-RESIDENT LECTURERS.

Besides the regular resident corps of instructors, lectures are given by representative men of different denominations and various fields of activity, who present special topics of importance to young men preparing for the ministry.

LIBRARY.

1. The Library is unusually rich in works adapted to the consultation and reading of students for the ministry. There is no department of theological literature which is not well represented. Special care has been bestowed to provide introductory books, such as leading works in Bibliography and Lexicography, both general and special, in the English, German, and French languages. There are complete sets of the Abbe Migne's uniform edition of the Greek and Latin Fathers, the Oxford translation of the Fathers, Wesley's Christian Library, Tischendorf's Codex Sinaiticus, and the collected works of the Reformers and of many of the later leading writers of Europe and America. There are likewise full sets of prominent reviews and periodicals, both foreign and American.

2. The Seminary has been fortunate in securing the collection of early and rare publications on Methodism, used by the Rev. Dr. Stevens in the preparation of his Histories, and Creamer's unrivaled collection of Hymnology. The library of the late Dr. McClintock has been purchased by the Seminary, and forms an important part, particularly in Practical Theology, Lexicography, and Philology. Valuable contributions have recently been made by the estate of the late Thos. Carlton, D. D., by Miss Amanda King, by John B. Cornell, Esq., and by the family of the late Rev. John D. Blain, making an increase of about fifteen hundred volumes.

During the past year the Osborn collection of Wesleyan Methodism has been secured to the library by the liberality of Mr. Anderson Fowler of New York. This valuable collection is now in the possession of the Seminary.

Mr. William White of White Plains, New York, has also made valuable purchases of recent works in the departments of Systematic and Historical Theology.

3. The Libraries of the Professors are also available to the students under suitable restrictions. The total number of volumes thus accessible is over twenty thousand, representing all departments of theological literature and the affiliated sciences. The advantage of such a collection of works, adapted in every way to the requirements of the theological student, in each stage of his curriculum, is very great. Where text-books are taken from the library, they can be retained during the entire term.

READING ROOM.

The reading room is supplied with the representative Quarterlies, Magazines, and Newspapers, both religious and literary, of this country and Europe. The advantage thus afforded is supplemented by the excellent Reading Room of the Young Men's Christian Association.

LITERARY SOCIETIES.

Two societies, the McClintock Literary Society, and the Foster Lyceum, are in active operation in the institution. Their object is the cultivation of readiness and accuracy of thought, and its expression in speech. The range of topics discussed is not confined to Theology, but embraces the whole field of inquiry with which a Minister of the Gospel ought to be acquainted.

MISSIONS.

This institution having been established in immediate contiguity with the centre of Missionary operations of the Methodist Episcopal Church, it aims to give suitable prominence to those kinds of instruction which are needed, (1,) by students purposing to go as Missionaries to foreign countries, and (2,) by ministers at home, who ought always to have an intelligent sympathy with their brethern in the foreign field, and a fixed purpose to promote the conversion of the world. To these ends special studies are provided for candidates for foreign mission service, and regular instruction is given to each senior class in reference to the history, agencies, and results of missions.

Furthermore, with a view to maintaining a general and practical interest in the Missionary enterprises of the Church, an ASSOCIATION has been organized, embracing the members of the Faculty as well as all the students, for the purpose of collecting and reporting information respecting the principal mission fields of the world. This organization also contemplates public discussions of the various practical questions which challenge the attention of missionaries in the field and the managers and supporters of missions at home. Addresses are often secured from returned and outgoing missionaries.

EXPENSES—ROOMS.

Asbury Hall was prepared solely for the use of students. Each room is supplied with carpet, full set of furniture, beds, and blankets. Students provide their toilet and bed linen. Books are secured at from 25 to 33 per cent, discount from list prices. Thus all the expenses are reduced to the lowest possible rates. Married students can be accommodated with rooms for themselves, but not for their families.

Students wishing to pursue a Special Course may do so, on providing accommodations for themselves in the vicinity. Apartments in the town can be easily secured at moderate prices.

AID TO STUDENTS.—PASTORAL AND CITY MISSIONARY WORK.

2. In addition to the facilities named above, provision has been made to meet, so far as possible, by means of educational loans, the necessities of students preparing to preach the Gospel; and to give them the complete benefit of their stay in the Seminary. The McClintock Association, composed of a number of ladies of New-York, Baltimore, and other places, has generously undertaken to attend to this interest in part. Most of the Conferences have Educational Societies for the same object. From all sources, the Seminary was enabled to aid the students last year to the amount of about $3,000.

3. We would call the especial attention of the able and benevolen members of our church to the importance of providing help for many young men who are looking to the Ministry, but who are unable t meet the expenses incident to attendance upon the Seminary, even fo a short time. There is many a young man who would be of grea service to the church and the world but for pecuniary embarrassment from which he could be easily relieved by the liberality of those wh are not called to preach, but are called to give.

4. We are happy to announce that this urgent want has been re membered in one instance, which we name with the hope that it will b suggestive: The late Hon. James Riddle, of Wilmington, Del., has be queathed a sum, the revenue of which is to be applied, perpetually, t the education of two students in the Seminary.

ALUMNI AND ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

Notwithstanding the recency of its organization, this Seminary is al ready represented by graduates to the number of two hundred an twenty, or more, actually engaged in ministerial and pastoral work Their fields of labor are distributed in more than thirty different Con ferences, from Minnesota and Canada on the North to Florida, Louis iana and Texas on the South, and from New-Hampshire in the East t Kansas and Oregon in the West. Graduates of the Seminary are con nected with the principal foreign mission fields of the Church, viz Japan, India, Bulgaria and China.

An Alumni Association has been in existence for several years. It members hold a public anniversary and a social reunion each year, dur ing commencement week. Not content with securing their own pleas ure and profit in connection with the Institution, they have alread commenced raising funds for the endowment of an Alumni Professor ship. From their own number liberal subscriptions have been mad toward that important object and it is confidently hoped that by self denial and co-operative activity they will accomplish the task they hav taken in hand.

LOCATION OF THE SEMINARY.

THE DREW THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY is located at Madison, New Jersey. The situation is one of the most picturesque and healthful i the United States.

The Seminary Park contains nine-five acres of land, a large portion of which is highly ornamented with walks and drives, trees and shrub bery. On the corner contiguous to the village is the new and beautiful Methodist Episcopal Church. The Seminary buildings occupy a central position in the Park. They are :

1. MEAD HALL, the Main edifice, containing the Chapel, Reading Room, Lecture Rooms, Offices of the Professors, and the Library.
2. ASBURY HALL, containing seventy-two rooms for students.
3. EMBURY HALL, containing the Dining Hall, Society Hall, Matron's apartments, and rooms for twenty students.

On either side of these buildings are the Professors' residences.

It would scarcely have been possible to select a site commanding more positive advantages for the special purposes of such an institution.

Madison combines the most agreeable scenery, the quiet and seclusion essential to advantageous study, and the society of a cultivated Christian community. The students have easy access to the City of New-York. Hence they have every opportunity to visit the Book or Mission Rooms of the Church, to consult Public Libraries, Museums of Science, Art and Antiquities, or to observe metropolitan life and institutions. They are thus enabled to secure whatever real advantages may be derived from personal acquaintance with the great national centre of business, population and intelligence, without being constantly subjected to the numerous disadvantages inseparable from the excitements and avocations in cities.

MODES OF ACCESS.

Persons coming by way of New-York city reach Madison by Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad, either from the foot of Barclay or Christopher street.

Those from the South and West, come by the Pennsylvania Railroad or the Central Railroad of New-Jersey to Newark, and there change to the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad.

From Eastern and Northern Pennsylvania, students can come by way of Easton, and from the South-Western portions of the State of New-York by way of Binghamton, connecting at each of those places with the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad.

Course of Study.

———:o:———

The regular course of study requires three years for its completion. It is arranged with reference to the attainments of college graduates. It is earnestly desired that all students whose circumstances will allow them to obtain a college education, shall do so before entering the Seminary.

JUNIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Hebrew Grammer; four chapters of Genesis and Messianic selections from the Pentateuch. Lectures on Bible History and Geography with sciopticon illustrations.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Greek Harmony; Galatians; Septuagint. During the first year of the Junior Year, in connection with the study of the Greek Text, attention is given to the harmony of the Gospel narratives; and during the second term, such selections from the Acts are read as bear upon the study of Paul's Epistles.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—History of the planting and training of the Christian Church; Post Apostolic History to the middle of the fifth century.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—The subject, scope, method, and sources of Theology; Theism, with a review of anti-theistic assumptions; Revelation and Inspiration; the attributes of God; the Trinity; the Divinity of Christ; the Holy Spirit.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Instruction in Rhetorical Principles; Pulpit Delivery; History of Preaching.

		*Elocution,

*Special exercises in Elocution are given daily in the early part of the second term, under Prof. R. L. Cumnock.

General Information.

RELIGIOUS EXERCISES.

Public prayers are conducted in the chapel, daily, by the members of the Faculty. Wednesday mornings, one hour is devoted alternately to prayer meetings, and to preaching by members of the Senior Class, in presence of the Faculty and Students.

The students are divided into religious classes, each of which meets on Thursday evening, and with one of its own number as leader. A general prayer-meeting is held each Sabbath morning.

The Methodist Church edifice adjoins the Seminary grounds. The students avail themselves of the opportunities there offered for public and social worship.

ADMISSION.

Candidates for admission to the regular Seminary Course must each produce the diploma of A. B. from a college or university, or must pass an examination satisfactory to the Faculty in classical and general literature and science.

Applicants for admission who are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, must each bring a certificate of local preacher's license, or a recommendation from either a quarterly conference or a leader's meeting, with the written concurrence of the Pastor and presiding Elder. The form of recommendation authorized by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is as follows: "We, the members of the Quarterly Conference of ——— ———, hereby express our judgment that ——— ——— is called of God to the work of the ministry, and we recommend him as a suitable person to become a student in the Drew Theological Seminary."

This must be signed by the President and Secretary of the Quarterly Conference. Members of other Churches must bring satisfactory recommendations from ministers of the Churches to which they belong.

Students from other Theological Seminaries, will, on presenting certificates of their good standing in the same, be admitted to the same relative position in this Institution.

Students may be admitted to any one of the classes at any time during the year, on passing a satisfactory examination.

The Seminary year begins on the third Thursday in September, and ends the third Thursday in May, on which day the public anniversary exercises are held.

GRADUATION.

Students who have the degree of A. B., from a College or University, and who complete the Seminary Course, and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive the degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

Students not graduates of college, whose linguistic and scientific attainments meet the requirements of the Faculty for admission to the regular course, and who complete the course and pass a satisfactory examination, will, on their graduation, receive the Diploma of the Institution.

ELOCUTION.

An avowed object of this Institution is to train young men with a view to their becoming ready and efficient extemporaneous preachers. Elocution, therefore, is taught systematically and by progressive courses. Besides the system of study and practice regularly required in the department of Practical Theology, arrangements are made to furnish each year a special course of instruction and drill from one of the best teachers of elocution in the country.

During the continuance of the special elocutionary exercises, all needful concessions of time and opportunity will be granted those students who are prepared for, and anxious to profit personally by, the oratorical training to which the special Professor devotes his attention.

On the plan thus stated, both the importance and the means of attaining oratorical power are pressed upon the attention of students, from the beginning to the end of their three years' course; not as a separate branch of education, but as an essential complement of their increase of knowledge by means of parallel studies in other departments. This is believed to be the very best mode of oratorical education, and as here practiced, it is designed both to develope the individuality of each student, and to put him on a course of self improvement that will not only enable him to attain immediate results of the highest value, but to go on increasing his power of effective expression during his future ministry.

No charge is made to students for the special instruction in Elocution, but none are allowed to share it who fail to make the required preparation.

NON-RESIDENT LECTURERS.

Besides the regular resident corps of instructors, lectures are given by representative men of different denominations and various fields of activity, who present special topics of importance to young men preparing for the ministry. During the past year special lectures have also been given by members of the Faculty.

LIBRARY.

1. The Library is unusually rich in works adapted to the consultation and reading of students for the ministry. There is no department of theological literature which is not well represented. Special care has been bestowed to provide introductory books, such as leading works in Bibliography and Lexicography, both general and special, in the English, German, and French languages. There are complete sets of the Abbe Migne's uniform edition of the Greek and Latin Fathers, the Oxford translation of the Fathers, Wesley's Christian Library, Tischendorf's Codex Sinaiticus, and the collected works of the Reformers and of many of the later leading writers of Europe and America. There are likewise full sets of prominent reviews and periodicals, both foreign and American.

2. The Seminary has been fortunate in securing the collection of early and rare publications on Methodism, used by the Rev. Dr. Stevens in the preparation of his Histories, and Creamer's unrivaled collection of Hymnology. The library of the late Dr. McClintock has been purchased by the Seminary, and forms an important part, particularly in Practical Theology, Lexicography, and Philology. Valuable contributions have recently been made by the estate of the late Thos Carlton, D. D., by Miss Amanda King, by John B. Cornell, Esq., and by the family of the late Rev. John D. Blain, making an increase of about fifteen hundred volumes.

The Osborn collection of Wesleyan Methodism has also been secured to the library by the liberality of Mr. Anderson Fowler,of New York. This valuable collection is now in the possession of the Seminary.

Mr. William White, of White Plains, New York, has also made valuable purchases of recent works in the departments of Systematic and Historical Theology and has furnished the Reading Room with the choicest Periodical Literature.

3. The Libraries of the Professors are also available to the students under suitable restrictions. The total number of volumes thus accessible is over twenty thousand, representing all departments of theological literature and the affiliated sciences. The advantage of such a collection of works, adapted in every way to the requirements of the theological student, in each stage of his curriculum, is very great. Where text-books are taken from the library, they can be retained during the entire term.

READING ROOM.

The reading room is supplied with the representative Quarterlies Magazines, and Newspapers, both religious and literary, of this country and Europe. The advantage thus afforded is supplemented by the excellent Reading Room of the Young Men's Christian Association.

LITERARY SOCIETIES.

Two societies, the McClintock Literary Society, and the Foster Lyceum, are in active operation in the institution. Their object is the cultivation of readiness and accuracy of thought, and its expression in speech. The range of topics discussed is not confined to Theology, but embraces the whole field of inquiry with which a Minister of the Gospel ought to be acquainted.

MISSIONS.

This institution having been established in immediate contiguity with the centre of Missionary operations of the Methodist Episcopal Church, it aims to give suitable prominence to those kinds of instruction which are needed, (1,) by students purposing to go as Missionaries to foreign countries, and (2,) by ministers at home, who ought always to have an intelligent sympathy with their brethren in the foreign field, and a fixed purpose to promote the conversion of the world. To these ends special studies are provided for candidates for foreign mission service, and regular instruction is given to each senior class in reference to the history, agencies, and results of missions.

Furthermore, with a view to maintaining a general and practical interest in the Missionary enterprises of the Church, an ASSOCIATION has been organized, embracing the members of the Faculty as well as all the students, for the purpose of collecting and reporting information respecting the principal mission fields of the world. This organization also contemplates public discussions of the various practical questions which challenge the attention of missionaries in the field and the managers and supporters of missions at home. Addresses are often secured from returned and outgoing missionaries.

EXPENSES—ROOMS.

Asbury Hall was prepared solely for the use of students. Each room is supplied with carpet, full set of furniture, beds and blankets. Students provide their toilet and bed linen. Books are secured at from 25 to 33 per cent. discount from list prices. Thus all the expenses are reduced to the lowest possible rates. Married students can be accommodated with rooms for themselves, but not for their families.

Students wishing to pursue a Special Course may do so, on providing accommodations for themselves in the vicinity. Apartments in the town can be easily secured at moderate prices.

AID TO STUDENTS—PASTORAL AND CITY MISSIONARY WORK.

2. In addition to the facilities named above, provision has been made to meet, so far as possible, by means of educational loans, the necessities of students preparing to preach the Gospel ; and to give them the complete benefit of their stay in the Seminary. The McClintock Association, composed of a number of ladies of New-York, Baltimore and other places, has generously undertaken to attend to this interest in part. Most of the Conferences have Educational Societies for the same object. From all sources, the Seminary was enabled to aid the students last year to the amount of about $3,000.

3. We would call the especial attention of the able and benevolent members of our church to the importance of providing help for many young men who are looking to the Ministry, but who are unable to meet the expenses incident to attendance upon the Seminary, even for a short time. There is many a young man who would be of great service to the church and the world but for pecuniary embarrassment, from which he could be easily relieved by the liberality of those who are not called to preach, but are called to give.

4. We are happy to announce that this urgent want has been remembered in one instance, which we name with the hope that it will be suggestive : The late Hon. James Riddle, of Wilmington, Del., has bequeathed a sum, the revenue of which is to be applied, perpetually, to the education of two students in the Seminary.

ALUMNI AND ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

Notwithstanding the recency of its organization, this Seminary is already represented by graduates to the number of two hundred and twenty, or more, actually engaged in ministerial and pastoral work. Their fields of labor are distributed in more than thirty different Conferences, from Minnesota and Canada on the North to Florida, Louisiana and Texas on the South, and from New-Hampshire in the East to Kansas and Oregon in the West. Graduates of the Seminary are connected with the principal foreign mission fields of the Church, viz.: Japan, India, Bulgaria and China.

An Alumni Association has been in existence for several years. Its members hold a public anniversary and a social reunion each year, during commencement week. Not content with securing their own pleasure and profit in connection with the Institution, they have already commenced raising funds for the endowment of an Alumni Professorship. From their own number liberal subscriptions have been made toward that important object and it is confidently hoped that by self-denial and co-operative activity they will accomplish the task they have taken in hand.

LOCATION OF THE SEMINARY.

THE DREW THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY is located at Madison, New Jersey. The situation is one of the most picturesque and healthful in the United States.

The Seminary Park contains ninety-five acres of land, a large portion of which is highly ornamented with walks and drives, trees and shrubbery. On the corner contiguous to the village is the new and beautiful Methodist Episcopal Church. The Seminary buildings occupy a central position in the Park. They are:

1. MEAD HALL, the Main edifice, containing the Chapel, Reading Room, Lecture Rooms, Offices of the Professors and the Library.
2. ASBURY HALL, containing seventy-two rooms for students.
3. EMBURY HALL, containing the Dining Hall, Society Hall, Matron's apartments, and rooms for twenty students.

On either side of these buildings are the Professors' residences.

It would scarcely have been possible to select a site commanding more positive advantages for the special purposes of such an institution.

Madison combines the most agreeable scenery, the quiet and seclusion essential to advantageous study, and the society of a cultivated Christian community. The students have easy access to the City of New-York. Hence they have every opportunity to visit the Book or Mission Rooms of the Church, to consult Public Libraries, Museums of Science, Art and Antiquities, or to observe metropolitan life and institutions. They are thus enabled to secure whatever real advantages may be derived from personal acquaintance with the great national centre of business, population and intelligence, without being constantly subjected to the numerous disadvantages inseparable from the excitements and avocations in cities.

MODES OF ACCESS.

Persons coming by way of New-York City reach Madison by Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad, either from the foot of Barclay or Chaistopher street.

Those from the South and West, come by the Pennsylvania Railroad or the Central Railroad of New-Jersey to Newark, and there change to the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad.

From Eastern and Northern Pennsylvania, students can come by way of Easton, and from the South-Western portions of the State of New-York by way of Binghamton, connecting at each of those places with the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad.

Persons desiring any further information concerning the Seminary are requested to address the President.

Course of Study.

———:o:———

The regular course of study requires three years for its completion. It is arranged with reference to the attainments of college graduates. It is earnestly desired that all students whose circumstances will allow them to obtain a college education, shall do so before entering the Seminary.

JUNIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Hebrew Grammer; four chapters of Genesis and Messianic selections from the Pentateuch. Lectures on Bible History and Geography with sciopticon illustrations.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Greek Harmony; Galatians; Septuagint. During the first term of the Junior Year, in connection with the study of the Greek Text, attention is given to the harmony of the Gospel narratives; and during the second term, such selections from the Acts are read as bear upon the study of Paul's Epistles.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—History of the planting and training of the Christian Church; Post Apostolic History to the middle of the fifth century.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—The subject, scope, method and sources of Theology; Theism, with a review of anti-theistic assumptions; Revelation and Inspiration; the attributes of God; the Trinity; the Divinity of Christ; the Holy Spirit.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Instruction in Rhetorical Principles; Pulpit Delivery; History of Preaching.

II.—MIDDLE YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Selections from the Psalms and Job. Lectures on Canon of the O. T.—Traditional period; formative period; editorial period. Canon of the N. T.—Apostolic period; period of codification (evidence of Apostolic Fathers, earliest ecclesiastical writers, early versions, first heretics); segregative period (acknowledged books, antilegomena, heretical and apocryphal writings); authoritative period (4th century and onward); era of Reformation (modern). Sacred Criticism.—Original authorities (MSS.); ancient versions; citations; critical conjecture; canons of criticism; history of printed text.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Romans and Ephesians, throughout the Middle year. In addition to the Exegesis, New Testament Literature is studied, including a discussion of New Testament Philology and Text Criticism.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—The Mediæval Period to the Protestant Reformation.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Anthropology: the primitive state, probation, and fall of man; the depravity of the race; the doctrine of sin; the will. Christology: the personality of Christ.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Homeletics: Drill in choice of subjects and texts; sermons by the students; frequent exercises in extemporaneous speaking. Liturgics: The conduct of Public Worship; reading of Scriptures and Hymns. Catechetics: including the Sunday School Enterprise.

III.—SENIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Ecclesiastes, selections from the Prophetical Books, Deborah's Ode; Biblical Chaldee; Chaldee Grammar. Lectures on Interpretation.—Objects and difficulties; practical canons of hermeneutics, history of interpretation; select list of the best commentaries, with criticisms.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Hebrews and Corinthians. The method is for the most part the same as in the Junior and Middle years. The best books for study and reference on the New Testament are indicated during the course.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—The Reformation and the Counter-Reformation; Rise and Growth of the Modern Protestant Churches. The History of Christian Doctrine.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Soteriology: The atonement in Christ—its reality, necessity, nature and universality. The Salvation in Christ—immediate benefits of atonement; conditional benefits. Eschatology.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Lectures on Church Polity; Theories of Church government; Apostolic Succession; the Discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Lectures on Pastoral Duties; qualities demanded in Pastors, Pastoral Visiting, the Pastor's relation to Revivals of Religion. Church Enterprises.—Missions; Church Extension.

General Information.

Drew Seminary is one of the fruits of the centenary of American Methodism, which was commemorated in 1866. The grounds and buildings are the gift of Mr. Daniel Drew, of New York. It has been endowed by the liberal offerings of its Trustees and other friends throughout the Church. It was opened for students in the year 1867, and has now two hundred and sixty-seven graduates. Its sons are to be found in all the Conferences of the Church and in our foreign missions. The late Rev. Dr. John McClintock was the first President and organizer of the course of instruction. From the beginning the aim of the studies pursued has been to train young men to be effective preachers of the Gospel, and at the same time to fit them by scholarly attainments for any service which the Church may require at their hands. While theology in all its branches is carefully taught, the art of preaching is assiduously cultivated.

The seat of the Seminary is Madison, New Jersey, one the most picturesque and healthful situations for a school of learning in the United States. The Seminary Park contains ninety-five acres of land, a large portion of which is highly ornamented with walks and drives, trees and shrubbery. The buildings occupy a central position in the Park. They are:

1. MEAD HALL, the Main edifice, containing the Chapel, Reading Room, Lecture Rooms, Offices of the Professors and the Library.
2. ASBURY HALL, containing seventy-two rooms for students.
3. EMBURY HALL, containing the Dining Hall, Society Hall, Matron's apartments, and rooms for twenty students.

On either side of these buildings are the Professors' homes.

ADMISSION.

Candidates for admission to the regular Seminary Course must each produce the diploma of A. B. from a college or university, or must pass an examination satisfactory to the Faculty in classical and general literature and science.

Applicants for admission who are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, must each bring a certificate of local preacher's license, or a recommendation from either a quarterly conference or a leader's meeting, with the written concurrence of the Pastor and Presiding Elder. The form of recommendation authorized by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is as follows: "We, the members of the Quarterly Conference of ——— ———, hereby express our judgment that ——— ——— is called of God to the work of the ministry, and we recommend him as a suitable person to become a student in the Drew Theological Seminary."

This must be signed by the President and Secretary of the Quarterly Conference. Members of other Churches must bring satisfactory recommendations from ministers of the Churches to which they belong.

Students from other Theological Seminaries, will, on presenting certificates of their good standing in the same, be admitted to the same relative position in this Institution.

Students may be admitted to any one of the classes at any time during the year, on passing a satisfactory examination.

The Seminary year begins on the third Thursday in September, and ends the third Thursday in May, on which day the public anniversary exercises are held.

GRADUATION.

Students who have the degree of A. B., from a College or University, and who complete the Seminary Course, and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive the Degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

Students not graduates of college, whose linguistic and scientific attainments meet the requirements of the Faculty for admission to the regular course, and who complete the course and pass a satisfactory examination, will, on their graduation, receive the Diploma of the Institution.

A partial course of study occupying two full Seminary years has been provided for those properly prepared and whose circumstances do not permit their completing the full Seminary course. Students who complete this course of study and pass a satisfactory examination thereon will receive a certificate to that effect.

MISSIONS.

This Institution having been established in the neighborhood of the centre of Missionary operations of the Methodist Episcopal Church, it aims to give suitable prominence to those kinds of instruction which are needed, (1,) by students purposing to go as Missionaries to foreign countries, and (2,) by ministers at home, who ought always to have an intelligent sympathy with their brethren in the foreign field, and a fixed purpose to promote the conversion of the world. To these ends special studies are provided for candidates for foreign mission service, and regular instruction is given to each senior class in reference to the history, agencies, and results of missions.

Furthermore, with a view to maintaining a general and practical interest in the Missionary enterprises of the Church, an ASSOCIATION has been organized, embracing the members of the Faculty as well as all the students, for the purpose of collecting and reporting information respecting the principal mission fields of the world. This organization also contemplates public discussions of the various practical questions which challenge the attention of missionaries in the field and the managers and supporters of missions at home. Addresses are often secured from returned and outgoing missionaries.

ELOCUTION.

An avowed object of the Seminary is to train young men with a view to their becoming ready and efficient extemporaneous preachers. Elocution, therefore,is taught systematically and by progressive courses. Besides the system of study and practice regularly required in the department of Practical Theology, arrangements are made to furnish each year a special course of instruction and drill from one of the best teachers of elocution in the country.

Special instruction in elocution has been provided for all the classes one day in each week throughout the Seminary year.

On the plan thus stated, both the importance and the means of attaining oratorical power are pressed upon the attention of students, from the beginning to the end of their three years' course; not as a separate branch of education, but as an essential complement of their increase of knowledge by means of parallel studies in other departments. This is believed to be the very best mode of oratorical education, and as here practiced, it is designed both to develope the individuality of each student, and to put him on a course of self improvement that will not only enable him to attain immediate results of the highest value, but to go on increasing his power of effective expression during his future ministry.

No charge is made to students for the special instruction in Elocution, but none are allowed to share it who fail to make the required preparation.

NON-RESIDENT LECTURERS.

Besides the regular resident corps of instructors, lectures are given by representative men of different denominations and from various fields of activity, who present special topics of importance to young men preparing for the ministry. During the past year special lectures have also been given by members of the Faculty.

LIBRARY.

1. The Library is unusually rich in works adapted to the consultation and reading of students for the ministry. There is no department of theological literature which is not well represented. Special care has been bestowed to provide introductory books, such as leading works in Bibliography and Lexicography, both general and special, in the English, German and French languages. There are complete sets of the Abbe Migne's uniform edition of the Greek and Latin Fathers, the Oxford translation of the Fathers, Wesley's Christian Library, Tischendorf's Codex Sinaiticus, and the collected works of the Reformers and of many of the later leading writers of Europe and America. There are likewise full sets of prominent reviews and periodicals, both foreign and American.

2. The Seminary has been fortunate in securing the collection of early and rare publications on Methodism, used by the Rev. Dr. Stevens in the preparation of his Histories, and Creamer's unrivaled collection of Hymnology. The library of the late Dr. McClintock has been purchased by the Seminary, and forms an important part, particularly in Practical Theology, Lexicography and Philology. Valuable contributions have been made by the estate of the late Thos. Carlton, D.D., by Miss Amanda King, by John B. Cornell, Esq., and by the family of the late Rev. John D. Blain, making an increase of about fifteen hundred volumes.

3. The Osborn collection of works relating to Wesleyan Methodism has also been secured to the library by the liberality of Mr. Anderson Fowler, of New York. This valuable collection is now in the possession of the Seminary, and is the most complete in the world in its special line.

Mr. William White, of White Plains, New York, has made valuable purchases of recent works for the departments of Systematic and Historical Theology, and has furnished the Reading Room with the choicest Periodical Literature.

4. The Libraries of the Professors are available to the students under suitable restrictions. The total number of volumes thus accessible is over twenty thousand, representing all departments of theological literature and the affiliated sciences. The advantage of such a collection of works, adapted in every way to the requirements of the theological student, in each stage of his curriculum, is very great. Where text books are taken from the library, they can be retained during the entire term.

The Library is opened to students for one hour every day during term time, and for several hours on Saturday.

READING ROOM.

The reading room is supplied with many of the representative Quarterlies, Magazines and Newspapers, both religious and literary, of this country and England. The advantage thus afforded is supplemented by the excellent Reading Room of the Young Men's Christian Association of Madison.

LITERARY SOCIETY.

The Drew Literary Society is in active operation in the institution. The object is the cultivation of readiness and accuracy of thought, and its expression in speech. The range of topics discussed is not confined to Theology, but embraces the whole field of inquiry with which a Minister of the Gospel ought to be acquainted.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

Notwithstanding the recency of its organization, this Seminary is already represented by graduates to the number of three hundred and four, or more, actually engaged in ministerial and pastoral work. Their fields of labor are distributed in more than thirty different Conferences, from Minnesota and Canada on the North to Florida, Louisiana and Texas on the South, and from New-Hampshire in the East to Kansas and Oregon in the West. Graduates of the Seminary are connected with the principal foreign mission fields of the Church, viz: Japan, India, Bulgaria and China.

An Alumni Association has been in existence for several years. Its members hold a public anniversary and a social reunion each year, during commencement week. Not content with securing their own pleasure and profit in connection with the Institution, they have already commenced raising funds for the improvement of the Seminary grounds and property. From their own number subscriptions have been made toward that important object and it is confidently hoped that by self-denial and co-operative activity they will accomplish the task they have taken in hand.

RELIGIOUS EXERCISES.

Public prayers are conducted in the chapel, daily, by the members of the Faculty. Wednesday mornings, one hour is devoted alternately to prayer-meetings, and to preaching by members of the Senior Class, in presence of the Faculty and Students.

The annual love-feast on Wednesday morning of commencement week has always been a memorable occasion.

The students are divided into religious classes, each of which meets on Thursday evening, and with one of its own number as leader. A general prayer-meeting is held each Sabbath morning.

The Methodist Church edifice adjoins the Seminary grounds. The students avail themselves of the opportunities there offered for public

MODES OF ACCESS.

Persons coming by way of New-York City reach Madison by Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad, either from the foot of Barclay or Christopher street.

Those from the South and West, come by the Pennsylvania Railroad or the Central Railroad of New-Jersey to Newark, and there change to the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad.

From Eastern and Northern Pennsylvania, students can come by way of Easton, and from the South-Western portions of the State of New-York by way of Binghamton, connecting at each of those places with the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad.

Persons desiring any further information concerning the Seminary are requested to address the President.

Course of Study.

—:o:—

The regular course of study requires three years for its completion. It is arranged with reference to the attainments of college graduates. It is earnestly desired that all students whose circumstances will allow them to obtain a college education, shall do so before entering the Seminary.

JUNIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Hebrew Grammar; four chapters of Genesis and Messianic selections from the Pentateuch. Lectures of Bible History and Geography with stereopticon illustrations.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Greek Harmony; Galatians; Septuagint. During the first term of the Junior Year, in connection with the study of the Greek Text, attention is given to the harmony of the Gospel narratives; and during the second term, such selections from the Acts are read as bear upon the study of Paul's Epistles.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—History of the planting and training of the Christian Church; Post Apostolic History to the middle of the fifth century.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—The subject, scope, method and sources of Theology; Theism, with a review of anti-theistic assumptions; Revelation and Inspiration; the attributes of God; the Trinity; the Divinity of Christ; the Holy Spirit.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Instruction in Rhetorical Principles; Pulpit Delivery; History of Preaching.

II.—MIDDLE YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Selections from the Psalms and Job. Lectures on Canon of the O. T.—Traditional period; formative period; editorial period. Canon of the N. T.—Apostolic period; period of codification (evidence of Apostolic Fathers, earliest ecclesiastical writers, early versions, first heretics); segregative period (acknowledged books, antilegomena, heretical and apocryphal writings); authoritative period (4th century and onward); era of Reformation (modern). Sacred Criticism.—Original authorities (MSS.); ancient versions; citations; critical conjecture; canons of criticism; history of printed text.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Romans and Ephesians, throughout the Middle year. In addition to the Exegesis, New Testament Literature is studied, including a discussion of New Testament Philology and Text Criticism.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—The Mediæval Period to the Protestant Reformation.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Anthropology: the primitive state, probation, and fall of man; the depravity of the race; the doctrine of sin; the will. Christology: the personality of Christ.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Homeletics: Drill in choice of subjects and texts; sermons by the students; frequent exercises in extemporaneous speaking. Liturgics: The conduct of Public Worship; reading of Scriptures and Hymns. Catechetics: including the Sunday School Enterpise.

III.—SENIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Ecclesiastes, selections from the Prophetical Books, Deborah's Ode; Biblical Chaldee; Chaldee Grammer. Lectures on Interpretation.—Objects and difficulties; practical canons of hermeneutics, history of interpretation; select list of the best commentaries, with criticisms.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Hebrews and Corinthians. The method is for the most part the same as in the Junior and Middle years. The best books for study and reference on the New Testament are indicated during the course.

HISTORCIAL THEOLOGY.—The Reformation and the Counter-Reformation; Rise and Growth of the Modern Protestant Churches. The History of Christian Doctrine.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Soteriology: The atonement in Christ—its reality, necessity, nature and universality. The Salvation in Christ—immediate benefits of atonement; conditional benefits. Eschatology.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Lectures on Church Polity; Theories of Church government; Apostolic Succession; the Discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Lectures on Pastoral Duties; qualities demanded in Pastors; Pastoral Visiting, the Pastor's relation to Revivals of Religion. Church Enterprises.—Missions; Church Extension.

General Information.

Drew Seminary is one of the fruits of the centenary of American Methodism, which was commemorated in 1866. The grounds and buildings are the gift of Mr. Daniel Drew, of New York. It has been endowed by the liberal offerings of its Trustees and other friends throughout the Church. It was opened for students in the year 1867, and has now three hundred and four graduates. Its sons are to be found in all the Conferences of the Church and in our foreign missions. The late Rev. Dr. John McClintock was the first President and organizer of the course of instruction. From the beginning the aim of the studies pursued has been to train young men to be effective preachers of the Gospel, and at the same time to fit them by scholarly attainments for any service which the Church may require at their hands. While theology in all its branches is carefully taught, the art of preaching is assiduously cultivated.

The seat of the Seminary is Madison, New Jersey, one of the most picturesque and healthful situations for a school of learning in the United States. The Seminary Park contains ninety-five acres of land, a large portion of which is highly ornamented with walks and drives, trees and shrubbery. The buildings occupy a central position in the Park. They are :

1. MEAD HALL, the Main edifice, containing the Chapel, Reading Room, Lecture Rooms, Offices of the Professors and the Library.
2. ASBURY HALL, containing seventy-two rooms for students.
3. EMBURY HALL, containing the Dining Hall, Society Hall, Matron's apartments, and rooms for twenty students.

On either side of these buildings are the Professors' homes.

ADMISSION.

Candidates for admission to the regular Seminary Course must each produce the diploma of A. B. from a college or university, or must pass an examination satisfactory to the Faculty in classical and general literature and science.

Applicants for admission who are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, must each bring a certificate of local preacher's license, or a recommendation from either a quarterly conference or a leader's meeting, with the written concurrence of the Pastor and Presiding Elder. The form of recommendation authorized by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is as follows; "We, the members of the Quarterly Conference of ————, hereby express our judgment that ——— ——— is called of God to the work of the ministry, and we recommend him as a suitable person to become a student in the Drew Theological Seminary."

This must be signed by the President and Secretary of the Quarterly Conference. Members of other Churches must bring satisfactory recommendations from ministers of the Churches to which they belong.

Students from other Theological Seminaries, will, on presenting certificates of their good standing in the same, be admitted to the same relative position in this Institution.

Students may be admitted to any one of the classes at any time during the year, on passing a satisfactory examination.

The Seminary year begins on the third Thursday in September, and ends the third Thursday in May, on which day the public anniversary exercises are held.

GRADUATION.

Students who have the degree of A. B., from a College or University, and who complete the Seminary Course, and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive the Degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

Students not graduates of college, whose linguistic and scientific attainments meet the requirements of the Faculty for admission to the regular course, and who complete the course and pass a satisfactory examination, will, on their graduation, receive the Diploma of the Institution.

A partial course of study occupying two full Seminary years has been provided for those properly prepared and whose circumstances do not permit their completing the full Seminary course. Students who complete this course of study and pass a satisfactory examination thereon will receive a certificate to that effect.

MISSIONS.

This Institution having been established in the neighborhood of the centre of Missionary operations of the Methodist Episcopal Church, it aims to give suitable prominence to those kinds of instruction which are needed, (1) by students purposing to go as Missionaries to foreign countries, and (2,) by ministers at home, who ought always to have an intelligent sympathy with their brethren in the foreign field, and a fixed purpose to promote the conversion of the world. To these ends special studies are provided for candidates for foreign mission service, and regular instruction is given to each senior class in reference to the history, agencies and results of missions.

Furthermore, with a view to maintaining a general and practical interest in the Missionary enterprises of the Church, an ASSOCIATION has been organized, embracing the members of the Faculty as well as all the students, for the purpose of collecting and reporting information respecting the principal mission fields of the world. This organization also contemplates public discussions of the various practical questions which challenge the attention of missionaries in the field and the managers and supporters of missions at home. Addresses are often secured from returned and outgoing missionaries.

ELOCUTION.

An avowed object of the Seminary is to train young men with a view to their becoming ready and efficient extemporaneous preachers. Elocution, therefore, is taught systematically and by progressive courses. Besides the system of study and practice regularly required in the department of Practical Theology, arrangements are made to furnish each year a special course of instruction and drill from one of the best teachers of elocution in the country.

Special instruction in elocution has been provided for all the classes one day in each week throughout the Seminary year.

On the plan thus stated, both the importance and the means of attaining oratorical power are pressed upon the attention of students, from the beginning to the end of their three years' course; not as a separate branch of education, but as an essential complement of their increase of knowledge by means of parallel studies in other departments. This is believed to be the very best mode of oratorical education, and as here practiced, it is designed both to develope the individuality of each student, and to put him on a course of self improvement that will not only enable him to attain immediate results of the highest value, but to go on increasing his power of effective expression during his future ministry.

No charge is made to students for the special instruction in Elocution, but none are allowed to share it who fail to make the required preparation.

NON-RESIDENT LECTURERS.

Besides the regular resident corps of instructors, lectures are given by representative men of different denominations and from various fields of activity, who present special topics of importance to young men preparing for the ministry.

LIBRARY.

1. The Library is unusually rich in works adapted to the consultation and reading of students for the ministry. There is no department of theological literature which is not well represented. Special care has been bestowed to provide introductory books, such as leading works in Bibliography and Lexicography, both general and special, in the English, German and French languages. There are complete sets of the Abbe Migne's uniform edition of the Greek and Latin Fathers, the Oxford translation of the Fathers, Wesley's Christian Library, Tischendorf's Codex Sinaiticus, and the collected works of the Reformers and of many of the later leading writers of Europe and America. There are likewise full sets of prominent reviews and periodicals, both foreign and American.

2. The Seminary has been fortunate in securing the collection of early and rare publications on Methodism, used by the Rev. Dr. Stevens in the preparation of his Histories, and Creamer's unrivaled collection of Hymnology. The library of the late Dr. McClintock has been purchased by the Seminary, and forms an important part, particularly in Practical Theology, Lexicography and Philology. Valuable contributions have been made by the estate of the late Thos. Carlton, D.D., by Miss Amanda King, by John B. Cornell, Esq., and by the family of the late Rev. John D. Blain, making an increase of about fifteen hundred volumes.

3. The Osborn collection of works relating to Wesleyan Methodism has also been secured to the library by the liberality of Mr. Anderson Fowler, of New York. This valuable collection is now in the possession of the Seminary, and is the most complete in the world in its special line.

Mr. William White, of White Plains, New York, has made valuable purchases of recent works for the departments of Systematic and Historical Theology, and has furnished the Reading Room with the choicest Periodical Literature.

4. The Libraries of the Professors are available to the students under suitable restrictions. The total number of volumes thus accessible is over twenty thousand, representing all departments of theological literature and the affiliated sciences. The advantage of such a collection of works, adapted in every way to the requirements of the theological student, in each stage of his curriculum, is very great. Where text books are taken from the library, they can be retained during the entire term.

The Library is opened to students for one hour every day during term time, and for several hours on Saturday.

READING ROOM.

The reading room is supplied with many of the representative Quarterlies, Magazines and Newspapers, both religious and literary, of this country and England. The advantage thus afforded is supplemented by the excellent Reading Room of the Young Men's Christian Association of Madison.

LITERARY SOCIETY.

The Drew Literary Society is in active operation in the institution. The object is the cultivation of readiness and accuracy of thought, and its expression in speech. The range of topics discussed is not confined to Theology, but embraces the whole field of inquiry with which a Minister of the Gospel ought to be acquainted.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

Notwithstanding the recency of its organization, this Seminary is already represented by graduates to the number of three hundred and four, or more, actually engaged in ministerial and pastoral work. Their fields of labor are distributed in more than thirty different Conferences, from Minnesota and Canada on the North to Florida, Louisiana and Texas on the South, and from New-Hampshire in the East to Kansas and Oregon in the West. Graduates of the Seminary are connected with the principal foreign mission fields of the Church, viz: Japan, India, Bulgaria and China.

An Alumni Association has been in existence for several years. Its members hold a public anniversary and a social reunion each year, during commencement week. Not content with securing their own pleasure and profit in connection with the Institution, they have already commenced raising funds for the improvement of the Seminary grounds and property. From their own number subscriptions have been made toward that important object and it is confidently hoped that by self-denial and co-operative activity they will accomplish the task they have taken in hand.

RELIGIOUS EXERCISES.

Public prayers are conducted in the chapel, daily, by the members of the Faculty. Wednesday mornings, one hour is devoted alternately to prayer-meetings, and to preaching by members of the Senior Class, in presence of the Faculty and Students.

The annual love-feast on Wednesday morning of commencement week has always been a memorable occasion.

The students are divided into religious classes, each of which meets on Thursday evening, and with one of its own number as leader. A general prayer-meeting is held each Sabbath morning.

The Methodist Church edifice adjoins the Seminary grounds. The students avail themselves of the opportunities there offered for public and social worship. Preaching services are held in the chapel each Sunday afternoon by members of the Faculty.

EXPENSES—ROOMS.

Asbury Hall was prepared solely for the use of students. Each room is supplied with carpet, full set of furniture, beds and blankets. Students provide their toilet and bed linen. Books are secured at from 25 to 33 per cent. discount from list prices. Thus all the expenses are reduced to the lowest possible rates. Married students can be accommodated with rooms for themselves, but not for their families.

Students wishing to pursue the partial course may do so, on providing accommodations for themselves in the vicinity. Apartments in the town can be secured at moderate prices.

AID TO STUDENTS—PASTORAL AND CITY MISSIONARY WORK.

1. Ample provision has been made for meeting every want and expense of the student, except the single item of living. The Seminary year being but eight months, provision is necessary for that time only. The interval of four months can be employed, as is frequently the case in teaching or pastoral work. Such opportunities are often afforded by the demands naturally arising in the populous region in which the Seminary is situated, and especially because of its immediate proximity to such cities as Newark, Jersey City and New York. On the other hand no student below the grade of Middle can take pastoral work without the special action of the Faculty. This regulation is based upon the fact that it is not wise on the part of the student to divert his attention from the regular course of instruction. He needs his time, all of it especially during the early part of his course, for patient and studious preparation for the highest usefulness.

2. In addition to the facilities named above, provision has been made to meet, so far as possible, by means of educational loans, the necessities of students preparing to preach the Gospel; and to give them the complete benefit of their stay in the Seminary. The McClintock Association, composed of a number of ladies of New-York, Baltimore and other places, has generously undertaken to attend to this interest in part. Important aid is likewise afforded by the General Board of Education of our Church. Most of the Conferences have Educational Societies for the same object. From all sources, the Seminary was enabled to aid the students last year to the amount of about $3,000.

3. We would call the especial attention of the able and benevolent members of our church to the importance of providing help for many young men who are looking to the Ministry, but who are unable to meet the expenses incident to attendance upon the Seminary, even for a short time. There is many a young man who would be of great service to the church and the world but for pecuniary embarrassment, from which he could be easily relieved by the liberality of those who are not called to preach, but are called to give.

4. We are happy to announce that this urgent want has been remembered in one instance, which we name with the hope that it will be suggestive: The late Hon. James Riddle, of Wilmington, Del., has bequeathed a sum, the revenue of which is to be applied, perpetually, to the education of two students in the Seminary.

Extract from the Constitution of the Seminary.

PROFESSORSHIPS, SCHOLARSHIPS AND LIBRARY ALCOVES.

SECTION I.—Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of forty thousand dollars, or more, for the purpose of founding a Professorship, shall have the privilege of naming such Professorship, which name shall not be altered thereafter.

SECTION II.—Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of five thousand dollars, or more, for the purpose of founding a scholarship, shall have the privilege, not only of naming such scholarship, but also of nominating, during his or their lifetime, the beneficiaries who are to be placed upon said foundation, who shall receive board as well as instruction gratuitously.

SECTION III.—Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury or bequeath by will, the sum of two thousand dollars, shall have the right of naming an Alcove in the Library, to be occupied by books purchased with the money so given or bequeathed.

 All bequests should be made to the "Trustees of the Drew Theological Seminary of the Methodist Episcopal Church," situated at Madison, New-Jersey.

MODES OF ACCESS.

Persons coming by way of New-York City reach Madison by the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad, either from the foot of Barclay or Christopher street.

Those from the South and West, come by the Pennsylvania Railroad or the Central Railroad of New-Jersey to Newark, and there change to the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad.

From Eastern and Northern Pennsylvania, students can come by way of Easton, and from the South-Western portions of the State of New-York by way of Binghamton, connecting at each of those places with the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad.

Persons desiring any further information concerning the Seminary are requested to address the President.

Course of Study.

———:o:———

The regular course of study requires three years for its completion. It is arranged with reference to the attainments of college graduates. It is earnestly desired that all students whose circumstances will allow them to obtain a college education, shall do so before entering the Seminary.

I.—JUNIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Hebrew Grammar; four chapters of Genesis and Messianic selections from the Pentateuch. Lectures on Bible History and Geography with stereopticon illustrations.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Greek Harmony; Galatians; Septuagint. During the first term of the Junior Year, in connection with the study of the Greek Text, attention is given to the harmony of the Gospel narratives; and during the second term, such selections from the Acts are read as bear upon the study of Paul's Epistles.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—History of the planting and training of the Christian Church; Post Apostolic History to the middle of the fifth century.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—The subject, scope, method and sources of Theology; Theism, with a review of anti-theistic assumptions; Revelation and Inspiration; the attributes of God; the Trinity; the Divinity of Christ; the Holy Spirit.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Instruction in Rhetorical Principles; Pulpit Delivery; History of Preaching.

II.—MIDDLE YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Selections from the Psalms and Job. Lectures on Canon of the O. T.—Traditional period; formative period; editorial period. Canon of the N. T.—Apostolic period; period of codification (evidence of Apostolic Fathers, earliest ecclesiastical writers, early versions, first heretics); segregative period (acknowledged books, antilegomena, heretical and apocryphal writings); authoritative period (4th century and onward); era of Reformation (modern). Sacred Criticism.—Original authorities (MSS.); ancient versions; citations; critical conjecture; canons of criticism; history of printed text.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Romans and Ephesians, throughout the Middle year. In addition to the Exegesis, New Testament Literature is studied, including a discussion of New Testament Philology and Text Criticism.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—The Mediæval Period to the Protestant Reformation.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Anthropology: the primitive state, probation, and fall of man; the depravity of the race; the doctrine of sin; the will. Christology: the personality of Christ.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Homiletics: Drill in choice of subjects and texts; sermons by the students; frequent exercises in extemporaneous speaking. Liturgics: The conduct of Public Worship; reading of Scriptures and Hymns. Catechetics: including the Sunday School Enterprise.

III.—SENIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Ecclesiastes, selections from the Prophetical Books, Deborah's Ode; Biblical Chaldee; Chaldee Grammar. Lectures on Interpretation.—Objects and difficulties; practical canons of hermeneutics, history of interpretation; select list of the best commentaries, with criticisms.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Hebrews and Corinthians. The method is for the most part the same as in the Junior and Middle years. The best books for study and reference on the New Testament are indicated during the course.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—The Reformation and the Counter-Reformation; Rise and Growth of the Modern Protestant Churches. The History of Christian Doctrine.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Soteriology: The atonement in Christ—its reality, necessity, nature and universality. The Salvation in Christ—immediate benefits of atonement; conditional benefits. Eschatology.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Lectures on Church Polity; Theories of Church government; Apostolic Succession; the discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Lectures on Pastoral Duties; qualities demanded in Pastors; Pastoral Visiting, the Pastor's relation to Revivals of Religion. Church Enterprises.—Missions; Church Extension.

General Information.

Drew Seminary is one of the fruits of the Centenary of American Methodism, which was commemorated in 1866. The grounds and buildings are the gift of Mr. Daniel Drew, of New York. It has been endowed by the liberal offerings of its Trustees and other friends throughout the Church. It was opened for students in the year 1867, and has now three hundred and twenty-eight graduates. Its sons are to be found in all the Conferences of the Church and in our Foreign Missions. The late Rev. Dr. John McClintock was the first President and organizer of the course of instruction. From the beginning the aim of the studies pursued has been to train young men to be effective preachers of the Gospel, and at the same time to fit them by scholarly attainments for any service which the Church may require at their hands. While theology in all its branches is carefully taught, the art of preaching is assiduously cultivated.

The seat of the Seminary is Madison, New Jersey, one of the most picturesque and healthful situations for a school of learning in the United States. The Seminary Park contains ninety-five acres of land, a large portion of which is highly ornamented with walks and drives, trees and shrubbery. The buildings occupy a central position in the Park. They are:

1. MEAD HALL, the Main edifice, containing the Chapel, Reading Room, Lecture Rooms, Offices of the Professors and the Library.
2. ASBURY HALL, containing seventy-two rooms for students.
3. EMBURY HALL, containing the Dining Hall, Society Hall, Matron's apartments, and rooms for twenty students.

On either side of these buildings are the Professors' homes.

ADMISSION.

Candidates for admission to the regular Seminary Course must each produce the diploma of A. B., from a College or University, or must pass an examination satisfactory to the Faculty in classical and general literature and science.

Applicants for admission who are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, must each bring a certificate of local preacher's license, or a recommendation from either a quarterly conference or a leader's meeting, with the written concurrence of the Pastor and Presiding Elder. The form of recommendation authorized by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is as follows: "We, the members of the Quarterly Conference of ————, hereby express our judgment that ———— is called of God to the work of the ministry, and we recommend him as a suitable person to become a student in the Drew Theological Seminary."

This must be signed by the President and Secretary of the Quarterly Conference. Members of other Churches must bring satisfactory recommendations from ministers of the Churches to which they belong.

Students from other Theological Seminaries, will, on presenting certificates of their good standing in the same, be admitted to the same relative position in this Institution.

Students may be admitted to any one of the classes at any time during the year, on passing a satisfactory examination.

The Seminary year begins on the third Thursday in September, and ends the third Thursday in May, on which day the public Anniversary Exercises are held.

GRADUATION.

Students who have the degree of A. B., from a College or University, and who complete the Seminary Course, and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive the Degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

Students not graduates of college, whose linguistic and scientific attainments meet the requirements of the Faculty for admission to the regular course, and who complete the course and pass a satisfactory examination, will, on their graduation, receive the Diploma of the Institution.

A partial course of study occupying two full Seminary years has been provided for those properly prepared and whose circumstances do not permit their completing the full Seminary course. Students who complete this course of study and pass a satisfactory examination thereon will receive a Certificate to that effect.

MISSIONS.

This Institution having been established in the neighborhood of the centre of Missionary operations of the Methodist Episcopal Church, it aims to give suitable prominence to those kinds of instruction which are needed, (1,) by students purposing to go as Missionaries to foreign countries, and (2,) by ministers at home, who ought always to have an intelligent sympathy with their brethren in the foreign field, and a fixed purpose to promote the conversion of the world. To these ends special studies are provided for candidates for foreign mission service, and regular instruction is given to each Senior class in reference to the history, agencies and results of missions.

Furthermore, with a view to maintaining a general and practical interest in the Missionary enterprises of the Church, an ASSOCIATION has been organized, embracing the members of the Faculty as well as all the students, for the purpose of collecting and reporting information respecting the principal Mission fields of the world. This organization also contemplates public discussions of the various practical questions which challenge the attention of Missionaries in the field and the managers and supporters of Missions at home. Addresses are often secured from returned and outgoing Missionaries.

ELOCUTION.

An avowed object of the Seminary is to train young men with a view to their becoming ready and efficient extemporaneous preachers. Elocution, therefore, is taught systematically and by progressive courses. Besides the system of study and practice regularly required in the department of Practical Theology, arrangements are made to furnish each year a special course of instruction and drill from one of the best teachers of elocution in the country.

Special instruction in elocution has been provided for all the classes one day in each week throughout the Seminary year.

On the plan thus stated, both the importance and the means of attaining oratorical power are pressed upon the attention of students, from the beginning to the end of their three years' course; not as a separate branch of education, but as an essential complement of their increase of knowledge by means of parallel studies in other departments. This is believed to be the very best mode of oratorical education, and as here practiced, it is designed both to develope the individuality of each student, and to put him on a course of self improvement that will not only enable him to attain immediate results of the highest value, but to go on increasing his power of effective expression during his future ministry.

No charge is made to students for the special instruction in Elocution, but none are allowed to share it who fail to make the required preparation.

NON-RESIDENT LECTURERS.

Besides the regular resident corps of instructors, lectures are given by representative men of different denominations and from various fields of activity, who present special topics of importance to young men preparing for the ministry.

LIBRARY.

1. The Library is unusually rich in works adapted to the consultation and reading of students for the ministry. There is no department of theological literature which is not well represented. Special care has been bestowed to provide introductory books, such as leading works in Bibliography and Lexicography, both general and special, in the English, German and French languages. There are complete sets of the Abbe Migne's uniform edition of the Greek and Latin Fathers, the Oxford translation of the Fathers, Wesley's Christian Library, Tischendorf's Codex Sinaiticus, and the collected works of the Reformers and of many of the later leading writers of Europe and America. There are likewise full sets of prominent reviews and periodicals, both foreign and American.

2. The Seminary has been fortunate in securing the collection of early and rare publications on Methodism, used by the Rev. Dr. Stevens in the preparation of his Histories, and Creamer's unrivaled collection of Hymnology. The library of the late Dr. McClintock has been purchased by the Seminary, and forms an important part, particularly in Practical Theology, Lexicography and Philology. Valuable contributions have been made by the estate of the late Thos. Carlton, D.D., by Miss Amanda King, by John B. Cornell, Esq., and by the family of the late Rev. John D. Blain, making an increase of about fifteen hundred volumes.

3. The Osborn collection of works relating to Wesleyan Methodism has also been secured to the library by the liberality of Mr. Anderson Fowler, of New York. This valuable collection is now in the possession of the Seminary, and is the most complete in the world in its special line.

Mr. William White, of White Plains, New York, has made valuable purchases of recent works for the departments of Systematic and Historical Theology, and has furnished the Reading Room with the choicest Periodical Literature.

4. The Libraries of the Professors are available to the students under suitable restrictions. The total number of volumes thus accessible is over twenty thousand, representing all departments of theological literature and the affiliated sciences. The advantage of such a collection of works, adapted in every way to the requirements of the theological student, in each stage of his curriculum, is very great. Where text books are taken from the library, they can be retained during the entire term.

The Library is opened to students for one hour every day during term time, and for several hours on Saturday.

READING ROOM.

The Reading Room is supplied with many of the representative Quarterlies, Magazines and Newspapers, both religious and literary, of this country and England. The advantage thus afforded is supplemented by the excellent Reading Room of the Young Men's Christian Association of Madison.

LITERARY SOCIETY.

The Drew Literary Society is in active operation in the institution. The object is the cultivation of readiness and accuracy of thought, and its expression in speech. The range of topics discussed is not confined to Theology, but embraces the whole field of inquiry with which a Minister of the Gospel ought to be acquainted.

In addition to its regular Literary work, the following Special Courses of Study have been arranged with the different Professors of the Seminary, elective on the part of the members of the Society:

Ancient and Modern Hymnology	with	Dr. Strong.
Metaphysics	"	Dr. Miley.
Belles-lettres	"	Dr. Crooks.
General History	"	Dr. Upham.

Students pursuing these supplementary courses find scope for original and advanced work in lines suited to their tastes. Upon graduation, honorable mention is made upon the diploma of those attaining the required degree of proficiency in the course or courses pursued.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

Notwithstanding the recency of its organization, this Seminary is already represented by graduates to the number of three hundred and twenty-eight, or more, actually engaged in ministerial and pastoral work. Their fields of labor are distributed in more than thirty different Conferences, from Minnesota and Canada on the North, to Florida, Louisiana and Texas on the South, and from New Hampshire in the East, to Kansas and Oregon in the West. Graduates of the Seminary are connected with the principal Foreign Mission fields of the Church, viz: Japan, India, Bulgaria, China and Corea.

An Alumni Association has been in existence for several years. Its members hold a public anniversary and a social reunion each year, during Commencement week. Not content with securing their own pleasure and profit in connection with the Institution, they have taken a deep interest in all that pertains to the prosperity of the Seminary.

RELIGIOUS EXERCISES.

Public prayers are conducted in the chapel, daily, by the members of the Faculty. Wednesday mornings, one hour is devoted alternately to prayer meetings, and to preaching by members of the Senior Class, in presence of the Faculty and Students.

The annual love-feast on Wednesday morning of Commencement week has always been a memorable occasion.

The Students are divided into religious classes, each of which meets on Thursday evening, and with one of its own number as leader. A general prayer-meeting is held each Sabbath morning.

The Methodist Church edifice adjoins the Seminary grounds. The students avail themselves of the opportunities there offered for public and social worship. Services are held in the chapel each Sunday afternoon by members of the Faculty.

EXPENSES—ROOMS.

Asbury Hall was prepared solely for the use of Students. Each room is supplied with carpet, full set of furniture, beds and blankets. Students provide their toilet and bed linen. Books are secured at from 25 to 33 per cent. discount from list prices. Thus all the expenses are reduced to the lowest possible rates. Married Students can be accommodated with rooms for themselves, but not for their families.

Students wishing to pursue the partial course may do so, on providing accommodations for themselves in the vicinity. Apartments in the town can be secured at moderate prices.

AID TO STUDENTS—PASTORAL AND CITY MISSIONARY WORK.

1. Ample provision has been made for meeting every want and expense of the Student, except the single item of living. The Seminary year being but eight months, provision is necessary for that time only. The interval of four months can be employed, as is frequently the case, in teaching or pastoral work. Such opportunities are often afforded by the demands naturally arising in the populous region in which the Seminary is situated, and especially because of its immediate proximity to such cities as Newark, Jersey City and New York. On the other hand, no Student below the grade of Middle can take pastoral work without the special action of the Faculty. This regulation is based upon the fact that it is not wise on the part of the Student to divert his attention from the regular course of instruction. He needs his time, all of it, especially during the early part of his course, for patient and studious preparation for the highest usefulness.

2. In addition to the facilities named above, provision has been made to meet, so far as possible, by means of educational loans, the necessities of Students preparing to preach the Gospel; and to give them the complete benefit of their stay in the Seminary. The McClintock Association, composed of a number of ladies of New York, Baltimore and other places, has generously undertaken to attend to this interest in part. Important aid is likewise afforded by the General Board of Education of our Church. Most of the Conferences have Educational Societies for the same object. From all sources, the Seminary was enabled to aid the Students last year to the amount of about $4,000.

3. We would call the especial attention of the able and benevolent members of our church to the importance of providing help for many young men who are looking to the Ministry, but who are unable to meet the expenses incident to attendance upon the Seminary, even for a short time. There is many a young man who would be of great service to the church and the world but for pecuniary embarrassment, from which he could be easily relieved by the liberality of those who are not called to preach, but are called to give.

4. We are happy to announce that this urgent want has been remembered in one instance, which we name with the hope that it will be suggestive: The late Hon. James Riddle, of Wilmington, Del., has bequeathed a sum, the revenue of which is to be applied, perpetually, to the education of two Students in the Seminary.

5. The McClintock Association has also begun the formation of the McClintock Library, a most important contribution to the work of the Seminary.

The object of this Library is to provide and loan to the Students whose means are limited, such text books as they may need in their Seminary course. Some important works have already been purchased and are in use the present year.

Extract from the Constitution of the Seminary.

PROFESSORSHIPS, SCHOLARSHIPS AND LIBRARY ALCOVES.

SECTION I.—Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of forty thousand dollars, or more, for the purpose of founding a Professorship, shall have the privilege of naming such Professorship, which name shall not be altered thereafter.

SECTION II.—Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of five thousand dollars, or more, for the purpose of founding a Scholarship, shall have the privilege, not only of naming such Scholarship, but also of nominating, during his or their lifetime, the beneficiaries who are to be placed upon said foundation, who shall receive board as well as instruction gratuitously.

SECTION III.—Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of two thousand dollars, shall have the right of naming an Alcove in the Library, to be occupied by books purchased with the money so given or bequeathed.

 All bequests should be made to the "Trustees of the Drew Theological Seminary of the Methodist Episcopal Church," situated at Madison, New-Jersey.

MODES OF ACCESS.

Persons coming by way of New-York City reach Madison by the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad, either from the foot of Barclay or Christopher street.

Those from the South and West, come by the Pennsylvania Railroad or the Central Railroad of New Jersey to Newark, and there change to the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad.

From Eastern and Northern Pennsylvania, students can come by way of Easton, and from the South-Western portions of the State of New-York by way of Binghamton, connecting at each of those places with the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad.

Persons desiring any further information concerning the Seminary are requested to address the President.

Course of Study.

———:o:———

The regular course of study requires three years for its completion. It is arranged with reference to the attainments of college graduates. It is earnestly desired that all students whose circumstances will allow them to obtain a college education, shall do so before entering the Seminary.

I.—JUNIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Hebrew Grammar; four chapters of Genesis and Messianic selections from the Pentateuch. Lectures on Bible History and Geography.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Greek Harmony; Galatians; Septuagint. During the first term of the Junior Year, in connection with the study of the Greek Text, attention is given to the harmony of the Gospel narratives; and during the second term, such selections from the Acts are read as bear upon the study of Paul's Epistles.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—History of the planting and training of the Christian Church; Post Apostolic History to the middle of the fifth century.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Introduction. Theism, with a review of Anti-Theistic Theories. Inspiration of the Scriptures. Theistics—truths relating directly to God; Spirituality, personality, attributes, creative work, providence, the Trinity.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Instruction in Rhetorical Principles; Pulpit Delivery; History of Preaching.

II.—MIDDLE YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Selections from the Psalms and Job. Lectures on Canon of the O. T.—Traditional period; formative period; editorial period. Canon of the N. T.—Apostolic period; period of codification (evidence of Apostolic Fathers, earliest ecclesiastical writers, early versions, first heretics); segregative period (acknowledged books, antilegomena, heretical and apocryphal writings); authoritative period (4th century and onward); era of Reformation (modern). Sacred Criticism.—Original authorities (MSS.); ancient versions; citations; critical conjecture; canons of criticism; history of printed text.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Romans and Ephesians, throughout the Middle year. In addition to the Exegesis, New Testament Literature is studied, including a discussion of New Testament Philology and Text Criticism.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—The Mediæval Period to the Protestant Reformation.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Anthropology: Primitive state, probation, and fall of man; native depravity; doctrine of sin. Christology: The person of Christ. Soteriology: The atonement in Christ.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Homiletics: Drill in choice of subjects and texts; sermons by the students; frequent exercises in extemporaneous speaking. Liturgics: The conduct of Public Worship; reading of Scriptures and Hymns. Catechetics: Including the Sunday School Enterprise.

III.—SENIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Ecclesiastes, selections from the Prophetical Books, Deborah's Ode; Biblical Chaldee; Chaldee Grammar, Lectures on Interpretation.—Objects and difficulties; practical canons of hermeneutics, history of interpretation; select list of the best commentaries, with criticisms.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Hebrews and Corinthians. The method is for the most part the same as in the Junior and Middle years. The best books for study and reference on the New Testament are indicated during the course.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—The Reformation and the Counter-Reformation; Rise and Growth of the Modern Protestant Churches. The History of Christian Doctrine.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Soteriology: The Salvation in Christ—immediate and conditional benefits; doctrinal issues; vital facts of the Salvation. Eschatology.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Lectures on Church Polity; Theories of Church government; Apostolic Succession; the discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Lectures on Pastoral Duties; qualities demanded in Pastors; Pastoral Visiting, the Pastor's relation to Revivals of Religion. Church Enterprises.—Missions; Church Extension.

General Information.

Drew Seminary is one of the fruits of the Centenary of American Methodism, which was commemorated in 1866. The grounds and buildings are the gift of Mr. Daniel Drew, of New York. It has been endowed by the liberal offerings of its Trustees and other friends throughout the Church. It was opened for students in the year 1867, and has now three hundred and twenty-eight graduates. Its sons are to be found in all the Conferences of the Church and in our Foreign Missions. The late Rev. Dr. John McClintock was the first President and organizer of the course of instruction. From the beginning the aim of the studies pursued has been to train young men to be effective preachers of the Gospel, and at the same time to fit them by scholarly attainments for any service which the Church may require at their hands. While theology in all its branches is carefully taught, the art of preaching is assiduously cultivated.

The seat of the Seminary is Madison, New Jersey, one of the most picturesque and healthful situations for a school of learning in the United States. The Seminary Park contains ninety-five acres of land, a large portion of which is highly ornamented with walks and drives, trees and shrubbery. The buildings occupy a central position in the Park. They are:

1. MEAD HALL, the Main edifice, containing the Chapel, Reading Room, Lecture Rooms, Offices of the Professors and the Library.
2. ASBURY HALL, containing seventy-two rooms for students.
3. EMBURY HALL, containing the Dining Hall, Society Hall, Matron's apartments, and rooms for twenty students.

On either side of these buildings are the Professors' homes.

ADMISSION.

Candidates for admission to the regular Seminary Course must each produce the diploma of A. B., from a College or University, or must pass an examination satisfactory to the Faculty in classical and general literature and science.

Applicants for admission who are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, must each bring a certificate of local preacher's license, or a recommendation from either a quarterly conference or a leader's meeting, with the written concurrence of the Pastor and Presiding Elder. The form of recommendation authorized by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is as follows: "We, the members of the Quarterly Conference of ————, hereby express our judgment that ———— is called of God to the work of the ministry, and we recommend him as a suitable person to become a student in the Drew Theological Seminary."

This must be signed by the President and Secretary of the Quarterly Conference. Members of other Churches must bring satisfactory recommendations from ministers of the Churches to which they belong.

Students from other Theological Seminaries, will, on presenting certificates of their good standing in the same, be admitted to the same relative position in this Institution.

Students may be admitted to any one of the classes at any time during the year, on passing a satisfactory examination.

The Seminary year begins on the third Thursday in September, and ends the third Thursday in May, on which day the public Anniversary Exercises are held.

GRADUATION.

Students who have the degree of A. B,, from a College or University, and who complete the Seminary Course, and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive the Degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

Students not graduates of college, whose linguistic and scientific attainments meet the requirements of the Faculty for admission to the regular course, and who complete the course and pass a statisfactory examination, will, on their graduation, receive the Diploma of the Institution.

A partial course of study occupying two full Seminary years has been provided for those properly prepared and whose circumstances do not permit their completing the full Seminary course. Students who complete this course of study and pass a satisfactory examination thereon will receive a Certificate to that effect.

MISSIONS.

This Institution having been established in the neighborhood of the centre of Missionary operations of the Methodist Episcopal Church, it aims to give suitable prominence to those kinds of instruction which are needed, (1,) by students purposing to go as Missionaries to foreign countries, and (2,) by ministers at home, who ought always to have an intelligent sympathy with their brethren in the foreign field, and a fixed purpose to promote the conversion of the world. To these ends special studies are provided for candidates for foreign mission service, and regular instruction is given to each Senior class in reference to the history, agencies and results of missions.

Furthermore, with a view to maintaining a general and practical interest in the Missionary enterprises of the Church, an ASSOCIATION has beer organized, embracing the members of the Faculty as well as all the students, for the purpose of collecting and reporting information respecting the principal Mission fields of the world. This organization also contemplates public discussions of the various practical questions which challenge the attention of Missionaries in the field and the managers and supporters of Missions at home. Addresses are often secured from returned and outgoing Missionaries.

ELOCUTION.

An avowed object of the Seminary is to train young men with a view to their becoming ready and efficient extemporaneous preachers. Elocution, therefore, is taught systematically and by progressive courses. Besides the system of study and practice regularly required in the department of Practical Theology, arrangements are made to furnish each year a special course of instruction and drill from one of the best teachers of elocution in the country.

Special instruction in elocution has been provided for all the classes one day in each week throughout the Seminary year.

On the plan thus stated, both the importance and the means of attaining oratorical power are pressed upon the attention of students, from the beginning to the end of their three years' course; not as a separate branch of education, but as an essential complement of their increase of knowledge by means of parallel studies in other departments. This is believed to be the very best mode of oratorical education, and as here practiced, it is designed both to develope the individuality of each student, and to put him on a course of self improvement that will not only enable him to attain immediate results of the highest value, but to go on increasing his power of effective expression during his future ministry.

No charge is made to students for the special instruction in Elocution, but none are allowed to share it who fail to make the required preparation.

NON-RESIDENT LECTURERS.

Besides the regular resident corps of instructors, lectures are given by representative men of different denominations and from various fields of activity, who present special topics of importance to young men preparing for the ministry.

LIBRARY.

1. The Library is unusually rich in works adapted to the consultation and reading of students for the ministry. There is no department of theological literature which is not well represented. Special care has been bestowed to provide introductory books, such as leading works in Bibliography and Lexicography, both general and special, in the English, German and French languages. There are complete sets of the Abbe Migne's uniform edition of the Greek and Latin Fathers, the Oxford translation of the Fathers, Wesley's Christian Library, Tischendorf's Codex Sinaiticus, and the collected works of the Reformers and of many of the later leading writers of Europe and America. There are likewise full sets of prominent reviews and periodicals, both foreign and American.

To make a more commodious provision for the care of these books, and also room for their increase in numbers, the Trustees have laid the foundations of a new Library Building. This building will be of dressed stone and will afford space for the keeping of sixty-thousand Volumes.

2. The Seminary has been fortunate in securing the collection of early and rare publications on Methodism, used by the Rev. Dr. Stevens in the preparation of his Histories, and Creamer's unrivaled collection of Hymnology. The library of the late Dr. McClintock has been purchased by the Seminary, and forms an important part, particularly in Practical Theology, Lexicography and Philology. Valuable contributions have been made by the estate of the late Thos. Carlton, D.D., by Miss Amanda King, by John B. Cornell, Esq., and by the family of the late Rev. John D. Blain, making an increase of about fifteen hundred volumes.

Valuable contributions in books have been made during the past year by Mr. C. W. May, of Calcutta, through Bishop Hurst, Rev. Dr. J. M. Buckley, and others. Old publications which throw light on the early history of Methodism here and in England will be regarded as valuable contributions to the Library and will be certain of careful preservation. The new building will contain suitable provision for the keeping of such manuscripts of the founders and early organizers of Methodism as may be presented to the Seminary.

3. The Osborn collection of works relating to Wesleyan Methodism has also been secured to the library by the liberality of Mr. Anderson Fowler, of New York. This valuable collection is now in the possession of the Seminary, and is the most complete in the world in its special line.

Mr. William White, of White Plains, New York, has made valuable purchases of recent works for the departments of Systematic and Historical Theology, and has furnished the Reading Room with the choicest Periodical Literature.

4. The Libraries of the Professors are available to the students under suitable restrictions. The total number of volumes thus accessible is over twenty-five thousand, representing all departments of theological literature and the affiliated sciences. The advantage of such a collection of works, adapted in every way to the requirements of the theological student, in each stage of his curriculum, is very great. Where text books are taken from the Library, they can be retained during the entire term.

The Library is opened to students for one hour every day during term time, and for several hours on Saturday.

READING ROOM.

The Reading Room is supplied with many of the representative Quarterlies, Magazines and Newspapers, both religious and literary, of this country and England. The advantage thus afforded is supplemented by the excellent Reading Room of the Young Men's Christian Association of Madison.

LITERARY SOCIETY.

The Drew Literary Society is in active operation in the institution. The object is the cultivation of readiness and accuracy of thought, and its expression in speech. The range of topics discussed is not confined to Theology, but embraces the whole field of inquiry with which a Minister of the Gospel ought to be acquainted.

In addition to its regular Literary work, the following Special Courses of Study have been arranged with the different Professors of the Seminary, elective on the part of the members of the Society:

Ancient and Modern Hymnology .	with	Dr. Strong.
Metaphysics	"	Dr. Miley.
Belles-lettres	"	Dr. Crooks.
General History	"	Dr. Upham.

Students pursuing these supplementary courses find scope for original and advanced work in lines suited to their tastes. Upon graduation, honorable mention is made upon the diploma of those attaining the required degree of proficiency in the course or courses pursued.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

Notwithstanding the recency of its organization, this Seminary is already represented by graduates to the number of three hundred and twenty-eight, or more, actually engaged in ministerial and pastoral work. Their fields of labor are distributed in more than thirty different Conferences, from Minnesota and Canada on the North, to Florida, Louisiana and Texas on the South, and from New Hampshire in the East, to Kansas and Oregon in the West. Graduates of the Seminary are connected with the principal Foreign Mission fields of the Church, viz: Japan, India, Bulgaria, China, Korea and Mexico.

An Alumni Association has been in existence for several years. Its members hold a public anniversary and a social reunion each year, during Commencement week. Not content with securing their own pleasure and profit in connection with the Institution, they have taken a deep interest in all that pertains to the prosperity of the Seminary.

RELIGIOUS EXERCISES.

Public prayers are conducted in the chapel, daily, by the members of the Faculty. Wednesday mornings, one hour is devoted alternately to prayer meetings, and to preaching by members of the Senior Class, in presence of the Faculty and Students.

The annual love feast on Wednesday morning of Commencement week has always been a memorable occasion.

The Students are divided into religious classes, each of which meets on Thursday evening, and with one of its own number as leader. A general prayer meeting is held each Sabbath morning.

The Methodist Church edifice adjoins the Seminary grounds. The students avail themselves of the opportunities there offered for public and social worship. Services are held in the chapel each Sunday afternoon by members of the Faculty.

EXPENSES—ROOMS.

Asbury Hall was prepared solely for the use of Students. Each room is supplied with carpet, full set of furniture, beds and blankets. Students provide their toilet and bed linen. Books are secured at from 25 to 33 per cent. discount from list prices. Thus all the expenses are reduced to the lowest possible rates. Married Students can be accommodated with rooms for themselves, but not for their families.

Students wishing to pursue the partial course may do so, on providing accommodations for themselves in the vicinity. Apartments in the town can be secured at moderate prices.

AID TO STUDENTS—PASTORAL AND CITY MISSIONARY WORK.

1. Ample provision has been made for meeting every want and expense of the Student, except the single item of living. The Seminary year being but eight months, provision is necessary for that time only. The interval of four months can be employed, as is frequently the case, in teaching or pastoral work. Such opportunities are often afforded by the demands naturally arising in the populous region in which the Seminary is situated, and especially because of its immediate proximity to such cities as Newark, Jersey City and New York. On the other hand, no Student below the grade of Middle can take pastoral work without the special action of the Faculty. This regulation is based upon the fact that it is not wise on the part of the Student to divert his attention from the regular course of instruction. He needs his time, all of it especially during the early part of his course, for patient and studious preparation for the highest usefulness.

2. In addition to the facilities named above, provision has been made to meet, so far as possible, by means of educational loans, the necessities of Students preparing to preach the Gospel; and to give them the complete benefit of their stay in the Seminary. The McClintock Association, composed of a number of ladies of New York, Baltimore and other places, has generously undertaken to attend to this interest in part. Important aid is likewise afforded by the General Board of Education of our Church. Most of the Conferences have Educational Societies for the same object. From all sources, the Seminary was enabled to aid the Students last year to the amount of about $4,000.

3. We would call the especial attention of the able and benevolent members of our church to the importance of providing help for many young men who are looking to the Ministry, but who are unable to meet the expenses incident to attendance upon the Seminary, even for a short time. There is many a young man who would be of great service to the church and the world but for pecuniary embarrassment, from which he could be easily relieved by the liberality of those who are not called to preach, but are called to give.

4. We are happy to announce that this urgent want has been remembered in one instance, which we name with the hope that it will be suggestive: The late Hon. James Riddle, of Wilmington, Del., has bequeathed a sum, the revenue of which is to be applied, perpetually, to the education of two Students in the Seminary, also the late Mr. D. McDaniel, of Philadelphia, has made similar provision for the support of Students in this institution.

5. The McClintock Association has also begun the formation of the McClintock Library, a most important contribution to the work of the Seminary.

The object of this Library is to provide and loan to the Students whose means are limited, such text books as they may need in their Seminary course. Some important works have already been purchased and are in use the present year.

Extract from the Constitution of the Seminary.

PROFESSORSHIPS, SCHOLARSHIPS AND LIBRARY ALCOVES.

SECTION I.—Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of forty thousand dollars, or more, for the purpose of founding a Professorship, shall have the privilege of naming such Professorship, which name shall not be altered thereafter.

SECTION II.—Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of five thousand dollars, or more, for the purpose of founding a Scholarship, shall have the privilege, not only of naming such Scholarship, but also of nominating, during his or their lifetime, the beneficiaries who are to be placed upon said foundation, who shall receive board as well as instruction gratuitously.

SECTION III.—Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of two thousand dollars, shall have the right of naming an Alcove in the Library, to be occupied by books purchased with the money so given or bequeathed.

 All bequests should be made to the "Trustees of the Drew Theological Seminary of the Methodist Episcopal Church," situated at Madison, New-Jersey.

MODES OF ACCESS.

Persons coming by way of New-York City, reach Madison by the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad, either from the foot of Barclay or Christopher street.

Those from the South and West, come by the Pennsylvania Railroad or the Central Railroad of New-Jersey to Newark, and there change to the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad.

From Eastern and Northern Pennsylvania, students can come by way of Easton, and from the South-Western portions of the State of New-York by way of Binghamton, connecting at each of those places with the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad.

Persons desiring any further information concerning the Seminary are requested to address the President.

Course of Study.

—:o:—

The regular course of study requires three years for its completion. It is arranged with reference to the attainments of college graduates. It is earnestly desired that all students whose circumstances will allow them to obtain a college education, shall do so before entering the Seminary.

I.—JUNIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Hebrew Grammar; four chapters of Genesis and Messianic selections from the Pentateuch. Lectures on Bible History and Geography with stereopticon illustrations.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Greek Harmony; Galatians; Septuagint. During the first term of the Junior Year, in connection with the study of the Greek Text, attention is given to the harmony of the Gospel narratives; and during the second term, such selections from the Acts are read as bear upon the study of Paul's Epistles.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—History of the planting and training of the Christian Church; Post Apostolic History to the middle of the fifth century.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Introduction, Theism, with a review of Anti-Theistic Theories. Inspiration of the Scriptures. Theistics—truths relating directly to God; Spirituality, personality, attributes, creative work, providence, the Trinity.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Instruction in Rhetorical Principles; Pulpit Delivery; History of Preaching.

II.—MIDDLE YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Selections from the Psalms and Job, Lectures on Canon of the O. T.—Traditional period: formative period; editorial period. Canon of the N. T.—Apostolic period; period of codification (evidence of Apostolic Fathers, earliest ecclesiastical writers, early versions, first heretics); segregative period (acknowledged books, antilegomena, heretical and apocryphal writings); authoritative period (4th century and onward); era of Reformation (modern). Sacred Criticism.—Original authorities (MSS.): ancient versions; citations; critical conjecture; canons of criticism; history of printed text.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Romans and Ephesians, throughout the Middle year. In addition to the Exegesis, New Testament Literature is studied, including a discussion of New Testament Philology and Text Criticism.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—The Mediæval Period to the Protestant Reformation.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Anthropology: Primitive state, probation, and fall of man; native depravity; doctrine of sin. Christology: The person of Christ. Soteriology: The atonement in Christ.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Homiletics: Drill in choice of subjects and texts; sermons by the students; frequent exercises in extemporaneous speaking. Liturgics: The conduct of Public Worship; reading of Scriptures and Hymns. Catechetics: Including the Sunday School Enterprise.

III.—SENIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Ecclesiastes, selections from the Prophetical Books, Deborah's Ode, Biblical Chaldee; Chaldee Grammar, Lectures on Interpretation,—Objects and difficulties; practical canons of hermeneutics, history of interpretation; select list of the best commentaries, with criticisms.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Hebrews and Corinthians. The method is for the most part the same as in the Junior and Middle years. The best books for study and reference on the New Testament are indicated during the course.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—The Reformation and the Counter-Reformation; Rise and Growth of the Modern Protestant Churches. The History of Christian Doctrine.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Soteriology: The Salvation in Christ—immediate and conditional benefits; doctrinal issues; vital facts of the salvation. Eschatology.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY,—Lectures on Church Polity; Theories of Church government; Apostolic Succession; the discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Lectures on Pastoral duties; qualities demanded in Pastors; Pastoral Visiting, the pastor's relation to Revivals of Religion. Church Enterprises.—Missions; Church Extension.

General Information.

Drew Seminary is one of the fruits of the Centenary of American Methodism, which was commemorated in 1866. The grounds and buildings are the gift of Mr. Daniel Drew, of New York. It has been endowed by the liberal offerings of its Trustees and other friends throughout the Church. It was opened for students in the year 1867, and has now three hundred and fifty graduates. Its sons are to be found in all the Conferences of the Church and in our foreign Missions. The late Rev. Dr. John McClintock was the first President and organizer of the course of instruction. From the beginning the aim of the studies pursued has been to train young men to be effective preachers of the Gospel, and at the same time to fit them by scholarly attainments for any service which the Church may require at their hands. While theology in all its branches is carefully taught, the art of preaching is assiduously cultivated.

The seat of the Seminary is Madison, New Jersey, one of the most picturesque and healthful situations for a school of learning in the United States. The Seminary Park contains ninety-five acres of land, a large portion of which is highly ornamented with walks and drives, trees and shrubbery. The buildings occupy a central position in the Park. They are:

1. MEAD HALL, the Main edifice, containing the Chapel, Reading Room, Lecture Rooms, Offices of the Professors.
2. ASBURY HALL, containing seventy-two rooms for students.
3. EMBURY HALL, containing the Dining Hall, Society Hall, Matron's apartments, and rooms for twenty students.
4. THE NEW LIBRARY AND HISTORICAL BUILDING.

On either side of these buildings are the Professor's homes.

ADMISSION.

Candidates for admission to the regular Seminary Course must each produce the diploma of A. B., from a College or University, or must pass an examination satisfactory to the Faculty in classical and general literature and science.

Applicants for admission who are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, must each bring a certificate of local preacher's license, or a recommendation from either a quarterly conference or a leader's meeting, with the written concurrence of the Pastor and Presiding Elder. The form of recommendation authorized by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is as follows: "We, the members of the Quarterly Conference of ————, hereby express our judgment that ———— is called of God to the work of the ministry, and we recommend him as a suitable person to become a student in the Drew Theological Seminary."

This must be signed by the President and Secretary of the Quarterly Conference. Members of other Churches must bring satisfactory recommendations from ministers of the Churches to which they belong.

Students from other Theological Seminaries, will, on presenting certificates of their good standing in the same, be admitted to the same relative position in this Institution.

Students may be admitted to any one of the classes at any time during the year, on passing a satisfactory examination.

The Seminary year begins on the third Thursday in September, and ends the third Thursday in May, on which day the public Anniversary Exercises are held.

GRADUATION.

Students who have the degree of A. B., or an equivalent degree, from a College or University, and who complete the Seminary Course, and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive the Degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

Students not graduates of college, whose linguistic and scientific attainments meet the requirements of the Faculty for admission to the regular course, and who complete the course and pass a satisfactory examination, will, on their graduation, receive the Diploma of the Institution.

A partial course of study occupying two full Seminary years has been provided for those properly prepared and whose circumstances do not permit their completing the full Seminary course. Students who complete this course of study and pass a satisfactory examination thereon will receive a Certificate to that effect.

MISSIONS.

This Institution having been established in the neighborhood of the centre of Missionary operations of the Methodist Episcopal Church, it aims to give suitable prominence to those kinds of instruction which are needed, (1,) students purposing to go as Missionaries to foreign countries, and (2,) ministers at home, who ought always to have an intelligent sympathy with their brethren in the foreign field, and a fixed purpose to promote the conversion of the world. To these ends special studies are provided for candidates for foreign mission service, and regular instruction is given to each Senior class in reference to the history, agencies and results of missions.

Furthermore, with a view to maintaining a general and practical interest in the Missionary enterprises of the Church, an ASSOCIATION has been organized, embracing the members of the Faculty as well as all the students, for the purpose of collecting and reporting information respecting the principal Mission fields of the world. This organization also contemplates public discussions of the various practical questions which challenge the attention of Missionaries in the field and the managers and supporters of Missions at home. Addresses are often secured from returned and outgoing Missionaries.

ELOCUTION.

An avowed object of the Seminary is to train young men to become ready and efficient extemporaneous preachers. Elocution, therefore, is taught systematically and by progressive courses. Besides the system of study and practice regularly required in the department of Practical Theology, arrangements are made to furnish each year a special course of instruction and drill from one of the best teachers of elocution in the country.

Special instruction in elocution has been provided for all the classes one day in each week throughout the Seminary year

On the plan thus stated, both the importance and the means of attaining oratorical power are pressed upon the attention of students, from the beginning to the end of their three years' course; not as a separate branch of education, but as an essential complement of their increase of knowledge by means of parallel studies in other departments. This is believed to be the very best mode of oratorical education, and as here practiced, it is designed both to develop the individuality of each student, and to put him on a course of self improvement that will not only enable him to attain immediate results of the highest value, but to go on increasing his power of effective expression during his future ministry.

No charge is made to students for the special instruction in Elocution, but none are allowed to share it who fail to make the required preparation.

NON-RESIDENT LECTURERS.

Besides the regular resident corps of instructors, lectures are given by representative men of different denominations and from various fields of activity, who present special topics of importance to young men preparing for the ministry.

LIBRARY.

1. The Library is unusually rich in works suited to the needs of students preparing for the ministry. There is no department of theological literature which is not well represented. Special care has been bestowed to provide introductory books, such as leading English, French and German works in Bibliography and Lexicography, both general and special. There are complete sets of the Abbe Migne's uniform edition of the Greek and Latin Fathers, the Oxford translation of the Fathers, Wesley's Christian Library, and the collected works of the Reformers and of many of the later leading writers of Europe and America. There are likewise full sets of prominent reviews and periodicals, both foreign and American.

2. The Seminary has been fortunate in securing the collection of early and rare publications on Methodism, used by the Rev. Dr. Stevens in the preparation of his Histories, and Creamer's unrivaled collection of Hymnology. The library of the late Dr. McClintock has been purchased by the Seminary, and forms an important part, particularly in Practical Theology, Lexicography and Philology. Valuable contributions have been made by the estate of the late Thos. Carlton, D.D., by Miss Amanda King, by John B. Cornell, Esq., and by the family of the late Rev. John D. Blain, making an increase of about fifteen hundred volumes.

3. The Osborn collection of works relating to Wesleyan Methodism has also been secured to the library by the liberality of Mr. Anderson Fowler, of New York. This valuable collection is now in the possession of the Seminary, and is the most complete in the world in its special line.

Mr. William White, of White Plains, New York, has made valuable purchases of recent works for the departments of Systematic and Historical Theology, and has furnished other works of much importance.

4. The Libraries of the Professors are available to the students under suitable restrictions. The total number of volumes thus accessible is over twenty-five thousand, representing all departments of theological literature and the affiliated sciences. The advantage of such a collection of works, suited in every way to the requirements of the theological student, in each stage of his curriculum, is very great. Text books taken from the library, can be retained during the entire term.

The Library is opened to students for one hour every day during term time, and for several hours on Saturday.

READING ROOM.

The Reading Room is supplied with many of the representative Quarterlies, Magazines and Newspapers, both religious and literary, of this country and England. The advantage thus afforded is supplemented by the excellent Reading Room of the Young Men's Christian Association of Madison.

LITERARY SOCIETY.

The Drew Literary Society is in active operation, in the institution. The object is the cultivation of readiness and accuracy of thought, and its expression in speech. The range of topics discussed is not confined to Theology, but embraces the whole field of inquiry with which a Minister of the Gospel ought to be acquainted.

In addition to its regular Literary work, the following Special Courses of Study have been arranged with the different Professors of the Seminary, elective on the part of the members of the Society :

Ancient and Modern Hymnology	with	Dr. Strong.
Metaphysics	"	Dr. Miley.
Belles-lettres	"	Dr. Crooks.
General History	"	Dr. Upham.

Students pursuing these supplementary courses find scope for original and advanced work in lines suited to their tastes. Upon graduation, honorable mention is made upon the diploma of those attaining the required degree of proficiency in the course or courses pursued.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

Nothwithstanding the recency of its organization, this Seminary is already represented by graduates to the number of three hundred and fifty or more, actually engaged in ministerial and pastoral work. Their fields of labor are distributed in more than thirty different Conferences, from Minnesota and Canada on the North, to Florida, Louisiana and Texas on the South, and from New Hampshire in the East, to Kansas and Oregon in the west. Graduates of the Seminary are connected with the principal Foreign Mission fields of the Church, viz: Japan, India, Bulgaria, China, Corea and Mexico.

An Alumni Association has been in existence for several years. Its members hold a public anniversary and a social reunion each year, during Commencement week. Not content with securing their own pleasure and profit in connection with the institution, they have taken a deep interest in all that pertains to the prosperity of the Seminary.

RELIGIOUS EXERCISES.

Public prayers are conducted in the chapel, daily, by the members of the Faculty. Wednesday mornings, one hour is devoted alternately to prayer meetings, and to preaching by members of the Senior Class, in presence of the Faculty and Students.

The annual love feast on Wednesday morning of Commencement week has always been a memorable occasion

The Students are divided into religious classes, each of which meets on Thursday evening, and with one of its own number as leader. A general prayer meeting is held each Sabbath morning.

The Methodist Church edifice adjoins the Seminary grounds. The students avail themselves of the opportunities there offered for public and social worship. Services are held in the chapel each Sunday afternoon by members of the Faculty.

EXPENSES—ROOMS.

Asbury Hall was prepared solely for the use of Students. Each room is supplied with carpet, full set of furniture, beds and blankets. Students provide their toilet and bed linen. Books are secured at from 25 to 33 per cent. discount from list prices. Thus all the expenses are reduced to the lowest possible rates. Married Students can be accommodated with rooms for themselves, but not for their families.

Students wishing to pursue the partial course may do so, on providing accommodations for themselves in the vicinity. Apartments in the town can be secured at moderate prices.

AID TO STUDENTS—PASTORAL AND CITY MISSIONARY WORK.

1. Ample provision has been made for meeting every want and expense of the Student, except the single item of living. The Seminary year being but eight months, provision is necessary for that time only. The interval of four months can be employed, as is frequently the case, in teaching or pastoral work. Such opportunities are often afforded by the demands naturally arising in the populous region in which the Seminary is situated, and especially because of its immediate proximity to such cities as Newark, Jersey City and New-York. On the other hand, no Student below the grade of Middle can take pastoral work without the special action of the Faculty. This regulation is based upon the fact that it is not wise on the part of the Student to divert his attention from the regular course of instruction. He needs his time, all of it especially during the early part of his course, for patient and studious preparation for the highest usefulness.

2. In addition to the facilities named above, provision has been made to meet, so far as possible, by means of educational loans, the necessities of Students preparing to preach the Gospel; and to give them the complete benefit of their stay in the Seminary. The McClintock Association, composed of a number of ladies of New-York, Baltimore and other places, has generously undertaken to attend to this interest in part. Important aid is likewise afforded by the General Board of Education of our Church. Most of the Conferences have Educational Societies for the same object. From all sources, the Seminary was enabled to aid the Students last year to the amount of about $4,000.

3. We would call the especial attention of the able and benevolent members of our church to the importance of providing help for many young men who are looking to the Ministry, but who are unable to meet the expenses incident to attendance upon the Seminary, even for a short time. There is many a young man who would be of great service to the church and the world but for pecuniary embarrassment, from which he could be easily relieved by the liberality of those who are not called to preach, but are called to give.

4. We are happy to announce that this urgent want has been remembered in one instance, which we name with the hope that it will be suggestive: The late Hon. James Riddle, of Wilmington, Del., has bequeathed a sum, the revenue of which is to be applied, perpetually, to the education of two Students in the Seminary, also the late Mr. D. McDaniel, of Philadelphia, has made similar provision for the support of Students in this institution.

5. The McClintock Association has also begun the formation of the McClintock Library, a most important contribution to the work of the Seminary.

The object of this Library is to provide and loan to the Students whose means are limited, such text books as they may need in their Seminary course. Some important works have already been purchased and are in use the present year.

Extract from the Constitution of the Seminary.

PROFESSORSHIPS, SCHOLARSHIPS AND LIBRARY ALCOVES.

SECTION I.—Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of forty thousand dollars, or more, for the purpose of founding a Professorship, shall have the privilege of naming such Professorship, which name shall not be altered thereafter.

SECTION II.—Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of five thousand dollars, or more, for the purpose of founding a Scholarship, shall have the privilege, not only of naming such Scholarship, but also of nominating, during his or their lifetime, the beneficiaries who are to be placed upon said foundation, who shall receive board as well as instruction gratuitously.

SECTION III.—Any person or persons who shall pay into the treasury, or bequeath by will, the sum of two thousand dollars, shall have the right of naming an Alcove in the Library, to be occupied by books purchased with the money so given or bequeathed.

All bequests should be made to the "Trustees of the Drew Theological Seminary of the Methodist Episcopal Church," situated at Madison, New-Jersey.

MODES OF ACCESS.

Persons coming by way of New-York City, reach Madison by the Delaware, Lackawanna, & Western Railroad, either from the foot of Barclay or Christopher street.

Those from the South and West, come by the Pennsylvania Railroad or the Central Railroad of New-Jersey to Newark, and there change to the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad.

From Eastern and Northern Pennsylvania, students can come by way of Easton, and from the South-Western portions of the State of New-York by way of Binghamton, connecting at each of those places with the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad.

Persons desiring any further information concerning the Seminary are requested to address the President.

Course of Study.

—:o:—

The regular course of study requires three years for its completion. It is arranged with reference to the attainments of college graduates. It is earnestly desired that all students whose circumstances will allow them to obtain a college education, shall do so before entering the Seminary.

I.—JUNIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Hebrew Grammar; four chapters of Genesis and Messianic selections from the Pentateuch. Lectures on Bible History and Geography with stereopticon illustrations.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Greek Harmony; Galatians; Septuagint. During the first term of the Junior Year, in connection with the study of the Greek Text, attention is given to the harmony of the Gospel narratives; and during the second term such selections from the Acts are read as bear upon the study of Paul's Epistles.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—History of the planting and training of the Christian Church; Post Apostolic History to the middle of the fifth century.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Introduction, Theism, with a review of Anti-Theistic Theories. Inspiration of the Scriptures. Theistics—truths relating directly to God; Spirituality, personality, attributes, creative work, providence, the Trinity.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Instruction in Rhetorical Principles; Pulpit Delivery; History of Preaching.

II.—MIDDLE YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Selections from the Psalms and Job, Lectures on Canon of the O. T.—Traditional period; formative period; editorial period. Canon of the N. T.—Apostolic period; period of codification (evidence of Apostolic Fathers, earliest ecclesiastical writers, early versions, first heretics); segregative period (acknowledged books, antilegomena, heretical and apocryphal writings); authoritative period (4th century and onward); era of Reformation (modern). Sacred Criticism—Original authorities (MSS.); ancient versions; citations; critical conjecture; canons of criticism; history of printed text.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Romans and Ephesians, throughout the Middle year. In addition to the Exegesis, New Testament Literature is studied, including a discussion of New Testament Philology and Text Criticism.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—The Mediæval Period to the Protestant Reformation.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Anthropology: Primitive state, probation, and fall of man; native depravity; doctrine of sin, Christology: The person of Christ. Soteriology: The atonement in Christ.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Homiletics: Drill in choice of subjects and texts; sermons by the students; frequent exercises in extemporaneous speaking. Liturgics: The conduct of Public Worship; reading of Scriptures and hymns. Catechetics: Including the Sunday School Enterprise.

III.—SENIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Ecclesiastes, selections from the Prophetical Books, Deborah's Ode, Biblical Chaldee; Chaldee Grammar, Lectures on Interpretation,—Objects and difficulties; practical canons of hermeneutics, history of interpretation; select list of the best commentaries, with criticisms.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Hebrews and Corinthians. The method is for the most part the same as in the Junior and Middle years. The best books for study and reference on the New Testament are indicated during the course.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—The Reformation and the Counter-Reformation; Rise and Growth of the Modern Protestant Churches. The History of Christian Doctrine.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Soteriology: The Salvation in Christ—immediate and conditional benefits; doctrinal issues; vital facts of the salvation. Eschatology.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Lectures on Church Polity; Theories of Church Government; Apostolic Succession; the discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Lectures on Pastoral duties; qualities demanded in Pastors; Pastoral Visiting, the pastor's relation to Revivals of Religion. Church Enterprises.—Missions; Church Extension.

General Information.

Drew Theological Seminary is one of the fruits of the Centenary of American Methodism, which was commemorated in 1866. The grounds and buildings are the gift of Mr. Daniel Drew, of New York. It has been endowed by the liberal offerings of its Trustees and other friends throughout the Church. It was opened for students in the year 1867, and has now more than four hundred graduates. Its sons are to be found in all the Conferences of the Church and in our foreign Missions. The late Rev. Dr. John McClintock was the first President and organizer of the course of instruction. From the beginning the aim of the studies pursued has been to train young men to be effective preachers of the Gospel, and at the same time to fit them by scholarly attainments for any service which the Church may require at their hands. While theology in all its branches is carefully taught, the art of preaching is assiduously cultivated.

The seat of the Seminary is Madison, New Jersey, one of the most picturesque and healthful situations for a school of learning in the United States. The Seminary Park contains ninety-five acres of land, a large portion of which is highly ornamented with walks and drives, trees and shrubbery. The buildings occupy a central position in the Park. They are:

1. MEAD HALL, the Main edifice, containing the Chapel, Reading Room, Lecture Rooms, Offices of the Professors.
2. ASBURY HALL, containing seventy-two rooms for students.
3. EMBURY HALL, containing the Dining Hall, Society Hall, Matron's apartments, and rooms for twenty students.
4. THE NEW LIBRARY AND HISTORICAL BUILDING.

On either side of these buildings are the Professor's homes.

ADMISSION.

Candidates for admission to the regular Seminary Course must each produce the diploma of A. B., from a College or University, or must pass an examination satisfactory to the Faculty in classical and general literature and science.

Applicants for admission who are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, must each bring a certificate of local preacher's license, or a recommendation from either a quarterly conference or a leader's meeting, with the written concurrence of the Pastor and Presiding Elder. The form of recommendation authorized by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is as follows: "We, the members of the Quarterly Conference of ————, hereby express our judgment that ———— is called of God to the work of the ministry, and we recommend him as a suitable person to become a student in the Drew Theological Seminary."

This must be signed by the President and Secretary of the Quarterly Conference. Members of other Churches must bring satisfactory recommendations from ministers of the Churches to which they belong.

Students from other Theological Seminaries, will, on presenting certificates of their good standing in the same, be admitted to the same relative position in this Institution.

Students may be admitted to any one of the classes at any time during the year, on passing a satisfactory examination.

The Seminary year begins on the third Thursday in September, and ends the third Thursday in May, on which day the public Anniversary Exercises are held.

GRADUATION.

Students who have the degree of A. B., or an equivalent degree, from a College or University, and who complete the Seminary Course, and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive the Degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

Students not graduates of college, whose linguistic and scientific attainments meet the requirements of the Faculty for admission to the regular course, and who complete the course and pass a satisfactory examination, will, on their graduation, receive the Diploma of the Institution.

A partial course of study occupying two full Seminary years has been provided for those properly prepared and whose circumstances do not permit their completing the full Seminary course. Students who complete this course of study and pass a satisfactory examination thereon will receive a Certificate to that effect.

MISSIONS.

This Institution having been established in the neighborhood of the centre of Missionary operations of the Methodist Episcopal Church, it aims to give suitable prominence to those kinds of instruction which are needed, (1,) students purposing to go as Missionaries to foreign countries, and (2,) ministers at home, who ought always to have an intelligent sympathy with their brethren in the foreign field, and a fixed purpose to promote the conversion of the world. To these ends special studies are provided for candidates for foreign mission service, and regular instruction is given to each Senior class in reference to the history, agencies and results of missions.

Furthermore, with a view to maintaining a general and practical interest in the Missionary enterprises of the Church, an ASSOCIATION has been organized, embracing the members of the Faculty as well as all the students, for the purpose of collecting and reporting information respecting the principal Mission fields of the world. This organization also contemplates public discussions of the various practical questions which challenge the attention of Missionaries in the field and the managers and supporters of Missions at home. Addresses are often secured from returned and outgoing Missionaries.

ELOCUTION.

An avowed object of the Seminary is to train young men to become ready and efficient extemporaneous preachers. Elocution, therefore, is taught systematically and by progressive courses. Besides the system of study and practice regularly required in the department of Practical Theology, arrangements are made to furnish each year a special course of instruction and drill from one of the best teachers of elocution in the country.

Special instruction in elocution has been provided for all the classes one day in each week throughout the Seminary year.

On the plan thus stated, both the importance and the means of attaining oratorical power are pressed upon the attention of students, from the beginning to the end of their three year's course; not as a separate branch of education, but as an essential complement of their increase of knowledge by means of parallel studies in other departments. This is believed to be the very best mode of oratorical education, and as here practiced, it is designed both to develop the individuality of each student, and to put him on a course of self-improvement that will not only enable him to attain immediate results of the highest value, but to go on increasing his power of effective expression during his future ministry.

No charge is made to students for the special instruction in Elocution, but none are allowed to share it who fail to make the required preparation.

NON-RESIDENT LECTURERS.

Besides the regular resident corps of instructors, lectures are given by representative men of different denominations and from various fields of activity, who present special topics of importance to young men preparing for the ministry.

FELLOWSHIPS.

In addition to the post-graduate course, which has now been maintained for several years, two fellowships have been established with an income of $250 each. The design of the fellowships is to give such encouragement, as we can, to the farther prosecution of theological studies, after the Seminary course is completed. The conditions upon which the fellowships may be secured are the following:

1. That two Fellowships be established with an income of Two Hundred and Fifty Dollars each.

2. That the Fellows chosen be graduates in full course of our own Seminary, to be selected by a vote of the Faculty.

3. That residence be required during the term and also exclusive attention to some one department of Theology, under the direction of the Faculty.

4. The Fellows shall have the privileges of other students, and be allowed conveniences for work in the Library.

5. That the selection from among applicants be based on the merits of Theses, to be handed in not later than the first of February. Notice of intention to compete must be given before the opening of the second term of the school year. The subjects of the Theses and other particulars in relation to them to be determined by the Faculty.

6. That the appointment to a Fellowship be for one year only.

7. That Fellows shall not take Pastoral Charges during the time of holding their Fellowships.

8. That all applications for Fellowships for the present year be made before April first, 1888, and the Theses be presented by July first, 1888.

9. The Theses may be upon any topic within the range of the Five Departments of the Seminary and must contain not less than five thousand words.

10. That notices of intention to submit Theses, and all inquiries on the subject be presented to the member of the Faculty in whose department the candidate proposes to submit his Thesis.

11. The Faculty reserve to themselves the right of modifying these conditions as time may suggest the expediency of change.

LIBRARY.

The Library is unusually rich in works suited to the needs of students preparing for the ministry. There is no department of theological literature which is not well represented. Special care has been bestowed to provide introductory books, such as leading English, French and German works in Bibliography and Lexicography, both general and special. There are complete sets of the Abbe Migne's uniform edition of the Greek and Latin Fathers, the Oxford translation of the Fathers, Wesley's Christian Library, and the collected works of the Reformers and of many of the later leading writers of Europe and America. There are likewise full sets of prominent reviews and periodicals, both foreign and American.

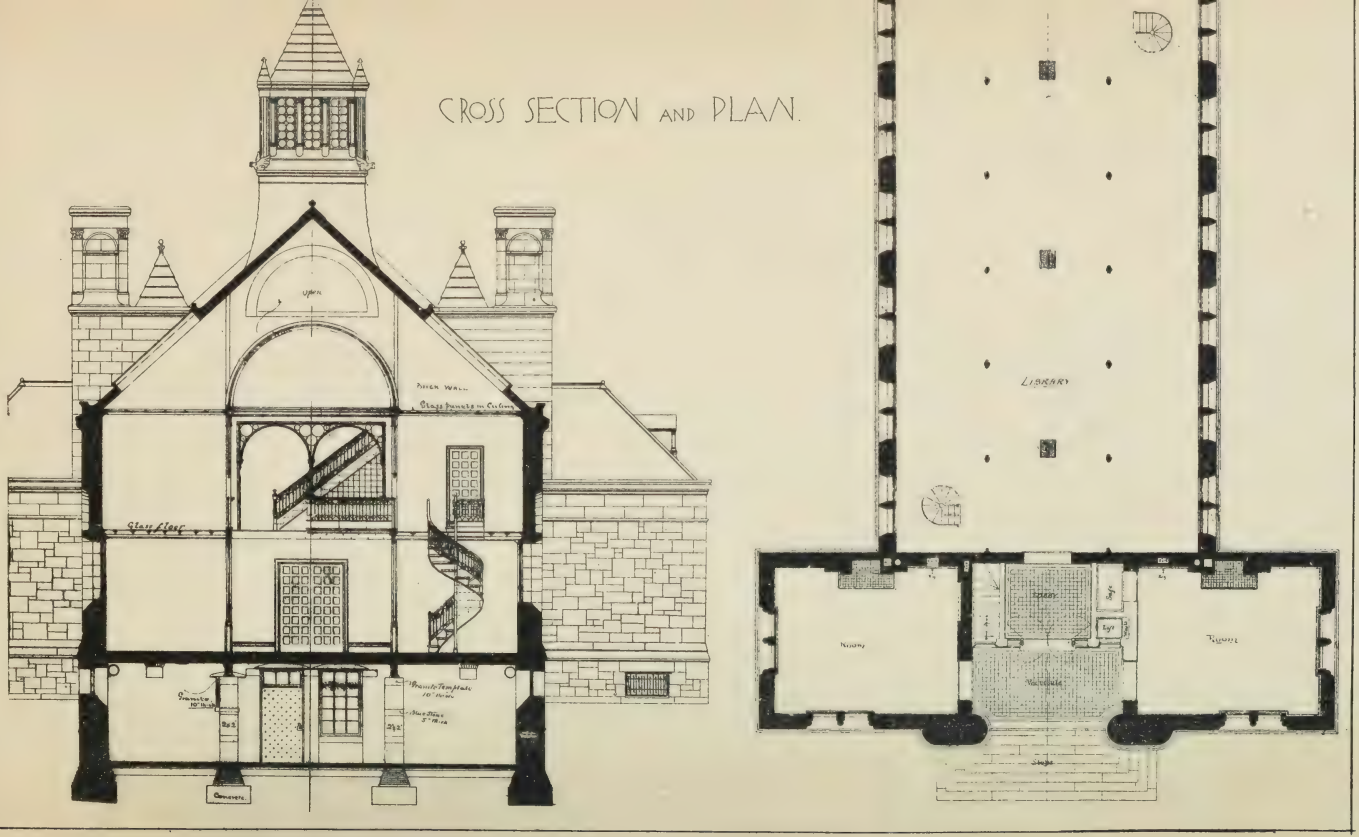
The new library building of the Seminary is now approaching completion, and will be ready for occupancy during the summer of 1888. It is of dressed stone, thoroughly fire proof, and besides the main hall with its gallery, has rooms suitable for offices, the proper custody of manuscripts, &c. Its estimated capacity is for 40,000 volumes. The books on the lower floor will be arranged in alcoves, with ample conveniences for reading and study.

The ladies of the McClintock Association have provided for the filling of the first alcove, and also for its permanent endowment. The Alumni Association of the Seminary have also undertaken to raise $5,000 towards the endowment of the Library. The late Dr. Daniel Curry engaged to fill another alcove to be named after him with books to the value of $2,000. Also Mrs. R. Nelson and Mrs. Z. Bennett, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., have contributed $2,000 to endow an alcove, in memory of the late Reuben Nelson, D. D., and to bear his name. It is suggested that other friends do the same by the contribution of funds for the permanent endowment of an alcove. The number of books estimated for each alcove is about two thousand volumes, and the sum of money necessary for the endowment of one, $2,000. By the constitution of the Seminary persons giving or bequeathing the above sum have the right of naming the alcove endowed by them.

We especially solicit contributions of old and rare Methodist books, such as Hymn books, Disciplines, pamphlets, and manuscripts. Many of these are in the out of the way places of Methodist homes, unnoticed and uncared for, and likely in the course of another generation to perish. If committed to our keeping, they will be preserved, and will be valuable in throwing light on points of Methodist history, some of them of great importance. It should be remembered that many volumes of little value in themselves become of great value when contributing to the completeness of a collection on some one subject.

Rich additions have been made to the Library during the past year. A complete set of the Bampton Lectures, a set of the Oxford Tracts for the Times, with the answers thereto, which could not easily be duplicated, and other valuable works have been provided through the generosity of Mr. William White, of White Plains, New York.



CROSS SECTION AND PLAN.
LIBRARY

The Encyclopedia Britannica, and Stephen's Dictionary of National Biography are coming to us as the volumes are issued. Additions are now making every month, to our collection of reference books, of which it is intended that the Library shall have a complete supply

The Alumni at their annual meeting in May last, appointed a committee to raise an Alumni Library Fund as follows:

President, C. C. Lasby, N. Y. East Conference; Treasurer, H. W. Byrnes, New York; J. A. Gutteridge, Newark; S. M. VanSant, New Jersey; C. E. Adamson, Philadelphia; M. E. Ketcham, New York Conference.

The Libraries of the Professors are available to the students under suitable restrictions. The total number of volumes thus accessible is over twenty-five thousand, representing all departments of theological literature and the affiliated sciences. The advantage of such a collection of works, suited in every way to the requirements of the theological student, in each stage of his curriculum, is very great. Text books taken from the library, can be retained during the entire term.

The Library is opened to students for one hour every day during term time, and for several hours on Saturday.

READING ROOM.

The Reading room is supplied with many of the representative Quarterlies, Magazines and Newspapers, both religious and literary, of this country and England. The advantage thus afforded is supplemented by the excellent Reading Room of the Young Men's Christian Association of Madison.

LITERARY SOCIETY.

The Drew Literary Society is in active operation, in the institution. The object is the cultivation of readiness and accuracy of thought, and its expression in speech. The range of topics discussed is not confined to Theology, but embraces the whole field of inquiry with which a Minister of the Gospel ought to be acquainted.

In addition to its regular Literary work, the following Special Courses of Study have been arranged with the different Professors of the Seminary, elective on the part of the members of the Society:

Ancient and Modern Hymnology	with	Dr. Strong.
Metaphysics	"	Dr. Miley.
Belles-lettres	"	Dr. Crooks.
General History	"	Dr. Upham.

Students pursuing these supplementary courses find scope for original and advanced work in lines suited to their tastes. Upon graduation, honorable mention is made upon the diploma of those attaining the required degree of proficiency in the course or courses pursued.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

Notwithstanding the recency of its organization, this Seminary is already represented by graduates to the number of four hundred or more, actually engaged in ministerial and pastoral work. Their fields of labor are distributed in more than thirty different Conferences, from Minnesota and Canada on the North, to Florida, Louisiana and Texas on the South, and from New Hampshire in the East, to Kansas and Oregon in the west. Graduates of the Seminary are connected with the principal Foreign Mission fields of the Church, viz: Japan, India, Bulgaria, China, Corea and Mexico.

An Alumni Association has been in existence for several years. Its members hold a public anniversary and a social reunion each year, during Commencement week. Not content with securing their own pleasure and profit in connection with the institution, they have taken a deep interest in all that pertains to the prosperity of the Seminary.

RELIGIOUS EXERCISES.

Public prayers are conducted in the chapel, daily, by the members of the Faculty. Wednesday mornings, one hour is devoted alternately to prayer meetings, and to preaching by members of the Senior Class, in presence of the Faculty and Students.

The annual love feast on Wednesday morning of Commencement week has always been a memorable occasion.

The Students are divided into religious classes, each of which meets on Thursday evening, and with one of its own number as leader. A general prayer meeting is held each Sabbath morning.

The Methodist Church edifice adjoins the Seminary grounds. The students avail themselves of the opportunities there offered for public and social worship.

EXPENSES—ROOMS.

Asbury Hall was prepared solely for the use of Students. Each room is supplied with carpet, full set of furniture, beds and blankets. Students provide their toilet and bed linen. Book are secured at from 25 to 33 per cent. discount from list prices. Thus all the expenses are reduced to the lowest possible rates. Married Students can be accommodated with rooms for themselves but not for their families.

Students wishing to pursue the partial course may do so, on providing accommodations for themselves in the vicinity. Apartments in the town can be secured at moderate prices.

AID TO STUDENTS—PASTORAL AND CITY MISSIONARY WORK.

1. Ample provision has been made for meeting every want and expense of the Student, except the single item of living. The Seminary year being but eight months, provision is necessary for that time only. The interval of four months can be employed, as is frequently the case in teaching or pastoral work. Such opportunities are often afforded by the demands naturally arising in the populous region in which the Seminary is situated, and especially because of its immediate proximity to such cities as Newark, Jersey City and New-York. On the other hand, no Student below the grade of Middle can take pastoral work without the special action of the Faculty. This regulation is based upon the fact that it is not wise on the part of the Student to divert his attention from the regular course of instruction. He needs his time, all of it especially during the early part of his course, for patient and studious preparation for the highest usefulness.

2. In addition to the facilities named above, provision has been made to meet, so far as possible, by means of educational loans, the necessities of Students preparing to preach the Gospel; and to give them the complete benefit of their stay in the Seminary. The McClintock Association, composed of a number of ladies of New-York, Baltimore and other places, has generously undertaken to attend to this interest in part. Important aid is likewise afforded by the General Board of Education of our Church. Most of the Conferences have Educational Societies for the same object. From all sources, the Seminary was enabled to aid the Students last year to the amount of about $4,000.

3. We would call the especial attention of the able and benevolent members of our church to the importance of providing help for many young men who are looking to the Ministry, but who are unable to meet the expenses incident to attendance upon the Seminary, even for a short time. There is many a young man who would be of great service to the church and the world but for pecuniary embarrassment, from which he could be easily relieved by the liberalty of those who are not called to preach, but are called to give.

4. We are happy to announce that this urgent want has been remembered in one instance, which we name with the hope that it will be suggestive: The late Hon. James Riddle, of Wilmington, Del., has bequeathed a sum, the revenue of which is to be applied, perpetually, to the education of two Students in the Seminary, also the late Mr. D. Mc-

Daniel, of Philadelphia, has made similiar provision for the support of Students in this institution.

5. The McClintock Association has also begun the formation of the McClintock Library, a most important contribution to the work of the Seminary.

The object of this Library is to provide and loan to the Students whose means are limited, such text books as they may need in their Seminary course. Some important works have already been purchased and are in use the present year.

Course of Study.

———:o:———

The regular course of study requires three years for its completion. It is arranged with reference to the attainments of college graduates. It is earnestly desired that all students whose circumstances will allow them to obtain a college education, shall do so before entering the Seminary.

I.—JUNIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Hebrew Grammar; four chapters of Genesis and Messianic selections from the Pentateuch. Lectures on Bible History and Geography with stereopticon illustrations.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Greek Harmony; Galatians; Septuagint. During the first term of the Junior Year, in connection with the study of the Greek Text, attention is given to the harmony of the Gospel narratives; and during the second term such selections from the Acts are read as bear upon the study of Paul's Epistles.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—History of the planting and training of the Christian Church; Post Apostolic History to the middle of the fifth century.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Introduction, Theism, with a review of Anti-Theistic Theories. Inspiration of the Scriptures. Theistics—truths relating directly to God; Spirituality, personality, attributes, creative work, providence, the Trinity.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Instruction in Rhetorical Principles; Pulpit Delivery; History of Preaching.

II.—MIDDLE YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Selections from the Psalms and Job, Lectures on Canon of the O. T.—Traditional period; formative period; editorial period. Canon of the N. T.—Apostolic period; period of codification (evidence of Apostolic Fathers, earliest ecclesiastical writers, early versions, first heretics); segregative period (acknowledged books, antilegomena, heretical and apocryphal writings); authoritative period (4th century and onward); era of Reformation (modern). Sacred Criticism—Original authorities (MSS); ancient versions; citations; critical conjecture; canons of criticism; history of printed text.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Romans and Ephesians, throughout the Middle year. In addition to the Exegesis, New Testament Literature is studied, including a discussion of New Testament Philology and Text Criticism.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—The Mediæval Period to the Protestant Reformation.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Anthropology: Primitive state, probation, and fall of man; native depravity; doctrine of sin, Christology: The person of Christ. Soteriology: The atonement in Christ.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Homiletics: Drill in choice of subjects and texts; sermons by the students; frequent exercises in extemporaneous speaking. Liturgics: The conduct of Public Worship; reading of scriptures and hymns. Catechetics: Including the Sunday School Enterprise.

III.—SENIOR YEAR.

EXEGETICAL THEOLOGY.—Ecclesiastes, selections from the Prophetical Books, Deborah's Ode, Biblical Chaldee; Chaldee Grammar. Lectures on Interpretation.—Objects and difficulties; practical canons of hermeneutics, history of interpretation; select list of the best commentaries, with criticisms.

NEW TESTAMENT EXEGESIS.—Hebrews and Corinthians. The method is for the most part the same as in the Junior and Middle years. The best books for study and reference on the New Testament are indicated during the course.

HISTORICAL THEOLOGY.—The Reformation and the Counter-Reformation; Rise and Growth of the Modern Protestant Churches. The History of Christian Doctrine.

SYSTEMATIC THEOLOGY.—Soteriology: The Salvation in Christ—immediate and conditional benefits; doctrinal issues; vital facts of the salvation. Eschatology.

PRACTICAL THEOLOGY.—Lectures on Church Polity; Theories of Church Government; Apostolic Succession; the discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Lectures on Pastoral duties; qualities demanded in Pastors; Pastoral Visiting, the pastor's relation to Revivals of Religion. Church Enterprises.—Missions; Church Extension.

General Information.

Drew Theological Seminary is one of the fruits of the Centenary of American Methodism, which was commemorated in 1866. The grounds and buildings are the gift of Mr. Daniel Drew, of New-York. It has been endowed by the liberal offerings of its Trustees and other friends throughout the Church. It was opened for students in the year 1867, and has now more than four hundred graduates. Its sons are to be found in all the Conferences of the Church and in our foreign Missions. The late Rev. Dr. John McClintock was the first President and organizer of the course of instruction. From the beginning the aim of the studies pursued has been to train young men to be effective preachers of the Gospel, and at the same time to fit them by scholarly attainments for any service which the Church may require at their hands. While theology in all its branches is carefully taught, the art of preaching is assiduously cultivated.

The seat of the Seminary is Madison, New-Jersey, one of the most picturesque and healthful situations for a school of learning in the United States. The Seminary Park contains ninety-five acres of land, a large portion of which is highly ornamented with walks and drives, trees and shrubbery. The buildings occupy a central position in the Park. They are:

1. Mead Hall, the Main edifice, containing the Chapel, Reading Room, Lecture Rooms, Offices of the Professors.
2. Asbury Hall, containing seventy-two rooms for students.
3. Embury Hall, containing the Dining Hall, Society Hall, Matron's apartments, and rooms for twenty students.
4. The New Library and Historical Building.

On either side of these buildings are the Professor's homes.

ADMISSION.

Candidates for admission to the regular Seminary Course must each produce the diploma of A. B., from a College or University, or must pass an examination satisfactory to the Faculty in classical and general literature and science.

Applicants for admission who are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, must each bring a certificate of local preacher's license, or a recommendation from either a quarterly conference or a leader's meeting, with the written concurrence of the Pastor and Presiding Elder. The form of recommendation authorized by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is as follows: "We, the members of the Quarterly Conference of ————————, hereby express our judgment that ———————— is called of God to the work of the ministry, and we recommend him as a suitable person to become a student in the Drew Theological Seminary."

This must be signed by the President and Secretary of the Quarterly Conference. Members of other Churches must bring satisfactory recommendations from ministers of the Churches to which they belong.

Students from other Theological Seminaries, will, on presenting certificates of their good standing in the same, be admitted to the same relative position in this Institution.

Students may be admitted to any one of the classes at any time during the year, on passing a satisfactory examination.

The Seminary year begins on the third Thursday in September, and ends the third Thursday in May, on which day the public Anniversary Exercises are held.

GRADUATION.

Students who have the degree of A. B., or an equivalent degree, from a College or University, and who complete the Seminary Course, and pass a satisfactory examination, will receive the Degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

Students not graduates of college, whose linguistic and scientific attainments meet the requirements of the Faculty for admission to the regular course, and who complete the course and pass a satisfactory examination, will, on their graduation, receive the Diploma of the Institution.

A partial course of study occupying two full Seminary years has been provided for those properly prepared and whose circumstances do not permit their completing the full Seminary course. Students who complete this course of study and pass a satisfactory examination thereon will receive a certificate to that effect.

MISSIONS.

This Institution having been established in the neighborhood of the centre of Missionary operations of the Methodist Episcopal Church, it aims to give suitable prominence to those kinds of instruction which are needed, (1,) students proposing to go as Missionaries to foreign countries, and (2) ministers at home, who ought always to have an intelligent sympathy with their brethren in the foreign field, and a fixed purpose to promote the conversion of the world. To these ends special studies are provided for candidates for foreign mission service, and regular instruction is given to each Senior class in reference to the history, agencies and results of missions.

Furthermore, with a view to maintaining a general and practical interest in the Missionary enterprises of the Church, an ASSOCIATION has been organized, embracing the members of the Faculty as well as all the students, for the purpose of collecting and reporting information respecting the principal Mission fields of the world. This organization also contemplates public discussions of the various practical questions which challenge the attention of Missionaries in the field and the managers and supporters of Missions at home. Addresses are often secured from returned and outgoing Missionaries.

ELOCUTION.

An avowed object of the Seminary is to train young men to become ready and efficient extemporaneous preachers. Elocution, therefore, is taught systematically and by progressive courses. Besides the system of study and practice regularly required in the department of Practical Theology, arrangements are made to furnish each year a special course of instruction and drill from one of the best teachers of elocution in the country.

Special instruction in elocution has been provided for all the classes one day in each week throughout the Seminary year.

On the plan thus stated, both the importance and the means of attaining oratorical power are pressed upon the attention of students, from the beginning to the end of their three year's course; not as a separate branch of education, but as an essential complement of their increase of knowledge by means of parallel studies in other departments. This is believed to be the very best mode of oratorical education, and as here practiced, it is designed both to develop the individuality of each student, and to put him on a course of self-improvement that will not only enable him to attain immediate results of the highest value, but to go on increasing his power of effective expression during his future ministry.

No charge is made to students for the special instruction in Elocution, but none are allowed to share it who fail to make the required preparation.

NON-RESIDENT LECTURERS.

Besides the regular resident corps of instructors, lectures are given by representative men of different denominations and from various fields of activity, who present special topics of importance to young men preparing for the ministry.

FELLOWSHIPS.

In addition to the post-graduate course, which has now been maintained for several years, two fellowships have been established with an income of $250 each. The design of the fellowship is to give such encouragement, as we can, to the farther prosecution of theological studies, after the Seminary course is completed. The conditions upon which the fellowships may be secured are the following:

1. That two Fellowships be established with an income of Two Hundred and Fifty Dollars each.

2. That the Fellows chosen be graduates in full course of our own Seminary, to be selected by a vote of the Faculty.

3. That residence be required during the term and also exclusive attention to some one department of Theology, under the direction of the Faculty.

4. The Fellows shall have the privileges of other students, and be allowed conveniences for work in the Library.

5. That the selection from among applicants be based on the merits of Theses, to be handed in not later than the first of February. Notice of intention to compete must be given before the opening of the second term of the school year. The subjects of the Theses and other particulars in relation to them to be determined by the Faculty.

6. That the appointment to a Fellowship be for one year only.

7. That Fellows shall not take Pastoral Charges during the time of holding their Fellowships.

8. That all applications for Fellowships for the present year be made before April first, 1889, and the Theses be presented by July first, 1889.

9. The Theses may be upon any topic within the range of the Five Departments of the Seminary and must contain not less than five thousand words.

10. That notices of intention to submit Theses, and all inquiries on the subject be presented to the member of the Faculty in whose department the candidate proposes to submit his Thesis.

11. The Faculty reserve to themselves the right of modifying these conditions as time may suggest the expediency of change.

LIBRARY.

The Library is unusually rich in works suited to the needs of students preparing for the ministry. There is no department of theological literature which is not well represented. Special care has been bestowed to provide introductory books, such as leading English, French and German works in Bibliography and Lexicography, both general and Special. There are complete sets of the Abbe Migne's uniform edition of the Greek and Latin Fathers, the Oxford translation of the Fathers, Wesley's Christian Library, and the collected works of the Reformers and of many of the later leading writers of Europe and America. There are likewise full sets of prominent reviews and periodicals, both foreign and American.

The new library building of the Seminary is now completed and ready for occupancy. It is of dressed stone, thoroughly fire proof, and besides the main hall with its gallery, has rooms suitable for offices the proper custody of manuscripts, &c. Its estimated capacity is for 40,000 volumes. The books on the lower floor are arranged in alcoves, with ample conveniences for reading and study.

We especially solicit contributions of old and rare Methodist books, such as Hymn books, Disciplines, pamphlets, and manuscripts. Many of these are in the out of the way places of Methodist homes, unnoticed and uncared for, and likely in the course of another generation to perish. If committed to our keeping, they will be preserved, and will be valuable in throwing light on points of Methodist history, some of them of great importance. It should be remembered that many volumes of little value in themselves become of great value when contributing to the completeness of a collection on some one subject.

Rich additions have been made to the Library during the past year. A complete set of the Bampton Lectures, a set of the Oxford Tracts for the Times, with the answers thereto, which could not easily be duplicated, and other valuable works have been provided through the generosity of Mr. William White, of New York. The Encyclopedia Britannica and Stephen's Dictionary of National Biography are coming to us as the volumes are issued. Additions are now being made every month, to our collection of reference books, of which it is intended that the Library shall have a complete supply.

The Alumni at their annual meeting in May last, appointed a committee to raise an Alumni Library Fund as follows:

President, C. C. Lasby, N. Y. East Conference; Treasurer, H. W. Barnes, New York; J. A. Gutteridge, Newark; S. M. VanSant, New Jersey, C. E. Adamson, Philadelphia; M. E. Ketcham, New-York Conference.

The Libraries of the Professors are available to the students under suitable restrictions. The total number of volumes thus accessible is thirty-five thousand and six thousand pamphlets, representing all departments of theological literature and the affiliated sciences. The advantage of such a collection of works, suited in every way to the requirements of the theological student, in each stage of his curriculum, is very great. Text books taken from the library, can be retained during the entire term.

The Library is opened to students every day during term time, including Saturday.

READING ROOM.

The Reading room is supplied with thirty-three of the representative Quarterlies, Magazines and thirty-seven Newspapers, both religious and literary, of this country and England. The advantage thus afforded is supplemented by the excellent Reading Room of the Young Men's Christian Association of Madison.

LITERARY SOCIETY.

The Drew Literary Society is in active operation, in the institution. The object is the cultivation of readiness and accuracy of thought, and its expression in speech. The range of topics discussed is not confined to Theology, but embraces the whole field of inquiry with which a Minister of the Gospel ought to be acquainted.

In addition to its regular Literary work, the following Special Courses of Study have been arranged with the different Professors of the Seminary:

Ancient and Modern Hymnology	with	Dr. Strong.
Metaphysics.	"	Dr. Miley.
Belles-lettres. . . .	"	Dr. Crooks.
General History. . . .	"	Dr. Upham.

Students pursuing these supplementary courses find scope for original and advanced work in lines suited to their tastes. Upon graduation, honorable mention is made upon the diploma of those attaining the required degree of proficiency in the course or courses pursued.

GYMNASIUM.

The new Gymnasium, which was opened early in the Fall for the use of the students, affords excellent facilities for physical culture. It is situated conveniently near to the Dormitories, and is equipped with the most approved apparatus. The advice of professional gymnasts was sought in the selection of the instruments so that means might be furnished for the perfect development of every part of the body. It is also supplied with one of Fairbanks' best scales and measuring rods. The Gymnasium is open at all hours during the day to all students without charge. An effort will be made to secure the services of a professional gymnast from New York, who will give special instruction several times a week.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

Notwithstanding the recency of its organization, this Seminary is already represented by graduates to the number of four hundred or more, actually engaged in ministerial and pastoral work. Their fields of labor are distributed in more than thirty different Conferences, from Minnesota and Canada on the North, to Florida, Louisiana and Texas on the South, and from New Hampshire in the East, to Kansas and Oregon in the West. Graduates of the Seminary are connected with the principal Foreign Mission fields of the Church, viz: Japan, India, Bulgaria, China, Corea and Mexico.

An Alumni Association has been in existence for several years. Its members hold a public anniversary and a social reunion each year, during Commencement week. Not content with securing their own pleasure and profit in connection with the institution, they have taken a deep interest in all that pertains to the prosperity of the Seminary.

RELIGIOUS EXERCISES.

Public prayers are conducted in the chapel, daily, by the members of the Faculty. Wednesday mornings, one hour is devoted to preaching by members of the Senior Class, in presence of the Faculty and Students.

The annual love feast on Wednesday morning of Commencement week has always been a memorable occasion.

The Students hold half-hour prayer meetings on Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday evenings and also a "class" meeting for an hour on Thursday evening, and a general prayer meeting Sunday morning. All of these are under their own leadership and the interest throughout the year is deep and steady.

The Methodist Church edifice adjoins the Seminary grounds. The students avail themselves of the opportunities there offered for public and social worship.

EXPENSES—ROOMS.

Asbury Hall was prepared solely for the use of Students. Each room is supplied with carpet, full set of furniture, beds and blankets. Students provide their toilet and bed linen.

The Seminary Book Agent is elected by the students from among their number and he furnishes all text books at a reduction of from 25 to 33 1-3 per cent. Being so close to New-York City the agent is able to give the students remarkable advantages in buying all kinds of books, especially second-hand, and thus gives our students the opportunities, in book buying, of the Empire City. Thus all the expenses are reduced to the lowest possible rates. Married Students can be accommodated with rooms for themselves but not for their families.

Students wishing to pursue the partial course may do so, on providing accommodations for themselves in the vicinity. Apartments in the town can be secured at moderate prices.

AID TO STUDENTS—PASTORAL AND CITY MISSIONARY WORK.

1. Ample provision has been made for meeting every want and expense of the Student, except the single item of living. The Seminary year being but eight months, provision is necessary for that time only. The interval of four months can be employed, as is frequently the case in teaching or pastoral work. Such opportunities are often afforded by the demands naturally arising in the populous region in which the Seminary is situated, and especially because of its immediate proximity to such cities as Newark, Jersey City and New-York. During this school year about ten of our students have spent from Friday noon till the following Monday noon of each week in Mission work in New-York City under Dr. Stone, who is in the employ of the New-York City Church Extension Society of the M. E. Church. The work is rapidly growing and will doubtless be able to use during the next year all who may desire and are fitted for such work. On the other hand, no Student below the grade of Middle can take pastoral work without the special action of the Faculty. This regulation is based upon the fact that it is not wise on the part of the Student to divert his attention from the regular course of instruction. He needs his time, all of it especially during the early part of his course, for patient and studious preparation for the highest usefulness.

2. In addition to the facilities named above, provision has been made to meet, so far as possible, by means of educational loans, the necessities of Students preparing to preach the Gospel; and to give them the complete benefit of their stay in the Seminary. The McClintock Association, composed of a number of ladies of New-York, Baltimore and other places, has generously undertaken to attend to this interest in part. Important aid is likewise afforded by the General Board of Education of our Church. Most of the Conferences have Educational Societies for the same object. From all sources, the Seminary was enabled to aid the Students last year to the amount of about $4,500.

3. We would call the especial attention of the able and benevolent members of our church to the importance of providing help for many young men who are looking to the Ministry, but who are unable to meet the expenses incident to attendance upon the Seminary, even for a short time. There is many a young man who would be of great service to the church and the world but for pecuniary embarrassment, from which he could be easily relieved by the liberality of those who are not called to preach, but are called to give.

4. We are happy to announce that this urgent want has been remembered in one instance, which we name with the hope that it will be suggestive: The late Hon. James Riddle, of Wilmington, Del., has bequeathed a sum, the revenue of which is to be applied, perpetually, to the education of two Students in the Seminary, also the late Mr. D. McDaniel, of Philadelphia, has made similiar provision for the support of Students in this institution.

5. The McClintock Association has also begun the formation of the McClintock Library, a most important contribution to the work of the Seminary.

The object of this Library is to provide and loan to the Students whose means are limited, such text books as they may need in their Seminary course. Some important works have already been purchased and are in use the present year.
